Joint Export Import Agency Coupons

By Larry "Ski" Smulczenski

The October 1977 issue of the Banknote Reporter was devoid of the usual plethora of information on world wide notes except for the monthly Military Vignettes column by Fred Schwan. This article introduced the Joint Export-Import Agency coupons used in Germany after World War II by civilian visitors to the American and British zones of operation. The coupons were necessary because of existing regulations in occupied Germany. The homeland currency of most visitors was prohibited and at the same time, the currency circulating in Germany was either unsuitable or prohibited from foreign use. These visitors exchanged their money for the Travellers' Coupons issued in booklets of varied denominations. The visitor used the coupons for meals and accommodations while in the two occupied zones. The coupons could also be used for goods and services in such places as designated by the Military Governments for Germany (US/UK). The coupons were redeemed upon departure from the zones. This information is found on a flyleaf inside the coupon booklets and can be seen on the link www.papermoneyworld.net/grams/thurskil02402.htm The information contained in this article is the forerunner of the paragraphs that appear on page 305 of World War II Remembered. The coupons come in three denominations, 50 pfennings, 1 and 5 mark. The one and five mark coupons are the same size while the 50 coupons are approximately one fourth that size horizontally. In fact four 50 coupons placed side by side are approximately the size of a mark note and that's the way they were printed and mounted in a booklet. The mark coupons are sequentially numbered in a booklet, but all the 50 pfennig coupons on a sheet of four have the same number but have a suffix letter of a thru d to specifically identify them. An example of a full sheet of the four 50 pfennig coupons with the suffix letters can be seen in the link. This sheet of four is quite a rare item not frequently seen and probably should be included WWII Remembered. Notice also that there is a prefix letter on the serial number. This letter, a capital A thru E (those seen) probably designated the value of the booklet that the coupon came from. Other than the E booklet pictured in World War II Remembered, we have not seen any other covers to confirm this supposition.

Notice that the linked sheet of four came from the booklet in World War II Remembered and was the last page in the booklet. What were the other coupons in the book? They could have been 10 sheets of four each 50 pfennings as that would equal the booklet value of 20DM. BUT, one 5DM, three 1DM and six sheets of four 50 pfennings or two 5DM, six 1DM and two sheets of four 50 pfennings will also work. I believe that's all the combinations where 10 coupons or coupon sheets make up 20DM, but I may be wrong. Regardless, we don't have the answer of how many coupons or coupon sheets made up the various sized booklets. Notice that I switched from the generic mark to DM (deutsche mark) when I spoke of the specific coupons. Fred points out in both his article and in WWII Remembered that the term deutsche mark was introduced with the currency reform of June 1948. That tells us that these coupons were issued after June of 1948. The Banknote Reporter article as well as WWII Remember speculated that the coupons could also have been issued in dollar or sterling units since the inception of the Joint Export-Import Agency occurred in January

A little over a year ago David Seelye uncovered a small group of these coupons. Included were only one and five mark coupons and they all appeared to be from the same booklet but unfortunately they had all been torn from that booklet and the cover was no where to be found. The amazing part of this find was not recognized for a couple of weeks until Harold Kroll saw the coupons and realized that they were denominated in RM not DM. Reichsmarks not Deutsche Marks. That was the missing link to this puzzle. The JEIA issued coupons in both RM and DM denominations and not the speculated dollar and sterling values. Reichsmarks before June of 1948, Deutsche Marks after that date.

I see that I got dragged across the coals in Joe's Tuesday Gram for not remembering a short paragraph he wrote in an IBNS Journal article some nine months ago about the subject of last weeks Thurski. I remember reading his article, but if you were to give me a test on what was in each paragraph, I would miserably flunk. My 39-year old brain doesn't retain facts from yesterday, least not months ago. The wife and I still only own the one movie that we watch every Saturday night because we don't remember it from week to week. When I went back and reread the article, Joe was absolutely right. The information was there, I just didn't remember it. Maybe if Joe had put a picture of the block of four Fiji Grand Pacific Hotel paper tokens in his article instead of three pictures of himself, I might have better remembered his comments. Touché! I will say that after figuring it out for myself, I will not forget the data in nine months nor probably for as long as this 39 year old brain continues to function.

Editorial

Tuesday's editorial included a funny (and stupid) typo. Within a few minutes after sending the editorial the box (and phone) jumped with good natured "corrections." The good news from my point of view is that I get double duty from this editorial. Below is the corrected message.

We have had a few nice submissions recently about world affairs and even military matters. In these cases in particular, I happened to agree with the positions taken. However, there was nothing relating to numismatics in the articles. We are a newsletter of military numismatics. Occasionally we include material related to numismatics (without the military), but we will not generally run military stories without a numismatic twist.

Dear Gram, and Gramsters (Is that a form of monsters?)

Just read MPC Kid's comments on MPC copies in issue number 757. I agree. Essentially, who cares?
Well ---- Of course, obviously some do, as evidenced by the copius comments seen in MPCGram. I can think of one possible good side effect. If copies get out into the numismatic world, which seems likely, view some of thes curious pieces might, just might, entice some of the curious to make serious inquiries and end up becoming neophyte Gramsters.

Keep the MPCGram coming, I enjoy it and even learn something occasionally. I'd learn more if my old brain could absorb all that's there.

"Show" Report

by Robert Drake

Let me tell the Gramsters about the Marina, CA Air Faire held at the former Fritche Army Air Field.

The Marina Rotary just completed putting on a great little Air Faire at the old Ft Ord field. Salinas had the CA International Air Show two weeks ago with the Blue Angels as headliners.

Date was Saturday, 19 Oct 02. The gate was open to all and there was no charge. The main intent has been to honor WWII vets. The highlight was the Fighter Ace symposium attended by a number of the real Aces. There were several retired 05s, 06s and an 07 in attendance sharing their memories as Aces. Mayor Jim Perrine welcomed all the vets and Council Member/Retired Colonel Ila Metee-McCutcheon spoke at the dinner served to the vets at the The Sky's Edge Restaurant by Bill Lee and crew. A gratuitous tri tip meal was served for 85.

There were various food booths, static displays and other commercial vendor booths. We had about 100 vintage cars to oooh and ah over. I selected a 1966 red GT0 but he wouldn't take MPC.....The Committee put on a silent auction with a huge display of aviation memorabilia for sale. We completely sold out at the auction.

I decided to show some MPC at a booth set up in the display hangar. Set up two cases with examples from the replica notes currently being sold and talked about in the Gram as well samples of genuine notes from all the MPC series. Freds's book was available for inspection. I chose not to display the 471 $5, 541 $5 or 661 $10. You know the story about pearls before swine.....a number of vets remembered their use of MPC. Other former dependents shared their memory of MPC too. I did speak with a few vets about C Days. At any rate, it was an easy way to share our hobby of MPC collecting with people who wandered by the booth.

Thanks to retired Master Sgt (USAF) Bill Dietzel for keeping his eyes on the table while I was out running other errands. Bill is President of the US Airpower Museum in Fresno. So, check that out when you travel west.

We had about twenty older vintage aircraft up and running. From Stearman Bi Planes to P51 Mustangs. Fans could secure rides on a number of warbirds including the P51s.

Next year, fly out west via Oakland, SFO, Monterey or just come in from twelve o'clock high and land at the Marina Int'l Airport. We've got hangars, tie downs, skydiving, ultralites, rental cars, motels and dining opportunities. And there's always Carmel, Monterey and Pebble Beach (Currently $375 for a round of golf). Contact Retired MAJ Bill Lee @ 831-384-2644 at The Sky's Edge restaurant and he'll set you up. Plan for the event on the third Saturday in October, 2003.

Those of you who remember Ft Ord and visited Stillwell Hall (Enlisted Club overlooking the Pacific) might be surprised to hear of talk to move some or all of it close to the main gate and use the building as a train station+++ for future trains and a visiting center.

I know everyone would enjoy a visit to Northern CA. What MPC will you trade for a ride on a P51, Fred?

Editorial

Kevin's letter below was wonderfully refreshing. We old guys are so intent on our own projects that we sometimes forget that new collectors are being crated just about every day. Many of those are having the absolute joy of searching for notes to slide into their basic collections of 90 notes. I remember those days well. If I had not had such a wonderful time doing that, I suspect that I would not be typing this editorial at this moment. Of course, I am also having fun looking for position 1 certificates and other things too.

The editorial staff of every numismatic publication frets about mix of articles. Aim at advanced or beginning collectors? That is the question. The answer is simple, but not easy to do. The answer is yes. David Harper of Numismatic News and Bank Note Reporter pointed out to me that young and beginning collectors are keen collectors. They do not want watered down articles, they will devour just about everything. In general they will also ask questions and find sources.

However, this does not mean that we should not nor cannot reach out a little better. Thankfully Kevin wrote in with his question. Kevin, I hope that you will continue to help us with more such questions.

Dear Gram (Al),
I got mine from Alistair Gibb at:

<http://www.west-banknotes.co.uk/newbooks.htm>

The book is WN58. This is the second time I bought from him, the first was getting Van Elmpt's BAFSV book (which is WN11). I used the secure online form and didn't have any problems. If someone does decide to order some, I'm interested in getting a copy for the ANA library as well as the YN ANA Summer Seminar and Fest auctions.

Cheers,
Mark

Dear Gram,
What's a position 8 note? Just curious to see if I have any.

Kevin

Dear Kevin,
Yours is the letter of the week if not of the month (see editorial). Military payment certificates have serial numbers AND position numbers. Take a look at a certificate. The one or two digit number, smaller in size than the SNs, is the position number. It is the position of the certificate on the sheet. This system is explained in some detail in the Comprehensive Catalog of Military Payment Certificates (hope that you will consider obtaining (or at least borrowing) a copy).

In the past few years some really crazy collectors (describes most of us) have taken to collecting MPC by position number or at least with regard to positions. Your editor collects MPC from position number 1 (and a few other ways too). Joe Boling collects MPC only from position 8, hence his commentary. I should mention that in spite of this commentary, most people simply collect by series and denomination.

How I got started

By Special K

In response to the editors note explaining what was a position 8 note really impressed me for more then one reason! First let me say what a pleasure it is as a new Gramster that what attracted me to these notes is not only there beauty but the wonderful people who collect them, yes all you people who have helped a new guy on the block like me with all my small and large, smart and dumb questions? It is very pleasing to be accepted and talked to with the respect and dignity that most of you respond with and I say Thank you much!

Why you ask? Well I am new to collecting and if you could step back just one moment and remember when you bought your first note and how it felt, I just gushed with excitement having a piece of history in my hands and wondered who had owned it before I, and wanted to know all about them? The why's? And where they were when they received the note, of course all the trivia's were interesting too! But what really caught me was something else! Something that sadly you don't see in collecting much any more??

You see I was sitting at my very first currency auction it happened to be at Rosemont Il. last spring I was there to buy some large-size notes and fractional gems. I was over whelmed with excitement it being my first time! I was Virgin Auction boy, I probably stood out like a young soldier on his first leave overseas! I sat next to a guy who looked like he could be Archie Bunkers brother, he was very friendly, easy going and so was his friend.

Being new I had many questions. As a new collector I want to tell you how rough it is trying to get information out of anyone especially at a auction! Coin dealers are the worst! Now days our business is dying in certain ways that a dose of good old times could be the answer! yes I wish dealers would remember where they came from, alls most of them do now is grump, moan and get rude to their possible new clients, all while trying not to share or pass on any information to us green horns. As a new guy on the block I have seen some very nasty things and truthfully I have no clue how these guys stay in business.

Enough said this brings me back to how I started collecting MPC. It's the start of the second session and I am sweating at the pace of the auctioneer, I throw out a few bids and actually win some of the them, but Bunker next to me is having a bad day! What he came to bid on was MPC and it was obviously going for more then its worth to him and this guy really seems to know his stuff so I listened to Bunker like a E.F Hutton commercial because he is actually sharing information and explaining all this stuff to me--a perfect stranger! Yes I am perfect dah! but stranger is more like it! Anyway its break time and we continue to talk over lunch waiting for the session to restart and Archie's friend says if I really want to know more about MPC I should get a book on MPC. He suggests braggingly that old Arch wrote one and he might sign a copy to me.

I am thinking right Bunker here writes a book and he's going to sell me a copy at a show in Illinois? but it turned out that Bunker and his pal weren't kidding they said give him ???$(I forget the amount) in cash and write your name and address down on this napkin and he will send you a copy, now I am starting to think is this guy for real or are they trying to scam me for a couple of bucks? But they were so friendly and helpful I figured the info he gave me that day and his willingness to share and pass on his knowledge was worth the shot of losing a few greenbacks besides if I lose out well he probably needed it more than I did anyway so I peeled off the cash and the two left the auction floor in a hurry saying good bye!

Then sure enough two weeks later I received in the mail my first copy of cataloging and collecting MPC notes and the rest is history. I have also contacted this man several times by e-mail with other questions and he always responds dedicated and cheerfully. Can you imagine if everyone in a position to influence new people acted this way what a big thing this love we have to collect would be? Is it really that hard to be polite and responsive to those who don't know as much as some of you?

If I inspire one person out there to do the right thing and share our hobby as much as they can with others with knowledge and enthusiasm I have repaid my Auction friend for steering me in the right direction and inspiring me to collect MPC history. How fun and rewarding it is knowing that I collect with the classiest of all collectors, people with whom camaraderie and caring come to life as much as their collections. How sweet it is! With a special Thanks to Archie! known to most of you as Fred and his unknown friend?? for being such good people and sharing your knowledge with others you truly are an inspiration to us newer collectors. Sincerely Kevin known to most as Special"K"

P.S., Fred, YOU FORGOT TO SIGN MY BOOK!!

NATIONAL COIN WEEK PROMOTERS CAN WIN

ANA SUMMER SEMINAR SCHOLARSHIPS

The American Numismatic Association (ANA) is offering two full scholarships to an ANA Summer Seminar at the Association's headquarters for the best promotions of the 80th observance of National Coin Week, April 20-26, 2003.

This year's National Coin Week theme, "Tale of the Coin," focuses on the stories about coins; the people, places and objects depicted on money; and the many collectors, past and present, who collect and study coins, according to ANA Education Director Gail Baker.

"We encourage you to 'wag your tale' at an April club open house," Baker says. "Invite the public to attend a special educational program, or ask several club members to prepare 5- to 10-minute presentations on numismatic history, legends or stories. Clubs should include at least one mini-presentation on a currently circulating U.S. coin."

Other activities include:

- Entering an exhibit in the National Coin Week Competition at the ANA National Money Show™ in Charlotte, North Carolina, March 21-23, 2003.
- Distributing modern circulating or common collectable coins, such as Wheat cents or Buffalo nickels, in 2x2-inch flip. Add interesting numismatic information about the coins on one side of the paper insert and club information on the other (web address, meeting times and place, etc).
- Making mini-presentations to local Scout groups, schools, libraries, civic groups, etc., and give each attendee a collectable coin in a 2x2-inch flip with numismatic information and the ANA web address (www.money.org) on the insert.

Coin clubs also can utilize the ANA's "discovery guide," which is published in the fall and spring, and is an ideal way to introduce the joys of coin collecting to the general public, young and emerging collectors, families and educators. The eight-page "newspaper" is automatically sent to ANA members age 22 and under, and is available in bulk for the cost of shipping. (For more information visit www.money.org/discover.html.)

"Try these suggestions or make up your own," Baker says. "To encourage participation, the ANA again is offering two full scholarships to Summer Seminar in Colorado Springs. One will be awarded to the exhibitor with the best National Coin Week display at the ANA National Money Show in March.” (Exhibit application deadline is February 21, 2003.)

“The other scholarship will be awarded to the coin club or the collector who submits a report of the best and most innovative method of how they promoted National Coin Week and the theme ‘Tale of the Coin,’ ” Baker says. (Entries must be received by the ANA Education Department no later than May 31, 2003. Winners will be notified by June 30, 2003, and awards will be presented at the ANA World’s Fair of Money® in Baltimore, July 30-August 3.) For more information about National Coin Week 2003, contact the ANA Education Department, 818 N. Cascade Ave., Colorado Springs, CO 80903-3279; telephone 719/632- 2646; fax 719/634-4085; E-mail education@money.org; or visit the ANA web site www.money.org.

Editorial

Well, I guess that I have lots to comment on today. It is great reading about Kevin’s early days in MPC! He certainly hit the nail on the head about the joys of collecting such historical material. Every single one of us can tell a similar story. Tell us how you got stated!

I am certainly pleased that I seem to have responded to Kevin’s earlier email inquiries. Kevin, I must warn you, that I probably will not maintain that record. Yes, I respond pleasantly, but too often late, or very late, or very, very late.

You might have guess that the unknown accomplice was MPCKid aka Harold Kroll. Although we may have seemed frustrated, it actually worked out that we purchased quite a bit of treasure that night. Hopefully, Kid will tell us that story one day soon.

Kevin, you also made an assumption and may have underestimated me! I figure since you want an autograph for your book, that you will just have to come to the Fest to get it! Furthermore, at the Fest you can gather many more autographs. Finally, please save a copy of the Virgin-Auction Boy Meets Archie MPC, because we can probably put it in MPC book 5!

As you can imagine, I believe that a Gramster not only can, but should, win the ANA scholarship described above and should then attend the military money class.

I have a fairly thick skin about being called a coin collector even though I mostly collect paper money. I do not expect that every time that the term coin collector is used to mean numismatist that a qualifier to include rag pickers be included. I do not mind the term National Coin Week. However, I think that somewhere in such a long news release from the American Coin Collectors’ Association could throw us at least one bone!

I know the people involved in creating and distributing these news releases. They are good folks, and they know about paper money and pm collectors. They support and encourage us in many ways. They are also stuck with the N word (numismatics) and must constantly work around it. They also worry that if they specifically mention pm when talking about coin collecting, that they will read letters like this one from token collectors, error collectors, odd and curious collectors (frankly I must be one of them—odd and curious), orders, medal and decoration collectors, literature collectors, and possibly debt collectors. There is some truth in the fear of course, but coins are much more closely related to all (or nearly all) of those than is paper money.

Many of us do the things that are mentioned in the news release—give away notes, give presentations at educational , civic, and fraternal organizations. We exhibit at a higher rate than collectors of round things (my not very scientific observation). We publish newsletters and otherwise distribute free literature. Of course we will continue to do these things even without a bone, but it would be nice to have a bone every now and then!

Archie

More Joint Export-Import Agency

Neil Shafer

I Enjoyed the Thurski Gram, and thought I would like to add some official data to Larry's excellent coverage of the Joint Export-Import coupons. My information comes from Department of State publication #2783, European Series 23, printed by GPO. Cover Title: Occupation of Germany, Policy and Progress. On title page dates 1945-46 are added.

Under No. 5, MERGER OF U.S. AND BRITISH ZONES, there is a joint statement by Secretary of State Byrnes and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin. Parts of it state that the merger will take place Jan. 1, 1947 and that both countries have become equal partners in treating their zones as a single unit.

A Memorandum of Agreement issued Dec. 2, 1946 follows the opening statements. No. 1 gives the date as shown above for the inception of this merger. No. 2 refers to the pooling of resources to provide a common standard of living. No. 3 refers to German administrative agencies to be set up to administer the economic unification.

It is No. 4, "Agency for foreign trade," that gives us the following data: "Responsibility for foreign trade will rest initially with the Joint Export-Import Agency (U.S.-U.K.) or such other agency as may be established by the two Commanders-in-Chief. This responsibility shall be transferred to the German administrative agency for foreign trade under joint supervision to the maximum extent permitted by the restrictions existing in foreign countries at any given period. (All references in this agreement to the Joint Export-Import Agency shall apply to this agency or to any agency established by the two Commanders-in-Chief to succeed it.)"

No. 5 is the basis for economic planning, indicating that by the end of 1949 a self-sustaining economy should be in place. No. 6 refers to the sharing of financial responsibility, outlining some of the concerns about types of items imported-exported. Category A items are those needed for prevention of disease and unrest; Category B items are those required for a general recovery in the area.

Sub-paragraph (b): "It is the intention of the two Governments that the full cost of Category A imports shall be defrayed as soon as possible, subject to sub-paragraph (c) below, from the proceeds of exports. Any portion of the cost of Category A imports which is not met by export proceeds will be defrayed by the two Governments in equal shares from appropriated funds."

Sub-paragraph (c): "The proceeds of exports from the area shall be collected by the Joint Export-Import Agency and shall be used primarily for the provision of category B imports until there is a surplus of export proceeds over the cost of these imports."

Sub-paragraph (d): "In order to provide funds to procure Category B imports:" (i) The Government of the United Kingdom will make available to the Joint Export-Import Agency the sum of $29,300,000 in settlement of the understanding reached in September, 1945, for the pooling of the proceeds of exports from the two zones in proportion to import expenditures, which shall be credited to the United States contribution. (ii) In addition to this sum the accumulated proceeds of exports from the United States Zone (estimated at $14,500,000) will be made available to the Joint Export-Import Agency for the purchase of Category B imports. (iii) The Government of the United Kingdom will provide Category B goods at the request of the Joint Export-Import Agency to a value equal to that of the United States contribution under sub-paragraphs (i) and (ii) above. (iv) The Governments of the United States and the United Kingdom will make available to the Joint Export-Import Agency in like amounts their respective shares of the sum to be used for financing purchases of essential commodities for the German economy under the provisions, and upon ratification by the Government of Sweden, of the accord dated 18th July, 1946, between the Governments of the United States, the United Kingdom and France on the one hand and Sweden on the other."

(9) Currency and banking arrangements: "The Bipartite Finance Committee (US-UK) will be authorized to open accounts with approved banks of the countries in which the Joint Export-Import Agency is operating, provided that agreements are negotiated with those countries for credit balances to be transferred on demand into dollars or sterling. The Bipartite Finance Committee will be authorized to accept payment of balances in either dollars or sterling, whichever, in the judgment of the Joint Export-Import Agency, may be better utilized in financing essential imports."

Additionally, the Agency had as part of its work the determination of import requirements and payment for same, with such assistance from the two governments as may be required. The entire arrangement was to be reviewed annually.

This GPO publication has a great deal of most absorbing background data and statements about the socio-political situation in the immediate postwar arena that was Germany at the time. Highly recommended reading!

Editorial

Gram 761. I really like Gram numbers that sound like MPC series numbers. Whenever I see such a number, I think of MPC. Of course tomorrow will be 762 that could also have been possible. We never had anything like 763, but it still makes me think. In terms of world affairs, it might be better that we did not have a Series 761, but from the collector point of view, I sure wish that we had them!

Dear Gram,

Re editorial in #759. Please don't "crate" those new collectors. We need them. On the other hand crating some of us older ones might be a good idea!

Bill Murray

Dear Bill,

Ouch, good catch. Ah, it is not all that good of a catch, because it is a really terrible slip! It is one of those things that happen when we get too dependent on spelling checkers!

MPC Database over 5000

By Doug Bell

The MPC data base at papermoneyworld.net now has over 5000 MPC listed by serial number. Recent enhancements include calculation of value for each note entered—face value AND catalog value that is.

Here are the totals:

Total 5001 Total    Face Value: $9100.25 Total    Book Value: $269172

MPC DATA BASE Commentary

By Harold "MPCKid" Kroll
(I guess its better to be known as an unknown then not to be known at all.)

For those of you who have not visited www.papermoneyworld.net and for those who have not been there for some time, you will be in store for quite a few changes and surprises. The changes are quite dramatic from the original site and more are in the works all the time.

Douglas Bell, aka MPCWIZZARD, is the webmaster of this site. Doug has devoted many man-hours in construction of this site and when you visit the site you will see what I mean. Access to the site is available to any gramster by contacting Doug and getting a password, (just what everybody needs another password, right) anyway when that is done you will be able to access the site and use it whenever you want.

There are several sections to the site and all contain information for the collector. One of the great areas is the MPC DATA BASE. This is where you can list all of the notes in your collection by series, serial number, position number, grade denomination, what your cost was, (this is optional) and a space for comments about each note. As your personal data is being added to the site, it automatically charts the notes you have entered onto a graph showing how many notes you have entered by series and denomination. This is just the beginning what the data base will do for you. As you keep entering your notes, total note count appears along with the catalog value of your collection, plus you have a record of all your notes by serial number if something were to happen with your collection. As the information is being added by other collectors the total note count is available and the total face value of the notes entered and an accumulated catalog value for all notes. Everyone has an individual area for his/her data but it's all combined to give us this information on total numbers.

One of the features with this data base is it will tell you if any serial number you have entered matches another note with the same serial number, any denomination or series. Fred has a real fancy for this section of the data base and rightfully so. The three examples shown in the book I think are the only ones known to date, check out pages 55/56 in the MPC catalog. The 661 25 cent and $20.00 notes were united at Fest 1, the 25 cent note was from the Kevin Maloy collection and the $20.00 note was in Mpckids collection for a time. That is another good story to follow one day. Take some time to view the site and while there add some data from your collection, who knows you may find a match. Doug and I were discussing the website and some new graphics he just installed this evening, that is when he informed that the total number of notes listed just topped 5,000 notes. This inspired me to write this article to make all gramsters/Gramsters (nod to Joe) aware of this website and to use it.

I could go on to tell more about other features of the site, but it would take all the fun out of visiting the site for yourself and finding out what is available to you. It's free, what have you got to lose?

All of the above is made possible by the countless hours Doug Bell has devoted to building this website. My thanks and praise to Doug.

Editorial

Five thousand notes in the MPC data base is an important step! We have discussed this research tool in the past, and will keep harping on it because it is a potentially important research tool.

Indeed, I have been slow in entering notes from the black hole, but have started a deliberate program to get my notes entered. I am going to enter notes every day and ask Doug to report me when a day passes that I do not enter any!

With 5000 (mostly) regular issues at paper moneyworld.net and the replacement data base that I maintain (for more than 25 years) our total recorded notes is close to 8000!

How far can we go? Well, we can make an estimate, I think. What do we know? We know that replacements were issued at a rate of about 1% of the total issue. We have 2500 in the replacement data base. As an estimate we can divide 2500 by 1%. That is 250,000. My personal estimate is that although the replacement survey is fairly robust and certainly seasoned, we still should be able to double the 2500 to 5000 in 30 – 50 years. After that, I think that reports will be quite slow. This puts the high estimate of regulars at 500,000. Therefore, it is my estimate that we should be able to record 250000 to 500000 regular issues fairly easily!

How many matching numbers can we find in 250,000 notes? How many radars, low numbers and other specials? How many questions can we answer that have not even been formulated yet?

I encourage everyone to enter notes in the data base.
Fred

Dear Gram,
What brand of album and note sleeves do you recommend to keep MPC in?

Is there specific types of vinyl that are better in protecting and what size of sheet and number of notes it holds, do you find works best?

Housing of paper money collections. That is a great question that has not been beaten to death in the Gram. I suspect some readers will have opinions.

Fred

Dear Gram,
The ANA has uploaded a few of the stories from the November Numismatist. One of the articles is entitled "Tributes to Those Who Serve" and talks about various items commemorating the military service (but not about military paper money). The link to the article (a PDF file) is:

Dear Howard,
Son of a gun, I just checked and the show has been

MPC Database has record day

The MPC data base had more entries yesterday than any day since its creation. Nearly 1000 notes were entered. Based upon a few reports, collectors intend to keep up this pace! At this rate we can expect to see 10,000 listings in just a few weeks and a catalog value of half a million—or possibly a million—dollars sooner than that.

Expect to see frequent updates of the progress of the reports here and, hopefully, in the print media in the future.

Here is the link directly to the log in page for the data base:

Another propaganda note

By Joe Boling

Here's one I had not noticed before. I'm sure that at some time I had read the description in R G Auckland's 1972 booklet (Air-Dropped Propaganda Currency), but I don't remember ever seeing the note or any other mention of it. It's the back of a Soviet 100 ruble note (P231/232--the two Pick numbers are only distinguishable on the face), printed in dull green, with a long text in black Cyrillic on the other side. It was prepared by an anti-Soviet organization known as the Narodno-Tridovogo Soyuza (NTS). Its logo is a very plain trident, leading me to believe that it was composed of mostly Ukrainian dissidents.

According to Auckland (where the notes appear on pages 37-38--there is also a 25 ruble denomination illustrated), the notes were floated into East Germany targeting Soviet troops stationed there, and into the USSR homeland from other countries "in places other than Europe." One balloon carrying 300 kilos of leaflets allegedly got as far as Moscow before dropping its load. So, what's "other than Europe?" Turkey, Iran, India, and South Korea all come to mind, but the only ones that might reach Moscow (if the winds would support it) are Turkey and Iran. I wonder if the "other than Europe" was a claim to keep the actual countries (such as Finland or Sweden?) out of the limelight.

I checked the IBNS Journal (for the thirty years that have been indexed) and found no article about these notes (tell me where I have missed it, Herb). I was offered this one by Simon Narbeth when I was in his shop before the IBNS London convention; I bought it for ninety pounds. Expensive, but there are not many cold war propaganda pieces available.

It was exciting the way Gramsters responded to yesterdays news and editorial items about the MPC data base. Doug Bell has done a lot of work on the data base and it is going to be a good thing for all of us. Last night I was one of many who entered some numbers. I actually found it to be fun! Doug has included some features that I did not know about. When you enter a serial number, the data base determines from what printing it came (for series with more than one). That information is then used in evaluating the note. The data base calculates the total face value and total catalog value for each user and for the data base overall. At this time, this function must be updated by the web master. Your values will not show up as you put them in, but will normally be there later the same day. Doug expects to have another sum added soon. That will be the total of your purchase price.

Doug and I are creating a master list of enhancements for the DB. Please send those in to the Gram for discussion and implementation. When we get enough suggestions, and enough money to pay the programmer, we will get them done!

In an unprecedented move, for the Gramster making the entry, Gram subscriptions will be extended one issue for every certificate entered ! Enter 100 notes and receive an additional 100 free Grams!

Dear Gram,

But you did not do what he [Howard] asked you to do, namely ALSO put in, after the Harsel comment, that Howard will be hosting a meeting and that he wants people to bring show and tell items.

Joe

Dear Gram,

Howard didn't want the show listed, he wanted ADDITIONAL INFORMATION added, as he stated.

Have a great day!

Don

Dear Gramsters,

I learned a long time ago in publishing that when you make a mistake, you label it as a feature!

Editor

Hello Gramsters and Bill!

About housing "ones" collection. Well I prefer "Lighthouse Binder 3 or 4 ring (now I grew into a 4 ring) "stamp/currency binder plus "dust cover" runs about $25+ from dealer, with a break in price? Comes in green and black. The pages are lighthouse "Vario 4C" and "Vario 3C" CLEAR,(for viewing both sides). They run about $5+ per pack of 5. I house 700+ pieces in the "wide" binder 4 ring. They 3 ring worked fine until you pass 300+ pieces and house many notes per slot. I collect multiple printings, replacements etc. so I use "Denly's mylar/ thin holders" fractional, colonial size (for $5 size) and standard U.S. small size for $10 and $20 notes. You can have 4 sleeves, let's say, for 4 printings of a #481 5 cent multiple printing, and a sleeve for a replacement. All (5) can fit into one pocket per page. For instance, page one, 4 pocket - 5 cent through 50 cent, second page is 3 pocket, the $1 , $5 $10. The $20 requires another 3 pocket page or?. I label my pages with a "Brother P-touch" hand held printer. $30+ label roll $10. Makes a beautiful display, clean and 100% protective from most conditions. Store in a cool dry "safe" (doesn't hurt to bolt a safe to the floor from the inside!) or safety deposit box, use a moisture absorber "packs that come in electronic equipment" etc., or sold by coin supply companies. Others may prefer the other brands of currency set-ups out there! Hope this helps.

Goodluck, Guy Araby!

ANA Museum Gets Major MPC Donation

Chris Connell of the American Numismatic Association Money Museum has announced the receipt of a major donation of military payment certificates to the museum's growing MPC collection.

The donation is a type set of Series 691 and 701. Specifically $1, 5, 10 and 20 certificates from both series!

These notes were not known in any private collections five years ago. The series had been created in 1969 and 1970 respectively for use in Korea and Vietnam respectively. They were never issued and were in storage. About three years ago some sets entered the collectors' market.

This is a very important addition to the museum collection and should help spur the further development of the collection. Connell stated that the notes had arrived at the museum in a plain envelope without return address or other identifying information. Speculation is that the donation was by the gentleman who originally distributed the sets to collectors, but this cannot be certain.

The serial numbers and other data pertaining to these notes have been entered into the MPC data base at papermoneyworld.net. Search for ANA.

The idea of getting the community at large to participate in the building of an MPC collection for the ANA museum seems to be nearly unanimously supported. After only a few comments in the Gram, donations have started to flow. Indeed, I have been "sitting" on a few donations (letter announcing the donations) pending the following discussion.

Yesterday I had telephone conversations with Chris Connell of the ANA museum staff and David Klinger who basically started the whole thing.

Dave and I have developed slightly different visions of how we think that we should proceed. Based upon my discussion with with Chris, I believe that either of these plans can be implemented (as well as the most likely compromise of plans).

I will describe the plans below. I will not identify which plans Dave and I liked better and will do my best to state them impartially. Hopefully, Dave will have had a chance to see this before it goes into the Gram. Finally, at this point, it seems to me that the most important part is to get a nice dialog going here in the Gram so that we can develop the best program.

In both plans, Chris would keep us informed of the contents of the ANA museum collection. Additions would be announced in the Gram, entered in the papermoneyworld data base, and generally made available to all interested parties.

The first plan is the traditional approach. Donations of MPC would be sent directly to the ANA museum. The donors would receive the appropriate letter acknowledgment promptly from the museum. The collection would be managed by the staff. Duplicates would be maintained, but potentially could be sold at the YN auction at the summer seminar.

Advantages of this program are that it maximizes the professional services of the museum staff while maintaining the highest degree of propriety. At the same time the donors receive the "best" and certainly fastest service. The biggest disadvantage is that duplicates do not contribute directly to the building of the MPC collection.

The second plan requires a volunteer MPC collector to manage the development of the collection. This person would receive most material donations (some like the 691/701 donation above) could go directly to the museum. Material deemed appropriate for the collection would be forwarded to the museum and the appropriate documents sent to the donor. The big difference comes for material that is duplicated or is deemed inappropriate for inclusion. Examples of this latter category are common notes in low grade. It is reasonable in those cases to "hold out for better." The volunteer would acknowledge receipt of the material to the donor by letter describing the system in detail. At that point the donor could still ask that the donation be sent intact to the museum and of course that would be honored.

Here is the crux of the matter. The volunteer could (should) then dispose of the duplicates generating some cash to purchase some items needed. The duplicates could be sold at the same YN auction for example, but would be consigned by the "committee" and the value less commission would go toward the betterment of the collection. Or disposal possibilities are the Fest auction and eBay. Both the YN auction and Fest auction often realize more money than the value of the item when a "good cause" is the beneficiary.

The donor would receive the appropriate acknowledgement letter from the museum after the process was complete.

The advantages of this system are that the benefit of the donations goes entirely to the museum collection and therefore, the collection will probably (but not necessarily) grow faster. The disadvantage is that this system creates another layer of bureaucracy. Heck it may not be easy or even possible to find such a coordinator. On the other hand, even if a coordinator is not necessary or used in the way described, such a "job" should be created from our ranks. This person's job would be to make sure that the appropriate notices etc are posted, but more importantly, would solicit donations to help fill in the collection.

What do YOU think? The most important thing now is to have a dialog. Give us your ideas old and tired or new and innovative!

Fred

Dear Gram,

In response to Bill's question, I prefer to use Cowens Mylar sleeves inserted in Cowens 3 and 4 pocket pages. Anything oversize, such as MPC Checks with stubs, pay receipts, pay books, etc, goes into Ultra Pro 1 pocket pages 8 1/2 x 11 and 8 x 10, and 8 1/2 x 11 two pocket pages.

These pages are punched for three ring binders, of which I use Avery-Dennison 3 inch Heavy Duty D-Ring binders with the clear vinyl slipsheet on the covers. This allows you to insert a nice album cover / contents sheet on both front & back cover and spine. Ask anyone who's seen me toting around my neatly labeled / matching bindered collection at the Fest / Strasburg! Not everyone likes 3 ring binders, but they are affordable, and available in any office supply store for easy replacement or addition while on the road.

Ultra Pro material is extremely popular with Sports Card collectors and postcard collectors.

Everything mentioned above is archival quality, PVC free, and most of affordable.

Best Wishes,
Philip M. Goldstein

WWII Exhibit at Show THIS Weekend

By Marcus Turner

This weekend the Indiana State Numismatic Association will hold its annual coin show and convention. It will be held on November 1st & 2nd at the Indianapolis Marriott located at 7202 East 21st Street (very close to where I-70 and I-465 intersect on the east side of Indianapolis). The show will be open to the public Friday 10:00am to 6:00pm and on Saturday from 10:00am to 5:00pm. Traditionally there have been several Gramsters that attend this show. DON'T LEAVE YOUR CHALLENGE COINS AT HOME!

This year I will have my collection of Soviet World War II bonds and lottery tickets on exhibit at the show. This is the same exhibit that I had in Memphis but with some significant improvements. ISNA was kind enough to let me expand the exhibit to seven cases, allowing for additions of some recent discoveries. First is the addition is the 1943 10 aksha (ruble) bond from Tannu Tuva (see S/B page 370). This is the only issued piece of any denomination identified to date. There is also an entire case dedicated to the recently discovered Soviet/Swedish intergovernmental loans (bonds) of 1940 (thanks to fellow Gramster Mikhail Istomin of the Ukraine for providing information on these bonds).

I will be at the show over my lunch break on Friday and all day on Saturday. Please stop by and visit.

Chit Chat

By Larry "Ski" Smulczenski

Last week I received an email from fellow Fester and Gramster Tom Koch. Tom had picked up a couple of POW chits and even the booklet cover from which they originated and he wanted to find out where they were from and the history of the camp. You see the location was "HARBOR DEFENSES OF NARRAGANSETT BAY". Tom had done a search on the Internet and found a site for the history of Fort Wetherill in Rhode Island. The site indicated that Fort Wetherill was once a training center for the indoctrination of German POW's who displayed anti-Nazi feelings and were considered good prospects for becoming the leadership of rebuilt Germany. Tom wondered if these chits could have been used at Fort Wetherill. The chit book cover and the chits as well as the internal receipt can be seen at the link

www.papermoneyworld.net/grams/thurski103002.htm

I was familiar with the chits from the Harbor Defenses of Narragansett Bay (in fact I had a set with the same serial number that came from the same booklet) and had done some research on them for my upcoming book on POW chits. From our high school geography classes, we remember that Narragansett Bay is the large body of water on the eastern side of Rhode Island south of Providence. And I was also familiar with Fort Wetherill as being a sub camp of Fort Getty. There were two main POW camps in Rhode Island, Forts Getty and Kearney and just one sub camp, that at Fort Wetherill. So after doing a little more research to answer Tom's question, I asked if I could use his question as a Thurski topic and pass it on to the rest of the Gramsters who would probably share our interests. He agreed

Actually the coastal or Harbor Defenses of Narragansett Bay consisted of six forts, Fort Adams, the command location, and Forts Getty, Nathaniel Greene, Church, Wetherill and Kearney. In late 1944, the Army established a secret program at a CCC camp near Van Etten, New York to train carefully selected German prisoners and some aliens for service as administrators and police in the soon-to-be established U.S. Army Government of Occupation in Germany. The program was officially known as the "Intellectual Diversion Program" to conform to language in the Geneva Convention governing the care of prisoners of war and to disguise its real purpose. The Geneva Convention did not cover the treatment of POWs with regard to this subject but the Americans wanted to keep their actions secret for fear of Germany retaliation against American POW's. The program was moved to Fort Kearney in March of 1945 where the initial phase of the program was very successful and led to an expansion of the program with inclusion of nearby Forts Getty and Wetherill. Fort Getty was used to train Administrators and Wetherill trained police. Many of the POW's selected were college graduates or had had experience in business or as civil servants in Germany. All were from western Germany because the Soviets, who would occupy eastern Germany had demanded that all German POW's be returned to their home areas. Several of the members of the test program were retained as instructors for those who followed. Later this program moved to Fort Eustis, Virginia where all activities were consolidated. Fort Wetherill operated only from August thru November of 1945, Fort Getty from July 1945 thru February of 1946. Fort Kearney was the camp with the greatest longevity opening in March of 1944 and closing in March of 1946.

Therefore, I feel certain that the three camps referred to here all used the type chits from the chit book reported by Tom Koch and shown in the link. Notice however, that the booklet cover has a issued date of 1 February 1946, and an expiration date of 31 March 1946. That's a short two month validity period and Fort Wetherill had already closed and Fort Getty was in the process of closing. So, Fort Kearney prisoners were the primary users. Also notice that the booklet is listed as series 6 and there are large sixes on each chit. This could mean that there are at least five other series out there that we haven't found yet. The three Forts probably used an earlier series booklet probably Series 5. Some of these earlier series maybe designated only from Fort Kearney and have longer validity periods as the other two locations didn't house POW's until mid 1945. Who knows?

Thanks Tom, for a great question. I think we answered some of it, but left the door open on other parts. It sure helps me find a topic when I know what your interested in as Tom has done here.

Editorial

The pace of MPC news and (especially) Gram submissions is tremendous. This is wonderful. As you can imagine, I have lots to say on many of these topics, but I am going to exercise uncommon restraint and try to let some of these issue play themselves out here in the Gram. So, you see, in spite of the wealth of material, we still want your opinion on these matters!

Dear Editor,

What a spectacular donation to the ANA. Congratulatsins to the ANA museum and "Thank You" to Mr. 691 or whomever (sure wish that I were a nonprofit museum so that I might get such a donation!).

Regarding the MPC donations to the ANA, it would probably be beneficial to create a table on papermoneyworld showing the current set with grades along with instructions on where to send the donations.

Cheers,
Mark "Sparky" Watson

Dear Sparky,
Yes, we will certainly maintain a full time and upodate collection listing at PMW. Possibly we will run it in the Gram every day! If not every day, frequently. Almost certainly we will have a new museum collection column!

Editor

Dear Esteemed (?) Editor,
I gave up on storing my Southeast Asian collection in binders because it is so large and I could not fit any more of them in the two large fireproof safes in my house. So I use archival rated storage boxes for paper and coins. An excellent source of these boxes is University Products. I use their Archival Video Box (735-1555) for paper collections and Intercept Shield Boxes (034-4116) for my coin/token collections, and use regular boxes for duplicates. They also have 5-1/8x8" Sovereign Archival Mylar holders (565-3582) for paper, and they have several coin holders. Please check with your local and favorite national dealer(s) for other Mylar holders. My favorite coin holders are "Saflip" double-pocket flips for my coins from E&T Kointainer, P.O. Box 103, Sidney, OH 45365, and most numismatic stores have them. They also have some boxes that are "pretty" good, but not archival quality, that might be more in your price range. University Products also has albums and many other storage products, so I would recommend requesting their catalog from their website at "www.universityproducts.com". Other excellent catalogs with many storage options are from Light Impressions at "www.lightimpressionsdirect.com", and Century Business Solutions Office & Photo Organizers at "www.centurybusinesssolutions.com". My safes were bought from a local "hunters/gun/bow" store. When the Vietnam War veteran-owner saw "Viet Nam" on my baseball cap, he left his other customers and served me. We talked for quite awhile and he is now looking for MPC somewhere in his house! He sold me my two large fireproof safes at $50. over his cost (saving me $500+!), and he had two friends with the right equipment deliver and place them in my house for a small charge.

I highly recommend finding a veteran who owns a store that sells Liberty Safes and make a new MPC friend. Please remember that after you purchase a piece for your collection, it is not a minor task to store it. You must correctly store it or it will not be as you bought it many years (poor products can cause problems in months!) in the past. You can contact me at Howard@SEAsianTreasury.com, if you have any questions.
Howard A. Daniel III

Dear Gramsters,
Please be advised - the telephone number for Philip M. Goldstein has changed once again - hopefully this will be the LAST change - as I finally moved into my house. As I plan on eventually dying in this house, I don't expect to inconvenience all of you to change my phone number again. Please update your address books, telephone auto dialers, etc.. For now, all mail and written correspondence can continue to be sent to my P.O. Box. My physical address is available upon request.

New Telephone Number: (845) 586-4672 - which reads as (845) 586-4MPC

Colorado Happenings

By Bill Rossenblum

For those planning on attending the opening of the American Numismatic Association's World War II exhibit in Colorado Springs on December 7, I would like to make you aware of two events in Denver that can be used to fill out the weekend.

On Friday night the Denver Area World Numismatists will have their monthly meeting. DAWN (despite this moniker we meet in the evening) is a very relaxed "coin club" which meets at a local American Legion Hall. There are no dues nor officers. The first time you attend you are a guest, after that you are a life member. Life members are asked to contribute $1 to each meeting (you are on the honor system). Trading is encouraged, there is a cash bar. I am supposed to give the program for December but if a Gramster wants to volunteer I would be happy to step aside (Fred or Joe are you raising your hand). Contact me for details.

Also on Sunday December 8th the (almost) bi-monthly Sunday coin show will take place at the Holiday Inn on Colorado Blvd. in Denver. I will be set up and usually I see a from MPC notes in dealer cases.

Military Notes in Auction

By Howard Daniel

The Bank Note Society of the Philippines 17th November 2002 Auction includes many military notes. I have extracted what I believe are the important notes for Gramsters. The extracted list is included below in the PX/For Sale section. Please send your bids to: bnsppacific.net.ph

I thought that Bill Rossenblum was going to include a MPCFest or a pool party on Saturday night at his estate along with the other events. In spite of that little disappointment, he has made a wonderful suggestion and offer. These additional numismatic opportunities make the weekend into a real event.

Furthermore, this is about the time when we need to get serious about plans for the weekend. I am still undecided. I want to attend, but have some minor complications. As Warner Talso would (and did) say. I am working on my kitchen pass.

As soon as you can decide that you will attend, please tell us so that we can share that fact with other Gramsters. Experience tells us that once a few Gramsters start signing on, others will follow.
Fred

Dear Mr. Editor,

First, David Klinger deserves a huge pat on the back for a job well done. He has done an excellent job in getting the ball rolling with respect to the ANA's MPC collection.

With respect to the donation process, let's just send in our donations. They certainly do not need us taking over control of their donations. Is there any chance you could run the address again that we send donation to? Perhaps the address could be run for a couple of days.

Marcus Turner

Dear Gram,

I don't know who else to ask, but I am looking for directions to the up coming show at: WESPMEX:11 - 13 October Westchester Paper Money Exposition - 100 Dealers Westchester County Center, White Plains, NY

Any help would be greatly appreciated.

Jeff Wolff

Dear Jeff,

Hm, well, I now see that this show was in October so I cannot be of much help. You were a victim of our editor's all-to-well-known disorganization. Did you make it to the show? Buy anything good?

I am sorry that your Gram let you down.

Editor

Dear Editor,

I found a 10 Lire (1943) Allied Military Currency (AMC) in circulated condition for only $625.00. Is that a good price?

Well, this one is offered on: www.signaturesintime.com and is signed by Humphrey Bogart ! (listed under "entertainment") So if you are in to famous signatures, maybe that's not such a bad price. By the way, I passed on it so it is still available.

David Klinger

Dear Gram,

The following text is taken from the website of the RAAF Radschool. The Radschool is the RAAF Radio School. As you can see, it relates the use of MPC by the Australians and the fact that they were paid in AUS$ and had to convert. Contacting these "blokes" should be a good lead to other information about the Australian MPC connection.

Back in the late 60's, an Australian dollar bought US$1.15, (things have changed) and all pays were first converted into Yankee dollars then made in MPC (Military Payment Certificate) which was a kind of Monopoly money used by the US armed forces as a means of keeping down black market activities. It didn't, but that was its purpose. Most blokes quickly discovered that you could buy just about anything "down town" for a carton of Salem cigarettes(green gold), or a couple of cakes of Lux soap-you didn't need money. "

<http://www.eastcoastcool.com/radschool/news8page12.html>

The address for the RAAF Radschool homepage is:

<http://www.eastcoastcool.com/radschool/index.html>

On another matter. Since you "renewed" my subscription this morning I am receiving two copies of the Gram.

Regards,

Jim Downey

"Plate Variations" on MPC

By    Guy M. Araby

I am reporting my findings based on a study comparing several hundred uncirculated MPC notes. While examining several examples of a given series, I would find an occasional note that is slightly "longer" or "shorter" in height or width on either face or back, or both sides. Frame lines, not "margins." Even found this phenomena on some consecutive groups of uncirculated 1935 $1 Hawaii overprints. There are several examples throughout virtually all the series. One of the more dramatic examples I found is that of series #541 $1. Out of 3 pieces (one graded CGC 65) two are exactly the same measurements. Face and back, left to right, top to bottom. On the third example, the face (face) horizontal measurements are 1/16th + inch "wider" face and back!. Inner frame lines, not "margins"! Also the note from top to bottem is also "narrower" than the other 2 examples. I also have a #461 5 cent, 25 cent, $10 with similar differences. And often the backs are exactly the same size (proving that the paper has not shrunk or stretched etc.) Another random comparison is that of series #681 $5, I have 6 pieces, gems. One of the 6 is shorter, left to right by 1/16th inch. The other 5 pieces are exactly the same size.

I have decided to catagorize them by abbreviations. (NHF/F) narrow horizontal frame , face. (WHF/F) wide horizontal frame, face. (TVF/F) tall/ vertical frame / face and (SVF/F) short vertical frame / face. The same abbreviations for the "back" replacing "f" with "B". And may be a combination of both. Mules probably exist. Dean Oakes has similar wide and narrow examples mentioned for the 1928 legal tender issues and the 1934 silver certs. Some unusual findings are that this phenomena is not consistent to either wide or narrow because it also occurs "tall and short" without effecting the "back design" in most cases at all. Therefore one may conclude "different plates" exist for these "singular printing" notes. I could explain it if the case involved stamps.

As a philatelist, we know about "rotary" verses "flat press" operations, which causes the same design to "stretch" in length or height because of die transfer to the rollers. But MPC is printed "flat press" (lithography). Perhaps this can be explained with actual documented serial # recordings like the research on multiple printings etc. Anyway, I wanted to report my findings as I am fully confident that this is a real and important variety/ variation and a new way to collect MPC!

I also spoke to David Seelye briefly about this a month or so ago and he also "noticed" this phenomena also! Anyone willing to do some comparisons of there own and report there findings should prove interesting. I wonder if anyone else has done similar research??

We have had two requests (ok, three) for information on registering for the Fest. Yes, it is that time again. We should start pushing the Fest. We want to break 40 Festers this time (possibly 50), so we need to get to work.

The bottom line is to get registered, send your "reservation" to the Gram. A simple "I'll be there will suffice."

Once you have registered, your name will be added to the Fest list published every day in the Gram. Once you have paid the registration fee a $$ will be placed by your name. If you have registered, please check the list to be sure that we have you listed.

The modest registration fee of $149 (US) will be due Jan 1, 2003. All traditional means of payment will be accepted (including PayPal). The fee includes meals Friday evening through Sunday noon, two nights lodging (double occupancy), participation in all events. Based upon previous Fests there will be many souvenirs of the Fest provided by Fest administration AND Festers. There are no guarantees on those items, BUT Marcus Turner has reported that Mr. 691 has again promised a very interesting item for everyone who attends the Fest.

We hope to see you there, er here.

I am sure that "The Boss" would not have made this mistake. My phone number in the Hot Contacts list is WRONG. How about a correction? You have it as 720-0659. Who ever did this must have dislectia. Dear Steamed Editor,

Regarding the offer of the 10 Lire AMC with Bogart signature, I have a similar signature I located on a small Italian note in used condition of the World War II period. Scott Winslow authenticated it for me, stating in his letter that such a signature is quite scarce and worth in the neighborhood of $800 to $1000. Mine came for a lot less, though not for a full junk box price I assure you!

2003 scholarship fund

Donations of cash and numismatic material will be gladly accepted. Generally the numismatic material is auctioned at MPCFest, but might be sold via ebay or other places. Your scholarship donations help the hobby by sending qualified individuals to the ANA summer seminar military money class.

Except for unavoidable charges like ebay fees, 100% of your donation goes to scholarships.

Varieties in HAWAII Overprints?

By Jay Jackson

As long as the subject of printing 'variations' is on the table, has anyone noticed that on the WWII Hawaii $20's that the words 'Hawaii' on the face of the note are some times closer toward the middle of the note than on others?

In my experience [limited as it is], I've seen these words as much as 3/8" closer together on some notes than others. I detect it by the placement of the word in relation to the outer frame of the design.

Anyone have any ideas as to how many different overprinting plates were used? I haven't noticed this 'variation' on the 1's, 5's or 10's.

Indiana State Show

By Marvin Mericle

Just returned from the Indiana State Numismatic Association (ISNA) show held the past two days. Was a great show, but more important, were the exhibits. Marcus Turner took First Place in the senior class/division. If you have not seen his exhibit yet, do so! Hopefully he will be exhibiting it at more shows around the country. As he stated in an earlier gram, he expanded it to seven cases. If you have not knowledgeable about Russian War bonds, get a quick lesson on them by viewing his exhibit. Not only is it educational, well written, and neat, but you get to view some very very rare pieces. Congratulations to Marcus For A Fine Exhibit.

Late last year or early this year we discussed United States Patriot bonds at some length. I was interested in these in the same way that I am interested in World War II defense and war bonds. Eventually, I purchased a few of the Series EE Patriot bonds.

If you have read WWII Remembered very carefully, you will find mention of Series F and G bonds that were sold at the same time as the Series E bonds. There are many mysteries about the F and G bonds.

After I satisfied my curiosity about the Series E Patriot bonds, I started to wonder about the corresponding Series HH bonds currently being sold so I set out to purchase a Series HH bond for my "collection." This is my story.

On approximately 17 October I visited the local bank (part of a national chain) where I received above average service from a customer service representative whom I will call Rep.

The next day I returned for the purpose of purchasing a United States bond Series HH. I had researched the requirement for purchasing such a bond on the Internet. I knew that it could be purchased only in conjunction with the redemption of Series E or EE bonds that were at least six months old. I also knew that I could add up to $499.99 to the exchange to increase the denomination of the bond purchased. I had some bonds and $500.

I was greeted cordially by Rep. I explained what I wanted. She told me that the EE bonds must be matured. I told her that I thought that she was mistaken. When she insisted. I asked he to let me see a copy of the blank form required for such a transaction. She refused. Yes, she refused to show me a blank form!

She offered to give me a toll free number to call to inquire about this. I asked her to call the number, but she said no.

As you can imagine, I was frustrated to say the least. I left the bank. I went home, got on the Internet (www.usbonds.gov), and copied the appropriate page. Then I returned to the bank.

I again went to the office of Rep. Even though I was angry, I was happy to have the proof in my hands. She read the extract , but did not agree with my interpretation. She said most importantly that she would not issue the bond. I was amazed, but left again.

Within a few minutes of departing, I read the documents again. The first requirement was that the redeemed bond be at least six months old. Since this clearly indicated that the bond need not be matured, and since we had not discussed that particular line, I returned to the bank and to Ryan's office.

She did not agree with my interpretation on this point either. However, she did agree to make the call to a higher authority. I sat while she called. I listened while she talked and asked the wrong questions. Without giving me an opportunity to either talk to the person or suggest a question for her to ask, she hung up. She said, see, I told you.

I left again. I could not spend any more time on this project that day. On approximately, October 24, I went to a competing bank. I asked a customer service person there to help me. Ultimately, she gave me a copy of the application form. In the first two lines of the first paragraph of the form it states that the bond to be redeemed need not be matured. I was amazed that it was stated so clearly. I was also angered that I had not been allowed such a form on my first visit to Key bank on this matter.

I took the form to the local bank from the national chain and to Rep. She told me that I owed her an apology for my rude behavior (more thereon below). I showed Ryan the form. She studied the passage in question.

She said "I suppose that I owe you an apology." Amazingly, she went on to say, that she would not sell me the bond because it was the way she had always done it. The statement about an apology indicates that she understood the requirements, but still choose to refuse to provide the service. I was beside myself with frustration.

I then asked Rep to sign the form simply stating that she refused to issue a bond. Not very surprisingly, she refused to do that as well.

I went to the competing bank. The same person helped me and in a few minutes we completed the transaction. The person stated that it was the first time that she had ever provided exactly this transaction for anyone, but she took a positive attitude and simply followed the instructions.

Ryan is correct. I do owe her an apology for my less than cordial behavior. However, I want to point out that I never called her a name or used four language. I did not shout nor raise my voice more than slightly. I did get upset, even angry.

I will in fact offer my apology to an appropriate high officer of the corporation. I am pursuing redress from corporate headquarters for my inconvenience. In the mean time I am looking forward to receipt of the HH bond.

Dear Gram,

You mentioned the fee for Fest IV is $141.00 for double Occupancy in Gram 767. You didn't mention single occupancy which I am not sure what it cost last year. Is the single occupancy rooms going to be available? Thanks , hope to see you at Fest IV.

Wes Hardy

Dear Wes,

Thanks you make a good point. I nearly forgot about the single occupancy. Heck, I DID forget. I also put the wrong double occupancy price if I put $141. Let's try again. $148 double occupancy, $198 single occupancy.

HAWAII Overprints

By Fred Bart

I read the submission by Jay Jackson concerning (perceived) variations in the placement of the black HAWAII surcharge on the face of the $20 denomination. As many of you know, presses used to print the series of 1929 national bank notes were called into emergency service to print the distinctive Hawaii issues. Both the small size NBN and Hawaii issues had brown seals and serial numbers. Additionally, each contained black surcharges unlike other US paper money of the era. The black HAWAII surcharges exist in the location of the charter number on the NBN.

I am unaware of any horizontal variance in the spacing of these overprint elements. Certainly, shifts or misalignments can occur in any direction, but the horizontal width between the surcharge should not be subject to alteration. I suspect that the "variation" that the keen eyes of Jay Jackson have spotted is secondary to paper shrinkage between printings.

One will recall that the BEP used a wet method of intaglio printing until about 1963. Paper which is excessively wet can contract beyond normal expectations between printing operations. When this occurs, the imprinted design actually shrinks. As the stack of currency paper dries before being cut for the final time, the dimensions of the individual notes ends up correct. However, the design is too small and the note generally exhibits a wide side margin. The 3/8" variation observed by Jay Jackson is certainly consistent with other examples of the shrunken design error that I've seen over the years. While I might be wrong, I believe my hypothesis to be most probably in explaining what was reported in Gram #768

Concerning other "varieties" on the $20s: one of the most interesting is when the right surcharge appears to spell HAWAH. If there is a downward shift in the black overprints--such that the last two letters bisect either a plate position I or L--the end result appears to be a misspelled Territory.

Although both the shrunken design error and misaligned HAWAII surcharge represent bona fide BEP errors, their significance is not especially important when one considers the emergency conditions under which the paper money was manufactured. Truly amazing errors on WWII emergency issues remain elusive.

New Discoveries and Observations

By Joe Boling

Guy Araby reported varieties in dimensions of faces and backs in gram 767. The Hawaii overprinted notes were printed using a wet paper (actually damp paper) process; differential shrinkage of the paper has been noted in those printings since they were created. (All US notes were printed this way into the 1950s).

He also makes a statement that MPC were printed using flatpress lithography. Where is this documented? I would be VERY surprised if a flatpress technology were used; it is not economical, and printers have been using rotary presses for lithography for decades. That being so, it is easy to see how (as he reports for stamps) plates could be stretched one direction while being curved for the press. It's a bit less easy to explain differences in dimensions in the same printing. One would expect that all plates would be curved the same way, UNLESS different model presses had to be used because of the volume or urgency of work. For series 461, that could easily have been the case. For series 541, he does not report whether any of those $1 notes are replacements, which underwent multiple printings and could have had different press setups. The 681 $5 we would expect to be uniform, but the same situation as conjectured for the 461s might have been true for the 681s--forced use of multiple types of presses to accommodate high volume. Fred and Larry, you have investigated the actual presses used at the Bureau (where the 681 series was printed); are there different model numbers? Does anyone there have any information about plate orientation on the presses?

Following my column last week on the anti-Soviet 100 ruble propaganda note, Herb Friedman (propaganda note expert extraordinaire) send the following information to me and Fred (which has not yet appeared in the gram, so I will co-opt it here): "I [Friedman] did an article on Cold War notes way back in IBNS Volume 24, No. 1. There are actually four of the 100 ruble notes, one 25 ruble note, and two 20 mark notes of the DDR. There is also the better known 1 crown note for Czechoslovakia. At the same time, the Communist nations produced a few propaganda banknotes during the Cold War for use against us. I did a second short piece in IBNS Volume 30, No. 1. That covered Hungarian and a DDR pieces." The article in 24:1 is quite detailed, including translations of some of the long texts used by the NTS. I should correct one piece of incorrect conjecture in my last column; despite the trident symbol, there appears to be no direct connection of the NTS to Ukraine. NTS was founded in Belgrade in 1930 (though I would not be surprised if there were many disaffected Ukrainians involved). The Soviets, in Herb's words, "were not amused," and conducted an active assassination campaign against NTS officers.

At the Tacoma-Lakewood Coin Club fall show this weekend, a local dealer had a hoard of high- bore JIM from an old-time accumulation (assembled on the scene in 1945-6). Included is a Malaya $1000 that SHOULD have black blocks MA, but has no blocks. It is hand cut from a sheet, and although completely printed (except for the blocks), looks like printer's waste. I was interested to see (if it came from the Djakarta plant, where so much printer's waste has originated) whether its print quality would match the note we cataloged as 2181a, or the low quality piece we called 2181aq. Naturally, it is neither. It is in between the qualities of the two pieces that I have. In the same group was a violet $100 note (SB2178b), not as spectacularly violet as the one I bought from Almanzar's the day they made me pay to look at notes, but still clearly not brown. Also in the group is an NEI 1000 roepiah SB2198. If anyone needs this, email me and I will see if it is still available. He had $650 on it, but I expect it can be had for less. I don't remember what all else he had--nothing that grabbed my attention--but it is a nice group of scarcer late pieces. I bought both of the Malaya pieces described above, so don't inquire after them.

Election Day. Will the close balance between collectors of AMC and MPC be altered?

I wish that I had thought of it earlier, but it is still not too late. For election day we want to vote on the most popular military notes. You get to make your own nomination and every candidate is a winner. Please tell us what your favorite note is and why.

I will participate, but I must admit that it is a difficult choice. I am trying to decide now. I will vote today and report tomorrow. In the tradition of all Florida elections, we will accept votes for a few days.

Dear Gram,

The service you received at that bank is disgraceful. It would help all gramsters if you would tell us the bank so that we may take our business elsewhere.

By the way, why didn't ask to speak to the vice-president or president of the branch?

Regards,
Ken Berger

Dear Ken,

Thanks for writing. The ONLY reason that I did not divulge the name of the bank was that I intend to push this matter with corporate management and I want to be able to threaten divulging the name to my "national newsletter." I expect to be able to announce the name because I do not expect satisfaction.

I should have gone higher on the food chain (see below), but each time I observed that there was only one more level of management in the building.

How do you think management will like a letter to the Federal Reserve stating that the bank refused to sell me a bond?!

Editor

WHOOOHEEEEE!!!

Yew made my lil' ole' ledder 'bout Hi-wah-ee 20's a article!!!

WOW!!! That's as big a rush as I got 'way back in '74 when I wrote Krause's Whorl' Corn News 'bout the Standerd Cat'log uv Whorl' Corns an' compard it with the Houston phone book [where I lived at thet time].

Anywho, the real purpose of this missive is to relate to you my "Rule of Four" as regards your tale of woe re: purchase of HH bonds.

Anytime one must deal with ANY bureaucracy, one must get to the 4th level to get exactly what you want.

The first three layers only have authority to refuse your request. If you are persistent enough to reach the 4th layer, you will encounter a person whose sense of self-importance is of such amount that they will give you exactly what you want in the means and manner you want it just to get you out of their office.

This works with all bureaucracies, including, but not limited to: all utilities, banks, insurance companies, schools and...[although I have no direct experience] probably the military.

The only answers you accept from the first 3 layers are:

"Yes, I will fully comply with your request!" or "The name of my supervisor is _____"

Any other answer [such as "No"] is unacceptable. Be persistent. The Rule of Four works...

Please excuse the vernacular approach to the beginning of this letter...sometimes being a 7th generation Texan wins out over my post-graduate, professional education...

Later, Y'all...

Jay in Garrison, TX

Dear Jay,

You are always teaching us! The fourth level. I like it (and will use it). However, that is also a little scary. Gramsters who are dissatisfied with their subscriptions, the editor, or other important matters will now know to go to Judy!

Editor

Dear "steamed" editor:

I am very sorry to hear of your troubles with your local bank. That kind of customer service is completely unacceptable, even to you. Might I suggest that you send THE BOSS (Judy) to go straighten out this situation with their boss. I am confident that she can deliver results.

Put my name down for FUN. Larry talked me into it...

H   A   W   A   I   I                      Spacing

By Pete Huntoon

I respectfully beg to differ with the interpretation given by Fred Bart for the cause of the spacing variations on the Hawaii overprints on the faces of the WW II Hawaii notes. I too have observed great variation in the spacings of the surcharges as pointed out by Jay Jackson, especially on the $20s. My bias toward the $20s is probably based solely on having seen large numbers of 20s together, a distinction not afforded the other denominations which I get to see only a few at a time.

The variations noted by Jay are documented in the seminal article on Hawaii notes by Simek and Medcalf in the December 2001 The Numismatist. See the photo of the $20s on page 1410.

The variations cannot be explained by paper shrinkage because it is too great. It cannot be a function of "using Series of 1929" presses either.

The overprints on 1929 notes - both national and federal reserve - were made from logotype plates. These are photo litho plates, not movable type set-up-plates where lines of type fit into specified slots or jigs. Thus the small HAWAII's on the faces did not occupy the charter number slots as speculated by Fred. (Notice that charter numbers on 1929 nationals also wander all over the place!)

What Jay has observed is variation between different logotype plates. This is exactly the same type of variation that occurs in any print shop between the manufacture of successive printing plates.

What would be valuable to learn from a nit picky point of view is how the variations changed through time. Specifically, are there several odd spacings within and confined to the initial, huge, rush production of the notes in June 1942, when emphasis was on cranking out notes in a hurry and not so much on quality control; and if so, do they become standardized when the heat was off? Conversely, do the odd spacings occur later in the series as new, shorter production runs were called for and new overprinting plates had to be made, sometimes without carefully checking what went before? It could go either way, or more likely both ways! I haven't compiled such data because the spacings seemed like a minor issue, and until now no one seemed interested.

Fred Bart's desire to tie the Hawaii printings to "1929 presses" based on brown seal color is problematic as well because the presses don't dictate seal color, that is dictated by the color ink someone pours in the ink well. Basically, the concept in a print shop is a press is a press. They are built to handle different plates (or seals) or whatever. They are quite versatile. In the cases at hand, we simply are looking at variations in the plates put on the same old presses.

I am uncertain what technology was used to overprint the Hawaii faces. Specifically, on the 1935A $1s, was the black logotype made with all the black elements: series, treasury signatures and Hawaii's, or were the Hawaii's added in a separate press run? No logotype plate proofs exist from the Hawaii printings in the BEP proofs in the Smithsonian to offer clues.

Note, the $1 Series of 1935A overprints were probably made on newly introduced two-color overprinting presses, brown for the serials and seals, and black for the Hawaii's, series and treasury signatures. However, the standard green seal $5 and higher feds required only a one-color press - green - because the series, treasury signatures and district discriminators were on the intaglio faces plates, not overprint logotype plates. This leads to the interesting possibility that the $5 and higher Hawaii's were printed using the same two-color presses as the $1s with the only black elements involved being the Hawaii's. Or, the $5 and higher Hawaii's may have required two overprintings: one for the brown seal and serials, the other for the Hawaii's. Some shift errors would greatly inform our deductions. Tell us what you see on them.

OKC Show Report

Bruce Potter

I traveled to Oklahoma City for coin show on Saturday. This is the first time that I have attended this show (formerly held at Norman). It was a superb show with numerous dealers and while it WAS raining outside all day long...the attendance by the public was great!! While practically all fields of numismatics was available....I spent most of my time viewing paper money. There were several dealers with MPC notes. I did obtain several beautiful Philippine notes (pre WWII) and a few MPC notes for various people. I did purchase a Series 521, 50 cent note (VF), 3rd printing at a reasonable price. It was a great show except for the lack of exhibits/displays.

Editorial

We have received a few nominations for "favorite note." They will be published as soon as the South Dakota (or possibly Louisiana) senate seats are decided. That means that you can still send us your candidate for favorite note.

Mail Call

Dear Editor,

The recent discussion about the Hawaii overprint currency got me to reading more about their use. In WWII Remembered (p430) it mentioned that these notes were used in some other operations in the Pacific. And, in Military Money, by Walter Rundell (p120) it specifies that "the first use of Hawaiian dollars as invasion currency was in the Gilbert Islands operation of November 1943. Thereafter, the overstamped series was used in all Central Pacific campaigns through the invasion of the Palau Islands in September 1944". It was in November 1944, after the danger of Japanese aggression in the Central Pacific had passed, that the restrictions on these notes was lifted.

David Klinger

Dear Esteemed (?) Editor,

I went to my nearest branch of Bank of America a few years ago in Northern Virginia to conduct a financial transaction. I did not see the Assistant Manager who regularly took care of me so I sat down at the desk of Customer Service (?) Representative. After struggling with her for about ten minutes, I asked for the Assistant Manager and was told that she was transferred to another branch about two miles away. I thanked her and drove to that branch. I was warmly greeted by my regular bank lady and she accomplished my financial transaction without a word in about ten minutes. After thanking her, I asked why she had been transferred and she replied that she was here to train another college graduate to be promoted past her. When I returned home, I was still irritated about her situation, so I dug out the annual report for the bank from my investment file and wrote a letter to the Chairman of the Board about how great this lady was and that she deserved her own bank branch.

About a month later, I walked into her bank to conduct some regular business and she signaled me to come to her desk. I walked over and she started chewing on me about how bad a person I was! Then she explained that she went to a large training session in Baltimore and the Chairman of the Board was there. He read my letter to the entire gathering then called her from the audience and announced that she was being promoted to VP to manage a new branch under construction in a community near Leesburg, Virginia. She told me that she almost fainted before she could stand up and walk to the stage. I have made it a habit to recognize good people when I realize that I have gotten better than normal service, and I always write to the absolute top person in the corporation. The sad thing is that they are always promoted and leave me, but I eventually find another person to take care of me until I realize they are also extraordinary too.

Dear Gram,
I did not seem to receive a Gram 766. Was it sent?

Bill R.

Dear Bill,
Yes, it was sent and I believe that it was even on time. I have sent another copy, but I had to shorten your subscription by one issue pending your next renewal. If anyone else missed Gram 766, please let us know.
By the way, Bill, what is your favorite note?

POW Tokens

By Larry "Ski" Smulczenski

"I acquired a set of three small brass tokens from a very reputable dealer sometime ago. The tokens are denominated five, ten and twenty-five. The five (cents?) unit is approximately 1.5 cm thick and just under 16 cm in diameter. The 10 unit, same thickness and approximately 22 cm diameter and the 25, same thickness and approximately 26 cm in diameter. Each token has the one of the three numbers stamped on one side and "POW" (Upper case P, lower case o, Upper case W.) on the other side. I was told they were Canadian POW tokens used in a German POW camp. Lethbridge is marked on the envelope (they came in). ...please advise additional history, value and usage."

I received this email from a Gramster, a couple of weeks ago. It sounded like a great article to share with the rest of the Thurski readers. I recognized the tokens to which the reader was referring, having seen at least one set of them, but I had to admit that my collection lacked even one example. The tokens are listed in Campbell's book on POW camp money, but not pictured. Campbell lists Lethbridge as being primarily a civilian internment camp which I disagree with. My data shows that the prisoners were comprised mainly of Rommel's Afrika Korps.

In January of 1942, the British asked the Canadians to assist them interning German POW's away from the combat zone. Canada had a number of camps open in the east. However, it was decided to build two supercamps out west in Alberta and to enlarge two others. Work began immediately on a camp at Lethbridge which would house over 10,000 prisoners. Actually, the camp held as many as 12,500 prisoners at its peak. Prisoners started arriving in May of 1942 before Lethbridge was ready to accept inmates. They were temporally incarcerated at a site in Ozada, Alberta. Ozada was a community on the Canadian Pacific Rail line located in the mountains west of Calgary on the Stoney Indian Reservation at Morley Flats. Coal from the Kananaskis Mines was trucked over land some 35 kilometers to this small town since it was the closest rail junction to the mines. It does not exist today and is merely the intersection of highways 40 and 1A. As winter approached, the prisoners were moved to Lethbridge even though it wasn't completed in November of 1942. Lethbridge continued in operation until June of 1946.

These tokens had to be used to purchase items available in the POW Canteen at the camp, similar to the way POW chits were used. The tokens probably preceded the cardboard chits and their use discontinued because of manufacturing cost and quantities needed for the operation. Value? Your guess is as good as mine. Campbell does not list a price. All Canadian POW items are scarce at best. The problem is that the number of collectors interested in these items is small. Therefore, because of lack of competition for the item, the price stays relatively low. I would still place the value above three figures each if you can find any.

A recent article in the Gram, reminded us that the Fest is right around the corner. That naturally reminded me to make my plea for items that you plan to submit for the auction at the Fest. I said last year that I would not accept any last minute submissions as I didn't want to miss events that were going on. Yet Phil Goldstein and I spent a full day completing the item listing. As a matter of fact, I had folks handing me items ten minutes before the first lot was offered for bids. So I'm going to try again. Please get your submissions in early as I will not accept lots at the Fest. We are going to set a deadline of 1 February and stick by it. If you don't want to send the item, I will accept an email with a scan and you can bring the item to the Fest. But please, please, please let me know.

Editorial

Thanks for writing in with your favorite note. There are a few nominations still in the inbox and space for some more. These have been good. We would like to read yours.

Having said that, I am still pondering my own choice (choices?). Even though I started this thing, I am not sure of the intent.

First, I do not know if I was/am talking/thinking about items that I have, or items that I would like to have. Want list items are always held in high regard.

A few fantasy notes come to mind. I love the design of the Series 701 $10 note. Of course, those are now in collections. Not too many years ago, it was a fantasy to see one. Now I think about a 701 $10 replacement. Now that would be a cool find. But, if we are going down that road, we might as well think big. How about a serial number one replacement 50 cent from Series 701! Now that would be exciting! I guess that it goes without saying that all of the MPC replacements that I do not have are fantasy notes for me. Heck, I get excited just to receive reports of serial numbers that I do not have.

I love all of my children. That is why I adopted them, and MANY of them have special stories. I have told many of those stories and will tell more. Here is a short story along that line.

I really (REALLY) like the WWII notes issued in Switzerland for British flyers held there. For many years that was the top item on my personal want list. I searched, but could not find one. Ultimately, I was able to obtain one via an auction in England. By the time that I located it and it appeared in the auction, you can be sure that I was not about to be denied. Frankly, I did not think that it went for all that high of a price either! But does that make it my favorite note? Probably not.

Still thinking about my favorite.

Fred

Dear Gram,

Gram 770 was a great one! Keep it up!

Wilder Quinn

Dear Gram,

I think that "voting" for the "favorite note" should have a "nomination" period first. After a certain period, your (most honored editor) decision team could list the three notes that received the most nominations. Then....a listing should be posted in the MPC Gram whereas each "Gramster" could vote the ranking of the three candidates(of course, the "decision team" could decide the number of contestants in the "final vote...it could be top 5, 10,etc.).

I myself was unable to "choose" my number #1 choice, BUT my choice for candidates would be:

Series 521 ($5.00 note)

Series 661 ($10.00 note)

Series 692 ($10.00 note)

Good luck to the "decision team" on deciding on which method to utilize in picking the No. #1 favorite!!!!

PK6

Dear Esteemed (?) Editor,

My favorite note is the MPC-like piece in my DRVN C&C book cataloged as D-M4. It is a 10 Xu (Cents) piece used on the Ho Chi Minh Trail by the NVA's 559th Transportation Group. Can you imagine it being spent for stationary or cigarettes in the small trail stations built with logs into the ground and hillsides strafed and bombed daily from helicopters to B-52s? U.S. special operations personnel were often tasked to bring back a prisoner from the trail for interrogation but they were often killed (so some you will find do have real blood on them) in the kidnapping attempt and everything on them brought back for the intelligence folks to look at.

That is when I was shown my first one and I explained that it was some type of financial instrument. It was very difficult for everyone to believe they were financial instruments under the conditions and very remote places they were used. But the prisoners verified their use and a second series without lettering replaced the first when the NVA spies within the RVN intelligence activities learned we had captured some of them. The second series was supposed to eliminate the possibility of placing the NVA in Laos or Cambodia, which was their propaganda line at the time, but they used their regular fonts and paper, so it was not difficult to attach them to the first series.

Million Dollar MPC!

By Doug Bell

The papermoneyworld data base of military payment certificates passed two significant milestones this week when the 7000th note was entered and only a few notes later the million dollar threshold was passed.

The data base is a research tool for collectors and anyone else interested in MPC. Collectors are invited to add notes they own or have seen to the database. The pertinent research information—identification, serial and position numbers, and condition—are available for everyone to use. Additional information regarding purchase price and other “personal” data can be entered but is available only to the person who entered it.

After the data are entered, the data base calculates the face value and catalog value of the notes. This information is then available to the individual and the general collecting public. The values currently in the data base are from the new edition of Schwan’s Comprehensive Catalog of MPC. One of the beauties of this approach is that as values change, they can be adjusted in the data bases’ look up tables after which all values in the data base can be updated.

The million dollar threshold was passed when collector Harold Kroll entered a Series 481 $1 from the fourth printing.

In addition to research opportunities, the data base provides many other benefits. A collector can use the data base as a permanent record of purchases (and sales). This then also fulfills a security function. The list can be a virtual collection want list available to the collector just about anytime from anywhere. If the collector wishes to make the information public, the list then also functions as a want list that can be viewed by collectors or dealers with orphans looking for a home.

More enhancements to the database are either being installed or are in preparation. Users with questions or comments are invited to write to me at doug@papermoneyworld.net.

You can access the data base directly at this address:
<http://www.papermoneyworld.net/user/default.asp>

How high can we go? As exciting as the report from Doug is about the data base, it seems something like a sports record. We got to this level after only a few weeks of “pushing.” We should be able to do better quickly. When will we pass $5,000,000 or 10,000 notes or even 100,000 or 500,000 notes! I do not think that I will see one million notes, but records are certainly made to be broken.

Doug is secretly talking about creating more data bases for entering other kinds of military money. He has some great ideas and I think that we will see another data base started soon and possibly several more fairly soon!

While the data base interface and other technical features are not [yet] perfect, Doug is working on those things and I must tell you something else. I actually enjoyed entering notes. It was an excuse to play with my friends and I had a sense of satisfaction as I worked on it. I still have a way to go, but I look forward to getting back to the task. If you have not tried it, I hope that you will.

Dear Gram
I may not be the first to ask, but did Ski confuse his cm and mm in his item on the Lethbridge camp and Canadian POW tokens or did those nasty Canadians really lumber the poor POW's with tokens weighing many kilograms?
Gramme A

Regarding MPCGram numbers and their relation to other items, 775 is the tail number for the first C-141A to roll out. Actual serial number is 61-2775, but most people just refer to the last three digits.

Cheers,
Mark "Sparky" Watson

Dear Sparky,
Oh no. There probably is no end to this possibility.

Editor

Dear Esteemed (?) Editor,
We all are regularly "warned" about a new virus or something else to do to our computers. In the October 28, 2002 issue of "eWeek" newspaper in their "Spencer F. Katt: Rumor Central" column, it describes the "www.urbanlegends.about.com" website. I checked them out and it has many other interesting items, but it does list viruses that are real and scams. This is definitely a site which should keep in our Outlook and/or bookmark, so we can check when the situation warrants it. FYI.
Howard A. Daniel III

Dear Howard,
You did not tell us what the urban legends site said about 651 fractional replacements or Series 701 specimen books!

WWII Material in St. Louis

by Joel Shafer

At this time, we are rapidly approaching the St. Louis auction. There are some great items in this sale including:

1) EIGHT different types of the 1000 Francs World War II phoenix notes from various French colonies. We are proud to have such an array of these pieces.

It is highly unusual to have so many offered in one sale. Areas represented include: French Equatorial Africa; French Guiana; Guadeloupe; Martinique; and Saint Pierre & Miquelon.

2) Two examples of the Morocco 5000 Francs of 1.8.1943 (Standard Catalog #32). The first is an issued example; the next is a SPECIMEN. It is critical to mention that this is NOT the Specimen variety listed in World War II Remembered. Has it ever been reported? Quite possibly not...

3) More French flavor: an outstanding piece for beauty and rarity is the 5000 Francs ND (1955) Tresor Public issue (Standard Catalog #M13s), made for the post-World War II French occupation of Germany. Take a good look at this amazing note!

4) A high quality selection of Specimens from the World War II era. Countries include Algeria, Belgium, Curacao, Denmark, Djibouti, Norway, Sweden, Thailand, Tunisia, and others. Many of the items can speak for themselves far better than any words can.

If anyone has any questions, please e-mail me at grbaypa@aol.com

Editorial

We have lots of new material for a second edition of World War II Remembered, but I have been hesitant to talk about a new edition. I had a deep, dark secret.

I was very proud of the electronic system that we used in 1995 to create that book. In addition to the laid out text (about 190 files), we had over 4000 illustrations. It required two gigabytes of storage. That is small by 2002 standards, but was huge in 1995. In fact, I have reported many times that the book turned into a file management exercise.

For a year or two after publication, I was careful to upgrade technology and create copies of the files in the newest formats etc. Then I got lazy, technology continued to change, old equipment failed.

The secret was that I was not certain that I could produce the files used for the first edition, thereby jeopardizing the second. I spent $1000 to have a broken hard drive fixed. The operation was a success, but the files were not even on the darn thing.

The ace in the whole that I have counted on for a few years has been some tape back ups that I made in 1994. I bought a $700 machine just to do the job and made many copies of the tapes. You expect that I lost the tapes. No, I have them, but I do not think that I can make the machine read them.

A few nights ago I found three cartridges marked as having the Remembered files! I was of course delighted. Other demands went out the window while I worked on the cartridges.

Of course they are a few generations old. I found the computer that had been used to create them. It was in the garage. You techies can put things in perspective when I tell you that it has a 33mh processor (yes, thirty-three). The machine ran just fine.

I own two of the devices used to create the valuable cartridges. The company first came out with a one gigabite version, then two gigs. I bought both. The trouble was that I could not find either! I searched most of the night. I checked the website of the manufacturer and learned that no current solution is available. Frankly, to my surprise I found the larger device! It was in a box, under some papers, about six inches from my feet! I had not seen it in years.

I was able to hook it to the old computer without difficulty and found that the files are there and in seemingly good shape! I was indeed excited.

Then I had to figure out how to get them from the 33mh machine to the one gigahertz dual processor machine with coffee maker on the side (ok, so I exaggerate). There is no direct way (SCSI vs USB if you really want to know). Technology is in the way.

When I bought the new coffee maker I found (bought) a little device that fought the SCSI/USB battle. It worked well enough then and I found it without too much problem, but the connectors just were not right.

That is when I went to bed. The next morning I found an old piece of hardware with the appropriate connectors. By putting it in the middle of the chain I should be able to simply copy the files to the new machine. Well, as you can imagine, that solution did not work.

I finally gave up and looked for external help. I found it in the person of a very knowledgeable, helpful, courteous boy scout type computer salesman. Basically he solved the problem, but it took an express package and some more worry, but ultimately, the task was accomplished.

Now all 4000+ files are on my lap top. Well, it is a little more complicated than that. Because of the back ups that were on the cartridges and some of the files that were already on the external drive hooked to the system, many of the scans exist in as many as four places on my system.

I know this because for the past three days I have been "putting the files in order." Each of the 4000 files must be linked to one (or in a few cases several) of the 188 "text files." [4000*188 = 752,000].

The "text files" were created in PageMaker in 1994/1995. PageMaker version 5. The current version is 7. I was amazed (and pleased) when I tried to open the first 1995 version 5 file with version 7. It worked perfectly. I was elated (and surprised), but the "system" got back at me for my joy. After five hours of opening files, examining them, and saving them in the new format something unexpected happened.

It seems that somewhere along the line (like when I moved the files to the cartridges), I had converted the last 10 or so files to version 6. Can you believe this, my version 7 opened version 5 files perfectly, but would not even recognize the version 6 files! I had version 6.5 so I tried that. No luck.

Eventually, in defeat, I checked the on line help. Under the title "conversion" was a nice discussion of various aspects of the problem. The final answer was that version 7 (I do not know about earlier versions) includes a very nice utility that will not only convert files, but can do that in batch mode. Twenty minutes after going to "help," all 188 files were converted to version 7! (I did all 188, not just the 10 that had not been done.)

I was particularly motivated to get the above conversions done because I am visiting Joe this weekend in Seattle. I wanted to have the entire book on my laptop coffee maker so that we can enter some of his discoveries while I am there. I expect that we will also discuss scheduling for the project and might be able to make an announcement about that soon.

Dear Gram,

I must be in Hawaii (or sun burn somewhere) as my face is red. My ignorance has evoked a huge blush. In my haste to reply to Jay Jackson's letter I forgot about the variations shown by Simek and Medcalf.

Peter Huntoon's explanation about the logotype plates makes excellent sense and provides a more logical explanation for the variations than the paper shrinkage phenomenon which I suggested.

Fred Bart

Dear Gram,
I guess it goes without saying, my favorite note would be Series 641 .10 cent.

Best Wishes,
Philip M. Goldstein

Dear Phil,
Ah, yes, you caught me. When I started this discussion, I intended to do one of two things. I was going to make a rule that Series 641 MPC would not be included and/or I was going to block your email address. Since I did neither, I guess that we will have to consider it.

Editor

Dear,
Re: the vote. I vote the straight party ticket, if it includes THE BOOK.
Bill Murray

Dear Bill,
Thanks (again) for the nice thought. While your nomination is not exactly in the spirit of the thing, it brings up another idea. When we finish this series, we can ask folks to tell us some of their favorite books for use in the hobby.

Gram Completes Another Successful Year

MPCGram completed its third year of publication yesterday, 11/11-Veterans Day. Actually, that day is the ceremonial day when a new publication year starts. In the case of the Gram, a year is called a series.

Integrating theater and military money

By Joe Boling

This is my second anniversary column; the first was 14 November 2000.

Fred has been with me for three days (departing in a couple of hours). We had an adventure Saturday night. Some of you know that I am an obsessive theater-goer. I had five plays and a reading on my calendar Friday-Monday, and went to all but one. Saturday afternoon and evening, while THE BOSS recovered from her jet lag, Fred and I went to two of them. The second is titled "One Red Flower: Letters from 'Nam." It is a rock musical, adapted by Paris Barclay from the book "Dear America: Letters Home from Vietnam" (Bernard Edelman, ed.). Barclay is a two-time Emmy-winner for direction; he has directed episodes of most of the significant television series on the networks today. He also wrote the music and the connective text for "One Red Flower."

Because this piece is still in development, he has been out here during the production, tweaking details with the musicians and the actors. There is a cast of six men and one woman (who plays the mother of one of the men). During the course of the play, three of the men die and one becomes a POW; the action covers April 1969-April 1970 (letters were selected from the book to cover these dates, and edited together to accommodate the six soldiers and one mother). Following the Saturday performance, there was a talkback session with Barclay, the director (Ron OJ Parson), the music director (Jo Lynn Burks), all of the actors, and as many audience members as chose to stick around.

Many in the audience were curious about the VN experience. Right in front of Fred and me were nine teenagers, four of whom had already seen the show, and brought five friends back to see it again. Of course, none of the actors is a VN vet (or apparently any later war); they were not even born yet in 1970. Even the production people had not been there (only Parson is old enough, and he had a high lottery number). So in some cases others from the audience answered the questions, which interested the company members as much as the other listeners. These folks seem very interested in getting the details right, so they were receptive to Fred's and my observations about uniform insignia, TA-50 equipment, and so forth. And money.

There is no mention of money in the script, but there is a perfect place to use some--a bar scene with a song titled "Saigon tea." So I hustled out to the car, where I always have a carton of mixed BNR Press products, and brought in a 4th edition MPC book to show Mr. Barclay what kind of money would have been used in VN during this action. Fred autographed the book and donated it to the production. When we told Barclay about commonly available sets of reproductions of MPC, he was eager to obtain some and to use it. So next day, after my matinee in Federal Way, I drove back over to Issaquah and delivered two sets of Chambliss notes, a crossed-rifle patch for their lieutenant's uniform, and written commentary about other details that need attention. Mr. Barclay said he would definitely use the MPC, though I don't know if it will get integrated during this run (the show closes here this week). But if he follows through, we will have struck a blow for recognition of MPC among a wide audience. Certainly, any vets who see it in the show in the future will recognize it and perhaps have their interest kindled in re-learning what they have forgotten about it.

Watch for this show to appear near you; if you see it, let us know whether any MPC are included in the action. Those interested in reading what I said about the performance we saw, or about any of the other 400 shows I am seeing this year, can read my daily reviews at www.tpsonline.org; click on "community," then on "message boards." Editorial

It is exciting to start a new Gram publishing year. Our year is from Veterans Day to Veterans Day and each year is called a series so we have started Series 4. These little twists were ideas of Brad Peacock.

By the time that Series 5 starts, we should be well over 1000 Grams. That is another day that I look forward to.

If you have been watching the national news carefully, you know that Port Clinton, Gram and Fest HQ was hit by tornadoes on Sunday. Fortunately neither HQ building was hit, no one was seriously hurt in the entire town.

This is by far the best excuse I have ever had to miss a Gram or two, but Joe blew my cover. Yes, I spent a few days at Joe's on "family" business. Possibly I mentioned that on Saturday. Anyway, you can tell from his report that we had a good time. We also got some brainstorming and other work done on some publishing projects.

We will refrain from the trick of many publications of calling this a double issue and thereby cheating you of an issue. We will extend everyone's subscription by two copies for the two unfortunate misses.

I will have some more comments on the visit with Joe tomorrow.

Fred

Dear Gram,

The Fort Worth (Texas for those of you that don't know) 41st coin show was held at the Amon G.Carter exhibition hall on Nov. 9th and 10th. Only two dealers that I found had MPC. I bought a 661 $20 in XF from one and three notes from the other. One of interest is a 541 .05 in VG with a shifted position number. It is position 13 and the 3 is a little into the scroll work next to the vingnette. It is an error but not a real dramatic one.

Next report from the Grapevine, TX show in two weeks.

Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics
Series 004 - Number 776      Thursdi    November 14, 2002

BNR 25 Years Ago and other goodies

By Larry "Ski" Smulczenski

The Banknote Reporter for November 1977 had a couple of items of interest to Military collectors. The front page headlined stories about two auctions, and a feature article by Pete Huntoon entitled "Alaska's Greatest Note." Inside there was a story about ANACS (American Numismatic Association Certification Service) beginning to grade world paper money as well as coins. Fred Schwan submitted a Series 541 50c Uncirculated Replacement note for certification. The note was serial number F10628327 and was certified as genuine. I wonder if Fred still has this note? Anyway this service eventually went away and some twenty years later the wheel was reinvented and we again have services certifying and grading notes. Hopefully they will experience the same fate as ANACS did.

Schwan's column "Military Vignettes" describes the Suez Crisis of 1956. It is a great story and leads into the use of some very scarce notes by the combatants. It all began on July 26, 1952 when Gamal Abdel Nasser announced that his government had seized full control of the Suez Canal. He rejected the protests of the western powers and their proposals for an international board to operate the canal. The Israeli's invaded the Egyptian Sinai on October 29th and drove westward toward the canal. Britain and France demanded all troops be withdrawn ten miles from the canal and asked for Anglo-French occupation of the canal zone. Egypt rejected this proposal and Israel attacked across the canal into Egypt. By the 2nd of November the Gaza Strip and key positions in the Sinai peninsula had fallen. French and British forces invaded the north end of the canal zone on November 5th. The United Nations met in emergency session and on November 7th called for withdrawal of the three invaders from Egypt. The assembly created an international UN command force to supervise the evacuation and to patrol the Egypt-Israeli frontier.

Major fighting ended on November 7 but the canal was blocked with sunken ships, wrecked cranes and other equipment. Great Britain and France complied with the General Assembly's demand for withdrawal by November 24. The canal was cleared and reopened in March of 1957.

The French issued a special military currency for this operation. Actually the notes used in occupied Germany from 1947 to 1955 were overprinted for use in the Suez. This was the 50, 100 and 1000 franc notes on page 113 of World War II Remembered (SB 833-835). These notes were overprinted with 'FORCES FRANCAISES/EN/MEDITERRANEE ORIENTALE.' Two legends originally printed on the notes were obliterated by black boxes. See SB 851-853. These are very scarce notes and very seldom seen for sale.

The British also were prepared to use a series of notes, the BAFSV (British Armed Forces Special Vouchers) third series, (WWII Remembered, page 177 SB 433-439) during the Suez Crisis. The notes were in place to be issued to troops being transferred to Egypt, but the number issued was probably small. These notes are very scarce except for the issues that were made available during the 1st Ministry of Defence Sale. Since both the French and British notes were only in use for only around two months, it is understandable why they are so scarce and demand quite a premium.

Fred also mentioned a very interesting set of unfinished essays of BMA (British Military Authority)

notes that could possibly have been in preparation for use in the Suez. Only one set was known in a private collection although somewhere in the back of my mind, I believe a second set has been discovered, either in another collection or in the British Military Museum.

Fred also had an ad in the paper, featuring Belgium Army Issues. Some of the values are bargains compared to the prices in WWII Remembered while others like the 100 franc note in fine are higher. So that goes to show you that some of us old timers didn't get all the good deals as

Editorial

Ski is correct (on at least this) about the MPC Series 541 50 cent replacement that I submitted for authentication. Somewhere in my archives is that note along with the certificate attesting to the fact that the 50 cent MPC is an authentic coin (!). It was the first piece of paper money every authenticated by ANACS. Possibly it was also the only piece of MPC.

I am back at the keyboard after starting to send this Gram. I discovered that Gram 775 seems to have not been sent! It was created, saved, and (I thought) sent. It went to never never land when I started working here on Gram 776. I know what the lead story was, and I even know what the editorial was about. I do not remember what letters were included nor if there was a story beyond the lead story. I will get another copy of the lead story and rewrite the editorial (although I doubt if I can do as well the second time). On the other things, if in a few days your article or letter have not been published, please send them again.

Fred

Dear Gram,

Congratulations on another great year. I think that the community is very thankful for the Gram and look forward to many more years. Please extend my subscription, I will pay in full.

MPC Kid

Dear Kid,

Thanks for the comments, but based upon the missing Gram 775, I am not so sure that we deserve the praise.

Editor

Dear Gram,

Just for the record, My favorite note is: Series 471 $5.00 note (Block position # 8)

Keep up the good work.

Gary Hansen

Hi Fred,

I have some great stuffings for the second edition. Good job with Schwannee Salvage Co. I'm proud of you. Just received, photos to follow: USA Purple Heart and Silver Star named to a Philippino. Could be WW I or WW II. USA Purple Heart and Bronze Star named to a different Philippino. WWII. One set has the cap letters all upright while the other pair has slanted cap lettering. A notice under Philippines should be made that MacArthur's boys both from USA and the Philippines including guerillas which were inducted into the USArmy in various divisions in the islands: during and after the Jap. Occupation were entitled as recipients for various USA medals and awards. By the way on the History channel this morning they had a program about the 51 Hispanics that have received the Medal of Honor throughout the various wars.

Cheers,

Colin

Response to Gramme A.

I remember writing a Thurski column about looking out my hotel window in Chicago and watching the snow plows clear the runways at LaGuardia after a heavy snow storm that closed the airport. I also remember apologizing for some statement I made with a Mea Culpa from my "alter" boy days. Then of course there was the Thurski when I rewrote history with Pearl Harbor occurring on the 7th of December 1942. There examples along with the centimeter tokens that you wrote about were not mistakes, but challenges to see if any Gramsters were really reading the Thurski columns and were they really comprehending what was written. Now if you believe that, I have a wonderful type set of Philippine JIM that I will sell you for the bargain price of only $1000. What do you say?

--Thurski

Series 004 - Number 777      Friday November 15, 2002

"Rendezvous with destiny: the money of wwii"

On December 7, 2002—61 years after the United States was thrust into the greatest global conflict in the history of mankind—the American Numismatic Association Museum will open "Rendezvous with Destiny: The Money of WWII." This new exhibit will fill the 5,000-square-foot main gallery of the Museum at 818 North Cascade Avenue in Colorado Springs.

World War II involved more nations and a larger geographical area than any war, taking the lives of more than 70 million people around the globe. The ramifications and reverberations of that greatest of all conflicts continue to impact the lives of every person alive today.

Money is the engine that drives war. Whether minted from gold, silver or copper, or formed from stone, paper or cloth, money was a major player on all sides of World War II. Regardless of its form or denomination—dollars, francs, lire, marks, pounds, rubles or yen—money was raised to finance war machines, counterfeited to destroy economies and fashioned to sustain lives. Today, it is a reflection of the people and nations that made and used it during those dark years of conflict.

Throughout World War II, shortages in material and manpower forced both the Allied and Axis powers to radically alter their coinage. For example, copper used to produce the Lincoln cent was diverted in 1943 to manufacture weapons. The copper taken out of pocket change was put to use in making two naval cruisers and destroyers, 1,243 B-17 bombers, and 240 field guns and howitzers. The zinc-coated steel replacement Lincoln cents collected today remain a simple yet poignant reminder of the effects of war on money.

This comprehensive exhibit at the Museum—operated by the American Numismatic Association, a 30,000-member, nonprofit, educational organization chartered by Congress—will showcase the coins, currency and artifacts from that great, global conflict.

- From the European Theatre, the exhibit will include Allied and Axis coinage that changed as metal was channeled toward strategic uses; German-issued prisoner of war and concentration camp money; occupational and military money; and Axis and Allied counterfeit currency printed to shatter economies and morale.

- From the Pacific Theatre, the exhibit will include Hawaii overprint money produced by the United States as an economic defense measure soon after Japan's attack on Pearl Harbor; Japanese occupational currency printed in the local denominations, such as pesos, guildens and dollars; and recovered silver coins from the Treasure of Manila Bay that was dumped into the Philippine waters to prevent its capture.

- From the Home Front, the exhibit will include U.S. War Bonds and ration coupons; steel cents, silver nickels and coins made from cartridge cases; internment camp and prisoner-of-war money; military orders and decorations presented to airmen, sailors and soldiers engaged in battles; and memorabilia from the 10th Mountain Brigade, which trained at Camp Hale near Leadville, Colorado.

For more information about this exhibit, contact the ANA Museum at 818 N. Cascade Ave., Colorado Springs, CO 80903-3279; telephone 719/632-2646 ext. 354; fax 719/634-4085; E-mail museum@money.org; or visit the ANA web site at www.money.org.

Joe Boling and I are the odd couple. We have known that and we readily admit it. We start the summer seminar with a lecture about our differences. I think that the classes figure this out within a few hours.

Overall, I think that we have managed to maximize the advantages of our respective personalities. Odd couple Until my recent visit with Joe, I would have categorized his personality as organized. I now wonder about that.

The Port Clinton black hole has been discussed many times here in the Gram. Joe has a black hole too; his is bigger and, therefore, better. I suppose that his is about three to four times the size of mine.

Joe's interest in the performing arts consume a good part of his black hole. Beyond that we are similar: computer equipment, notes, books, books, books, and, did I mention books and computer equipment?

On a small table behind Joe's desk (I do not have a desk, lotsa tables, but no desk) he has a pile of DVDs (music, software, movies, movies etc.). The pile is at least three feet high.

Here is the good part. When he leans back in his chair, his head misses the pile by about half an inch. He repeats the lean several times every hour without touching the pile. It is a miracle of coordination.

You might consider this an example of efficiency, but I am not so sure. It could be luck I suppose. You know that if I had such a pile, it would have been on the floor in a minute.

On the desk is a pile of seven (yes seven) remotes: televisions, VCR, CD, video disk players, and who knows what else. Ah, one of them is not really a remote in the sense that we usually think of. It is the mouse to his computer.

Here in my black hole, I do not have any entertainment devices. Well, wait, possibly I do. There might be a television over there in the corner under those papers.

Then of course, I probably should not say too much. In order to use my mouse, I must fold down a laptop on my "desk" (table) and use the top as a mouse pad.

I must make one last comment on another subject. When Joe and I were developing the title for the World War II Book, we might have considered something like "Rendezvous with destiny" but Rendezvous is much too hard to spell!

Fred

Dear Gram,

I loved your "Remembered" story. As a guy who worked with computers back when we wired them daily, then again when we wrote in basic and had key punch girls type the cards, and finally as someone who owned one of the first commodores, I understood your travails well. Years ago when the book first came out I offered to upgrade your propaganda comments. The offer still holds. I will act as editor on all the propaganda note comments. You need only send me any items you want corrected or brought up to date and I will be happy to return new and (hopefully) better text.

Herb

Hi, Editor'n'Gramsters!

I searched eBay for illustrations of Hawaii 20's to check for the spread on the words 'HAWAII' on the faces and found this pair showing what I meant by variance of the overprinting. The eBay item is shown in the link below.

<http://cgi.netscape.ebay.com/ws/eBayISAPI.dll?ViewItem&item=800846387>

You may have to paste this link into your browser box to make this work.

I hope this helps further the discussion...

Jay in Garrison, TX

Dear Gram,

Gary's trying to jerk my chain [re the 471/8 $5], apparently; or is this a nom de plume that the steamy editor invented?

Regarding the offer of the Philippine JIM set, I'll take it, as long as it includes the 100 peso PV.

So if you discovered while writing 776 that 775 had not been sent, why did you proceed to number them with a gap? 776 should have been renumbered 775 and the content of 775 salvaged when able and put into a future gram.

Joe

Dear Joe and Gramstes,

Ok, we will extend all subscriptions by a Gram. About Gram 775, I still have hope hopes that Bill Gates will return it.

Currency Restrictions in RVN

By Phil "IWANTMYMPC" Goldstein

While browsing the internet, I came across this website which had some quick statements regarding the use of MACV Ration Cards for use in Vietnam. Pay particular attention to paragraphs 7 and 9:

DEPARTMENT OF THE ARMY
57th Signal Company (COMSEC Logistic Support)
APO San Francisco 96491

SCCPV-UG-CR-CO    21 October 1969

SUBJECT: Information Letter to Incoming Personnel

1. Welcome to the 57th Signal Company (CLS). As a member of this unit, you will be a part of the United States' military effort to aid the Republic of Vietnam. Our mission is to operate a Communications Security (COMSEC) Logistics Support Center for U. S. Army Forces in Vietnam. We provide overseas depot, general and direct logistics support for COMSEC aids (codes, authentication systems, COMSEC equipment keying material, and crypto-marked publications), COMSEC equipment and accessories, COMSEC design controlled repair parts designated by the National Security Agency, and COMSEC special tools and test equipment. Additionally we provide general and direct support maintenance on COMSEC equipments in support of U.S. Army Forces, other supported unites and activities, and other forces in RVN as directed.

2.The 57th Signal Company (CLS) is under the operational control of the 160th Signal Group. This unit is organized into a Center Headquarters, located at Long Binh, and six COMSEC Logistic Support Units (CLSU's) located in Can Tho, Long Binh, Tan Son Nhut, Qui Nhon, Nha Trang, and Phu Bai. Additionally we have seven COMSEC Divisional Contact Detachments, (CDCD teams) organized under their own TOE's for direct support to the 1st Infantry Division, 1st Air Cavalry Division, Americal Division, 4th Infantry Division, 9th Infantry Division, 25th Infantry Division, and the 101st Airborne Division.

3. The history of this unit is an impressive one and dates back to 4 December 1943 when the company was first constituted as the 3110th Signal Service Battalion. On 18 June 1947 it was redesignated as the 77th Signal Service Battalion. The company was inactivated 5 March 1949 in Germany and was again activated on 12 March 1953 in Korea. On 15 April 1954 it was reorganized as the 57th Signal Company. On 13 May 1955 the unit was inactivated and reactivated on 8 August 1957 in Korea. Again it was inactivated on 15 November 1967 in Korea. It was reactivated 24 February 1969 in Vietnam. The 57th Signal Company participated in World War II-EAME Campaign in Northern France and Central Europe. In the Korean War, Summer 1953 Campaign. The unit has been awarded the Meritorious Unit Commendation, European Theater Streamer.

4. The normal tour of duty in the Republic of Vietnam is 12 months. The tour may be voluntarily extended. Personnel who extend for a period of six months or longer are authorized a non-chargeable leave of 30 days with free travel to anywhere in the world. The leave must be taken during the period between 90 days prior to the end of the original tour and 30 days after the original tour. This leave is not deductible from the length of the tour of duty in Vietnam.

5. The Viet Cong are actively engaged in terrorist activities in Vietnam. It is necessary to be alert at all times. The wide variety of hazards demand the maximum physical security measures possible under existing circumstances.

6. Maintenance of health in Vietnam is extremely important. Some points to remember are: a. All water is considered unsafe to drink unless you are specifically told by U.S. authorities that it has been treated and is potable. Exercise the similar caution where foods are concerned. b. A malaria tablet (chloroquine-primaquine) must be taken every week while you are in Vietnam and for eight weeks after you depart. Personnel stationed in some areas of the country will also take a dapsone tablet each day. c. Good personal hygiene is a necessity for prevention of typhus. Keep your immunizations up-to-date.

7. MACV ration cards are issued to all individuals. The following restrictions apply:

a. Cards are not transferable.
b. Sections of the card may not be removed from the central portions. Any card without the original four sections intact is void.
c. Exchange merchandise may not be transferred by sale, gift, exchange, or loan except as provided in the appropriate directives.
d. Cards may not be sold, bartered, or placed in pawn. Only one card per individual is authorized.

8. Merchandise imported to Vietnam and merchandise purchased at a PX may not be released in any manner to Vietnamese nationals, or other residents of Vietnam who are not entitled to duty-free importation privileges. Bone fide gifts of a value of $10 or less are exempt from this prohibition providing the gift is not a limited purchase item or is not purchased in a commissary or Quartermaster clothing sales store.

9. As part of a continuing to campaign to eliminate the black market in Vietnam, new restrictions have been placed on currency transactions. The first phase of this program is the introduction of a currency control form and the establishment of a $200 per month limit on the amount of MPC that can: (1) be converted to U.S. currency or dollar instruments, (2) be deposited in bank accounts and the Uniform Savings Deposits Program (USSDP). In the case of deposits to the USSDP on pay day, you may deposit any amount in cash not to exceed the amount of cash received across the pay table providing you make the deposit on pay day and show a copy of your pay voucher. The restrictions mean, for example, that you cannot go to the bank each month with your pay and make a cash deposit of more than $200, you may either make an allotment to the bank or be paid by an MPC check and deposit the check to the account.

10. R & R is available to Bangkok, Tokyo, Singapore, Kuala Lumpur, Manila, Hong Kong, Sydney, and Honolulu for five to seven days. Personnel must be in-country 90 days before taking R&R. There is an in-country R&R center at Vung Tau where enlisted personnel and company grade officers may go on a three-day pass. An R&R center is also located at Cam Ranh Bay for E-5's and below.

11. It is my hope that your tour with the 57th Signal Company in the Republic of Vietnam will be both a pleasant and rewarding experience for you. Should you be confronted with a problem that you cannot resolve and wish any advice or assistance from me, my door is always open to the personnel of this command.

WILLIAM H. BLATTI
Lieutenant Colonel, SigC
Commander

As many of you know, Phil Goldstein has made something of a specialty out of MACV currency control cards, so he was no doubt excited to find the above mention thereof. For me, the interesting part is how the hobby has developed so that we have specialists in areas that were unknown or little appreciated just a few years ago. I love it, and I do not see the trend changing.

However, the landscape may well change. What other areas might become specialties in the years ahead? Of course there is no way to know except to travel the road. It should be fun.

Fred

Mail Call

Dear Editor,

While unable to sleep early this morning, I realized I was looking at a photo of tree on crushed house at Port Clinton, Ohio.

Even in my stupor, I eventually recognized the name.

I hope that everything is well with all of you. This also makes me realize that I am no longer receiving the MPCGram; we sent a change of address, but I wonder whether it was received?

Please do resubscribe us.

Best,

Bill

Dear Bill,

Yes, we has an amazing tornado attack here in PC. Quite a few houses destroyed, but no fatalities. Power restored only three days later. The mayor called to guarantee that he would have everything in order in time for the Fest.

Editor

Hi! Can you still send gram #775?? I didn't receive it! Thanks Guy!

Dear Editor,

You let Gram number 777 go by without commentary. What gives?

Joe

Dear Joe,

We were hoping that someone would comment thus saving us the work. Of course you could have commented more than that we had not commented!

Series 004 - Number 779      Sunday    November 17, 2002

Bonuski

By Larry "Ski" Smulczeski

Well, I have procrastinated long enough about nominating my favorite note. You and I have spent untold hours on the road and this topic has surfaced on a number of our trips. The last time probably a few months ago between New Jersey and Washington DC. I don't think either of us has definitively come up with a firm hard answer that we could call number one and our choices probably change everytime we go through the exercise. You hit the nail on the head when you said that they were all our "kids" and like a good father we love every one of them. And you are absolutely right when you say that a great majority of them have stories associated with them. Stories about how they were acquired, or about their pedigrees or for how long we searched for that particular issue before the "legal adoption". Then there are the ones that got away! Those are the ones that cause sleepless nights while the ones in our collections only cause pleasant dreams.

Having said that I decided to go ahead and choose a note that I have to place near the top of the list. This note proved to be the key to unlocking some of the mysteries to the Series 481 multi- printing exercise that we struggled with for many, many months. Of course, I speak about the Series 481 $1, 4th printing note. You can remember how excited I was when I called you with the information that I had a 481 $1 that had the position number back on the right side and it had a 4 in that position number and that 4 was standing on a foot (serif) just like the first printing. The thrill of finding that piece of information had to compare with soloing that first airplane or holding that first child born to you in your arms. Pure joy.

I didn't own the note at the time, but I reported to the owner that I thought it was a great item. This was before we know a lot about the multiple printings. He eventually offered to trade it to me for an equivalent graded Series 481 $1. Again I jumped for joy.

So I probably can make a case for a large number of my "kids" just like any proud father, but after thinking long and hard about it, this one has to rate near the top on my list.

This is one of those unusual situations when I am preparing a Gram before the day that it will be mailed. It feels strange creating the Sunday Gram on Friday! There might be lots of MPC news in the next 36 hours and Gramsters might have to wait an extra 24 hours for their news. Ouch. Nonetheless, this is the best way to guarantee that we will not have another situation like last weekend when you had to go Gramless. Yes, I will be out of town this weekend. Unfortunately, this is a social obligation instead of a numismatic adventure. See there I go. Writing this in future time forgetting that it will be published in past time. This is way too hard for your steamed editor.

PS After all of the above preparations, this Gram is being sent on Monday! Oh well.

Fred

Boling's Favorite Note(s)

By Joe Boling

Looking at the bonuski column today, I suppose I need to address the issue of "favorite note" also. I have been simply ignoring the issue, because my favorite is always the one I picked up this week, or the one that was the subject of an inquiry by someone who lusted after it, or whatever. As Fred and Ski have said, we love all our children equally.

But his selecting a "discovery note" as a candidate made me think back over the several discovery notes that I have owned. Certainly the most valuable were two that I sold last year in Hong Kong. The first of those to enter my collection was the Japan 1946 1000 yen (SB946, page 320), which I bought in 1985. However, I had seen the other one three years before that, at the Boston ANA; I just didn't get to own it right away. That was the Taiwan 5 yen silver certificate with Amoy re-circulation stamp (P-S602). I didn't get to buy it until 1986, at 8.6 times the price it had been sold for in 1982.

Another similar piece was the 1 yen of the same issue, which I bought from Bill Henderson in 1983. All three of these were the first in Western collections to be recognized for what they were (or at least the first to be reported).

An even earlier discovery piece was the booklet set of FTPC, SB1001-1005 in black with covers; I bought those from Francis Sanders in 1976. Years later copies of them with correspondence came into my hands showing that they had been owned much earlier by someone in New Mexico, apparently not a collector.

A more recent discovery was the Malayan JIM $10 OSS counterfeit, SB2176b1q2. I discovered two of those in Bill Henderson's stock on 4 March 1993, and they remain the only ones reported. One had a corner off; it resides in a prominent midwest collection (not a steamy one). The better of the two is in the counterfeit set that I use for club programs, as an example of official counterfeiting by our side. Of all the notes discussed here, it is the only one I still own. I guess that makes it my favorite note by default.

But wait--I also collect bonds. And the hands-down favorite among them has to be SB1261, with an issue amount of only Y130,000 (which would be 1300 pieces if they are all Y100 bonds, and much fewer if some of them are Y500 and Y1000 denominations). Here is a case where we had the piece recorded in our manuscript before one appeared. When I was sent a Xerox of the piece that is illustrated in SB (page 579), I was delighted to find that I had to write no new listing for it--and even more delighted when I was able to buy it in 1990. To date it is the only one reported.

And then there are the medals....

I have been negligent (so what is new you say) about getting back to the subject of MPC donations to the ANA museum. The overwhelming sentiment was to leave the system alone. That is to have donations made directly to the museum. I certainly have no trouble with that. I still think that there might be room for separate donations or fund raising activities to raise money to purchase notes for donation to the museum. However, the current system certainly would not preclude this.

Chris Conley has been very agreeable about everything on this subject so it should be great to work with him. I envision frequent reports here in the Gram about the museum holdings. Initially, we need an up-to-date list of what is in the museum. Then we will want report of new acquisitions. At least monthly we will want to run a complete list. There is no telling how all of this will develop.

Fred

Dear Gram,

Thanks for clearing that up. I must admit the thought of a 26 cm diameter 1.5 cm thick brass token for POW's tickled my sense of humor (imagine doubling-up in a hand of poker). Nevertheless, I believe implicitly all items in the gram - especially those written by the gram's very knowledgeable regular columnists. The Philippine JIM type set sounds like a great bargain (I presume the notes are Unc.) and so I have just posted $1000 in slightly used unmarked bills in full payment. Should arrive any day now.

Gramme A

Dear Gram,

I gave a copy of World War II Remembered to the County Veterans Service Officer at the County's memorial service where it soon became the center of attention among the WWII vets and led the VFW commander asked me to give a presentation on military currency to the Post which I will be doing in February or March.

James Downey

Dear James,

Good job and thanks for the report! We look forward to a further report after your presentation.

MPC Errors

By Jim Downey

A thought occurred to me the other day while reading the section on errors in the MPC book. You cite the lifespan of the series as the main reason for the scarcity of errors. I have another theory that I will toss your way.

I suspect that the reason that there are so few trimming or fold errors has to do with the way in which MPC were issued to troops. As you undoubtedly know, most errors in US currency are culled from circulation by bank employees who are paid by dealers and collectors to set aside errors for them. Finance clerks, who would have more often than not been junior enlisted personnel, sorted MPC for payment at the finance units. If a finance clerk ran across an error it was likely set aside for return to higher up. Look at the effort to recall the 692 $20.00. It would not surprise me if finance training manuals had procedures for dealing with errors.

Like the bank teller, finance units had to account for all their money. If an error were to be set aside as a souvenir, the clerk would have had to replace it with his own money. How many clerks would have used their own money to substitute for an error considering their low wages? You have identified that there were few contemporary collectors of MPC. This being the case there would have been little market or network for culling errors for the collector. Aside from saving an error as a curiosity there would have been little incentive to preserve them.

It is a pleasure to publish the list of ANA MPC holdings above. I cannot remember if it has been listed before. Beginning tomorrow we will list the holdings as a standard feature in the hope that more donations will be forthcoming.

Mail Call

Dear Gram,

Chris Conley may be agreeable about everything on the ANA museum and MPC, but whoever he is does not matter, it is Chris Connell who is the collections' manager at the museum.

Joe

Dear Gram,

In the recent past I have stated that I favor the replica MPC, and feel it will be an enhancement to the collecting of MPC. This weekend I see for the first time, something that flies in the face of this. A seller on eBay is selling the Replica MPC in a manner that unsuspecting buyers may confuse them with actual MPC. The auction ads are factual, even showing the back of the note where, if one looks closely, you can see the word 'COPY' printed on the note. The ads are informative, giving details of who printed, when issued and withdrawn, where the actual MPC were used and sometimes even more details. All details, in my opinion, designed to persuade potential buyer to believe these are actual MPC. Even though the word 'copy' is used in the ads, the ads do not 'CLEARLY' spell out the notes being offered are copies. LET THE BUYER BEWARE.

Dick Freyser

Dear Esteemed (?) Editor,

You can place me in the confirmed attendees list for FUN, but I will be there only for January 10 and 11. I have been thinking about attending MPC Fest IV and bringing a large box with oil paintings of MPC with me, but I am not sure if the weather in Port Clinton would be agreeable to me. Besides the snow, sleet, ice and other nice (?) things about winter, do you have tornados there in March too?

Howard A. Daniel III

Dear Howard,

The weather may not be agreeable to Ski, but it should be fine for you. The weather inside Fest headquarters will be fine and you will not have to leave said headquarters because this year the two mile open water swim is optional. No tornados in March.

Editor

Dear Editor,

I found the story about the ANA display very interesting. Perhaps a little fanciful. It is certainly an ambitious undertaking. I note MPC is not mentioned.

Warner

Dear Warner,

The ANA does not consider MPC a WWII issue because it started in 1946. We simply used a more comprehensive approach in WWII Remembered. Frankly, this is better because we expect that the ANA will then have a separate museum exhibition featuring MPC!

Editor

Dear Fred:

okokokok...I give up...sign me up for the Fest although I have no known interest in Military Numismatics of any kind (unless you count Martin Luther and the Thirty Years War). I guess it's just the Party Animal part of me coming through.

Wendell Wolka

Dear Wendell,

Great, we have had a decided shortage of names with Ws!

More BAFSV Tokens and Other Things

By Larry "Ski" Smulczenski

All of us consider ourselves to be paper money collectors, but as the collection grows, it is normal to pick up other collectibles that go along with your paper money collection. I refer to the tokens, stamps, propaganda items, match book covers, postcards, ration coupons etc. that add something to your notes. If you collect war bonds, savings stamps are a nice addition to your bonds. If you collect POW chits, a match book cover from a camp that you have the chits from is a great ancillary item. Postcards showing a photo of a vignette from a note can add quite a bit when you exhibit your notes. Marv Mericle has done a wonderful job of acquiring the vignettes from MPC on card stock and exhibiting them with his award winning exhibit.

Anyone that collects British military notes is familiar with the fiber laminate tokens that were produced because of a lack of small change. Once a collector is exposed to these tokens, he has to add them to his collection of British Military Authority (BMA) and British Armed Forces Special Vouchers (BAFSV) notes. The tokens first were produced for use in France. You will remember that the smallest value of French AMC was 2 francs. At that time a cup of tea cost a service man a lot less than 2 francs, so small change was needed. Hence the production of a 1/2 franc token. These tokens were produced by De La Rue Insulations Ltd.using a brown plastic laminate known as CP3. Four different designs of the 1/2 franc token were produced, probable due to different orders placed with the company. There was a token with 0.5mm lettering, one with 1.5mm lettering, one with 2.5mm lettering and one with an incuse impression. All were octagonal in shape. World War II Remembered says that the tokens were initially struck, then printed upon. Van Elmpt in his book British Armed Forces Special Vouchers shows text sheets from which the tokens were punched. I have to agree with van Elmpt in that I feel that we would have many varied rotated orientations if they were printed after they were struck. Having said that, we know that there are examples of both coin and medal orientations on all the CP3 tokens except possibly the incuse version. What I mean by coin orientation, is if you hold a coin at the three and nine o'clock positions with your thumb and forefinger and rotate it about the horizontal axis, you will view the reverse properly not upside down. In the medal orientation, you hold the item at the twelve and six o'clock positions and rotate about the vertical axis to get the proper orientation of the reverse. As I said above, all CP3 ( the three printed 1/2 franc, the 1/2 and 1 penny) have been found in both orientations except for the incuse version. That one only appears in medal orientation, but may be reported in some rotated orientation in the future. Phil Goldstein reported the last find when he came up with a 0.5mm lettered token with coin orientation only a couple of months ago. That 0.5mm lettering token is very difficult to find in any orientation.

The same division of De La Rue produced the 1/2 penny and 1 penny tokens when the first series of BAFSV's were released in 1946. Again the smallest note in the BAFSV first series was for 3 pence, and again change was needed. It is reported that the CP3 tokens were not popular and thought was given to producing colored plastic tokens similar to those that were made for Austria. But for some reason unknown to me, the same brown laminate was again used but punched in circular form and the size for the two values was the size of a British shilling coin for the 1/2d token and the size of a 2-shilling coin for the 1d token. You will notice that the black printing on the tokens does tend to wear off with continued use. These CP3 tokens as well as the other plastic and metal tokens produced for NAAFI are great collectibles and add greatly to any collection.

Bond update—Yesterday I received the Series HH bond that the one bank refused to sell to me! At the urging of many of you, I will now write to the chairman of the board of the bank that would not sell to me. I think that I will send a copy to the chair of the bank that did as well.

Here is one twist that I plan to use. In the packet of materials I am going to include a draft of a letter to the Chairman of the Federal Reserve Bank explaining how an FDIC bank had refused to sell me a bond. This will be a draft letter so that the chairman of the refusing bank can have an opportunity to convince me not to send it!

Stay tuned. By the way, the bond is interesting. I will try to report on that too.

Can you reschedule?

Dear Nick,

Oh no. Gad, we have been through this before.

World Record Price---Maybe

By Doug Bell

A few days ago on ebay a Series 692 $1 sold for over $125. I was amazed. I called Fred and we looked at the auction. We were and are very suspicious of the circumstances. The underbidder with a feedback rating of 5 has four pages of bids in the past 30 days. The overwhelming majority were on auctions from the same seller. The others were on auctions of one other seller. We did not follow through to that seller, but the circumstances caused us to send a complaint to ebay. Below is the response that we received.

Thank you for taking the time to write to eBays Safe Harbor department. Shill bidding is a serious offense and we will investigate your report as soon as possible, usually within 24 hours.

We will investigate the accounts for possible shill bidding by looking at the information you have provided as well as our internal records. We will also compare this to bidding patterns and any other activity that may have occurred involving the reported accounts.

If we are able to find evidence of shill bidding, our actions can range from issuing an educational alert, a temporary suspension, or in some cases an indefinite suspension. The type of action that we take depends on the specific situation surrounding an individual account. Things such as the existence of a previous warning, the nature of the offense and the length of time as a community member will all be taken into consideration. Repeated violations of policies will often result in the suspension of a member's account.

Sometimes, what appears to be shill bidding may actually be a legitimate bidding activity. This can occur for a number of reasons, for example, a bidder may bid almost exclusively on one or two sellers whom they have come to trust. If we find there is not enough evidence of shill bidding, we may not take action against any of the reported accounts.

We assure you that we will thoroughly examine your report. Please keep in mind that due to our privacy policy you will not receive specific details of our actions. In certain circumstances, we may contact you by email if we need further information. We pledge, though, that an eBay Safe Harbor representative will quickly review your report of shill bidding and apply our guidelines fairly.

**Please do not respond to this email as your reply will not be received.

We know your time is valuable and we appreciate you taking a moment to express your concern to us. Thank you for helping to keep eBay a safe and reputable forum in which to conduct business.

Regards,

The eBay Safe Harbor Team

It would of course be interesting to see what if anything is done, but it appears that we will not know. An interesting point is the harm done to previous bidders. Take the buyer of the 692 $1, he/she should have the bid price reduced and if it has been paid a refund should be made. Ebay made no mention of serious action like that.

Late Entry

By Dick Freyser

If it's not too late, I'd like to enter my nomination for favorite note. As others have nominated discovery notes let me nominate the Series 481 $5.00 Fourth printing. With over 20 years of MPC collecting and owning this note for more than half that time without realizing its importance, I was amazed and delighted to discover I had a note with a higher serial number than what was noted in Fred's Catalog. I remember firing off an email to him with the subject line 'Discovery or Counterfeit?' because I didn't know where to catalog it, which printing? Was this an extension of the Third Printing? Subsequently noting, with the help of the MPC Gurus, the markings all being in line with Fourth Printing markings, and with them all agreeing (to date) this note is authentic, all add to this being my favorite note and worthy of the nomination.

Winter must be here. The boss is home today school having been cancelled. Show loves these days—I do not. The schedule will be disrupted at a minimum and work might stop! On the other hand, it did give me a little something to complain about here in my otherwise empty space!

Doug Bell’s article on ebay bidding practices should be a subject suitable for lots of commentary. We look forward to it!

The consensus seems to be to leave the Fest dates untouched, but we welcome more comments on that. Indeed, even though Dick Freyser thought that he might be too late on his favorite note, that is a subject that will always be welcome here a Gram central.

Hi Fred,

It was the 10th Division - Mountain, not brigade, that fought in Italy.

Cheers,

Colin

Dear Editor Fred,

Why not list the MSNS Show in the Gram ??? Several dealers including myself will have MPC or WW2 related items for sale. The show is always held at the Dearborn Hyatt Friday, Saturday and Sunday on Thanksgiving weekend with well over 100 dealers. Call me at my new phone number (248) 647-8938 for any info or questions related to the MSNS Show.

Thanks, Keith

Dear Keith,

Well, sometimes we need a kick in the head. Joe Boling will be there and I will be there too.

Editor

Dear Gram,

Please do not change the dates of the fest. I have already been through the excruciating negotiation phase of acquiring leave for the holy trinity (FUN,CPMX,FEST). This year I had to cave on bringing the whole family out to Orlando so they could do the Disney thing while I attend FUN.

I am concerned that if the Fest dates are changed, I will have to reopen negotiations regarding the changes to my pass. It has been my experience in the past that when talks resume, in order to make the necessary changes, some piece of new jewelry must enter the talks at the bargaining table.

I normally attend the Long Beach show. I would rather miss LB in favor of the Fest for obvious reasons as stated above but also, LB happens twice a year.

All you need to do is spend twice as much money at the October show, it will feel like you haven't missed a thing.

Please include my reservation at Fest and count me in at FUN.

Regards

Al Glaser

Hello,

Saw your free e-newsletter mentioned on page 4 of the November 26th issue of Numismatic News and would like to receive it.

Thanks! Jim V.

Dar Gram,

If you would not move the fest to accommodate the spring ANA convention (two years running!), you sure as hell have no grounds for moving it to accommodate a rinky-dink show in California.

By the way, where is gram 782? Dropping a number every week will get you to number 888 pretty quickly.

Joe

Dear Joe,

But how do you really feel?

MPC for Desert Storm

By David Klinger

While searching the internet, I found the following information from an Operation Desert Storm order. It specifically mentions MPC and should be of interest to other Gramsters.

Subject: 1ST COSCOM OPERATION ORDER DESERT STORM

David Klinger has done it again--found some great information on the internet. During Desert Storm there were comments in the numismatic media about the possibility of MPC use. Indeed, I speculated on the possibility myself. One write state emphatically that such use was contemplated. I challenged this statement, but never received an answer. This is a wonderful find by David. It has been inserted (along with other discoveries)in my work copy of MPC5.

Editor,

The scheduled date for Fest IV has been published for months. Many of us have made plans and travel itineraries for this date. Changing up the date at this time would cause to many problems, it needs to stay as is. Maybe Long Beach needs to change their show date to another weekend.

"The Critic"

Editor,

It looks like Rod and I will be going to Florida for the fun show this January, hope to see you there.

Wes Hardy

Dear Wes,

Great, see you in Florida. Now it is time to commit to the Fest!

Editor

Dear Gram,

A minor correction to Al Glaser's letter. Long Beach occurs 3 times a year (late May/early June, September, & February) not 2, which helps support Al's argument even more.

Series 004 - Number 786 Sunday November 234, 2002

Boling to Denver

By Bill Rosenblum

Boling has agreed to be the featured speaker at the DAWN (Denver Area World Numismatists) meeting on Friday night December 6th the night before the ANA Museum's WWII opening. Joe will be speaking on counterfeit world paper money. As unofficial spokesman for DAWN I hearby invite all Gramsters who will be in our great state to attend the DAWN meeting. DAWN will be celebrating it's 26th anniversary that night.

Gramsters Invited

By Larry Lee, ANA Museum Curator

All Gramsters are personally invited to the opening of the ANA Museum's World War II exhibition on December 7th. The opening will take place at the museum galleries. If there is sufficient interest, we will arrange a special after hours visit for Gramsters to the exhibit and to see other materials that were not included in the exhibition. In particular we have a nice group of Philippine guerrilla notes that I think Gramsters would like to see. Of course we can also display our expanding collection of MPC. After that we can adjourn to some Colorado Springs eatery for an evening of fellowship.

My Favorite Note from Texas

By Jay Jackson

My favorite note is an Italian AMC 100 Lire note with the black overprint skewed about 50% to the right...you know the note for its in your collection and is illustrated in WW II Remembered.

My favorite note was found by me in a Houston flea market many years ago. Later, I sold it to Johnny Rowe who sold it to Amon Carter, Jr., who died owning it. IIRC, you nearly had to give a first-born to get it into your collection.

But, that's not why its my favorite. It is my favorite because of its condition...best and most charitably described as 'G' for "Grubby." Yes, it is a VERY obvious error; an error so outstanding any collector upon obtaining it would immediately remove it from circulation. Heck, even a non-collector might pull this note and keep it. BUT, it circulated!!! Its wear pattern is consistant with lots of actual use for its intended purpose...providing a medium of exchange. Even tho' it is such a spectacular error, it was MORE valuable for the 100 lire worth of good/services its exchange would bring to the possessor. Makes one think about the hardships faced by an individual in the Italy of 1943-44...

Later, y'all..

Editorial

The ANA Museum WWII exhibit seems to be developing nicely especially with regards to making it a special event for Gramsters. Thus far Joe and Warner are the only two confirmed participants. I am still trying to figure out how I can make it happen, but I am sure that there are more of you from the area who should attend and might already be planning on it. Please inform us so that you can be listed in the calendar below.

Hello Gramsters and Doug! World's record huh! How about listing some "key" notes, and I'll show you a world's records! Like I'll pay $1000+ for a #461 $5 gem or records all day long for the other top 6 key pieces! I paid $1500 for the #692 $1 proof same time "that" note closed!

Influenced by the proof??! and from Larry "ski" Smulczenski $84.86! for another #692 $1, cause it is a "good" buy!!! A certified CU68 , I would pay $150!!!

SELL ME some notes at ridiculous prices! ((gems only!)) By the way, I paid $7500 for a #591 $10 raw and MORE for others! Why worry about a cheap note going 15 % over market levels! It only makes others that own them happy! Plus there are far more crazier prices than that example that I have seen on ebay!

Guy!

Dear Guy,

There are plenty of opportunities for world records at the Fest. The first that I would like to see crushed is "total number of Festers." Even "number of California Festers" would be a great one to break.

Editor

Dear Fred,

Please include me on the mailing list or let me know how to go about subscribing. I'm pretty new in the MPC collecting arena as I just began a collection last September. Actually, I came across a couple of old, beat-up series 692 fractionals that I had used during my time in Vietnam (1970-71) and thought I'd like to collect the four series that were used during the war. I then found the latest edition of the book on MPC and I was off and running! Well, actually it's more like a brisk walk as I still have kids to get through college but I'm enjoying myself so far. Anyway, I don't want to ramble on too long so just let me know about getting the newsletter and I'll talk to you later.

Best regards,
Terry

Dear Terry,
Welcome, I think that there is a spot left at the Fest!

Editor

Dear Editor
I've pretty much given up any hope of Ebay suspending someone for shill bidding. In my experience, unless the person actually lists the same contact information for both ids, Ebay won't touch it.
Just a couple of weeks ago, I noticed a Series 681 $20 note being auctioned off. What was interesting was this was the third time the seller was auctioning this note based upon the serial number of the note.
The same buyer had bought the note in the previous two auctions, along with a few other coin related items more than once through the same seller. According to ebay, not enough evidence. So, I've just made my own personal "Do not buy from list."

Cheers,
Mark "Sparky" Watson

MPC for Television?

By Sam Feedback

"Mail Call," which is hosted by former USMC drill Instructor Lee Ermy, It comes on history channel , on monday or sunday nights. On this show he answers questions of a military nature that are sent in by people across the U.S. I sent them a question about what is MPC and how was it used? They told me they are considering the question , however I don't know if they will use it on the show or not ? I think it would be a very good segment to put on the show. I wanted to let you know about this in case it comes up. It might even be something they would want to film at the fest? Email address of the show is Mailcall@digitalranch.tv

ANA beneficiary of MPC rarities

>From Numismatic News submitted to the Gram by David Klinger

An anonymous donor has provided the American Numismatic Association Money Museum with eight Military Payment Certificates from two unissued MPC series, Series 691 and Series 701.

Four notes from each series arrived in an envelope with no return address, reported the ANA.

Notes from both series were printed by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, though neither were issued.

Both were ordered destroyed in the 1990s.

Series 691 was intended for use in Korea as a replacement for Series 651. The Series 701 notes were intended for U.S. military in Vietnam.

ANA collections manager Christopher T. Connell said the notes arrived following an organized effort announced by the e-mail newsletter MPCGram to supplement the ANA's MPC material.

MPC Database passes mark, has sponsor

By Doug Bell

The MPC data base has passed 8000 entries and $1.5 million! Both of these thresholds were crushed over the weekend. We should reach the $2 million level soon and I expect that 10,000 notes are possible in December.

We are pleased and excited to announce that David Seelye has become the sponsor of the MPC database. His generous sponsorship will allow needed enhancements to the data base and other parts of papermoneyworld. Your suggestions for the data base are very welcom:

Do you remember the lengthy complaints I made a few weeks ago about computer life? I have a confession to make. It was all true, every word of it, but there is a twist.

Last night I was experiencing one of the small aggravations that I had with Adobe PageMaker (7.0)

while working on the WWII book. I decided to go to the Adobe website looking for work arounds and the like.

When I got there I found an update to version 7.0.1.

Within just a few minutes I downloaded it and had it running. I bet that if I had registered the software,

I would have even received a notice of the update.

Darn.

I received one preliminary report that the Pcds St.

Louis show was very good. A show report from a Gramster is very much needed.

Dear Gram,

I've received 786 and have enjoyed it all three times. I hope that there are not problems that are causing three repeat tries. Having gotten all three successfully, however, I now wonder if the first run of 786 now has collector value??? If so, I have all three editions of Series 786 <G> if anyone is interested.

--Chris Connell

Dear Chris,

786/2 is the scarce one. We had some unexplained difficulties sending out Gram 786. In fact, many of you did not receive it until today just a few minutes before ram 787. Of course we are sorry about the late delivery and any inconvenience. We are also a bit bewildered about how it happened, but then bewilderment is not all that unusual around here (as many of you know).

Dear Esteemed Wind Twisted, Mind Blown, Black Hole

Editor:

My congrats on the new milestone & I am looking forward to many more. I am looking forward to the Fest. Don't know what I will have to offer this time.
Maybe I will just soak it all in. It will have been less than a month, then, since I got up off the operating table so it might be that the only "feasting" I will be able to do is with my eyes and ears. My best to "The Boss" and may your Turkey Day be full of stuffing, FUN and the blessings of your God.

Best wishes from sunny, WARM, Flordia

Paymaster

Hello Leo,

Thanks for the good cheer and the same to you and yours. I too am looking forward to the Fest. Also looking forward to seeing you and other Festers at FUN.

Editor

Dear Gram,

Shill bidding is a fact of life - live with it. The only people to get hurt by it are greedy and/or stupid anyway. Determine what something is worth to you and set that ceiling - anything else is "just plain dumb".
Best example I see of shilling on ebay comes from MPCGram. I read of a really "great deal," "really rare opportunity" and "worth great deal of money" on an item trading on ebay. So I take a peak and sure enough the bidding is fast and furious and way over what it's worth. Shill - Scam, all the same , just a different way to skin somebody.

B0S0X36

Dear Editor,

I just checked the ANA website and discovered there is no mention of the upcoming exhibit opening. None.
Nada. Zip. It would appear to me that a little promotional publicity would be in order.

Name Withheld

Dear Name,

Your point is certainly well taken. I hope that the staff is reading the Gram!

only 8 are known in CU. Just recount P.289.

Guy Araby (date listed 08 APRIL 2002)

Page 398, Series #541 $10 on "UNC." price is $2500, on P.214 the UNC. price is $3500. Also the rest of the

Mixed and Miscellaneous (but Good) Stuff

By Joe Boling

If any gramster bought the Fort Devens three-piece 1c chit lot in the Lyn Knight St Louis sale (lot 1046), I am interested in acquiring one of the pieces; that's where I did my ROTC summer camp and a lot of ROTC training--in fact, the first place I used an M1 Garand rifle. I really need to get out and shoot the one I bought from the Director of Civilian Marksmanship (in Port Clinton) last year.

For those interested in the chit booklet from Kunming, China, lot 259--I bought that one. There are some extra nickel chits in it, plus the weird 35c chit. If some gramster got outbid by me, I apologize, but I didn't want to see it disappear into the void, so I put a saving bid on it and won it.

I can tell that Larry Lee is working his buns off preparing the WWII exhibit at ANA. Fred and I have been reviewing exhibit text for the past three days.
There's going to be a ton of stuff on display, and you saw Larry's invitation to Gramsters who want to see some of the other stuff in the vaults. But pardon me for taking some pride of ownership in the sixty cases of WWII material that Fred and I showed at the Anaheim ANA convention in 1995 (50th anniversary of victory).
Some of those items are gone now--distributed to other collections.

There has recently been an interesting thread in the eSylum (online newsletter of the Numismatic Bibliomania Society) about the desirability of selling a collection rather than donating it to a museum when the museum's mission is not specifically numismatic and the curator(s) not well versed in same. There have been several horror stories about museum collections that were looted because the staff did not know how to secure them or how to tell whether the items had been switched or pilfered. Which brings us to Ruth Hill, who insisted that her collection go to a museum, and who apparently truly believed that the museum would welcome, appreciate, and properly care for her notes. I don't know what the status of the major collection is, but there have been some recent sales advertising that they are handing Ruth Hill notes. What a shame. But that brings us to the alternative--releasing rare material to the marketplace, where interested buyers will be able to acquire it. A fellow walked up to me in London last year and told me how pleased he was to have been able to buy the 5c Alasvallei NEI internment camp note that I had (it went in the Hong Kong sale last year). I'm glad that it went to such an enthusiastic new owner.

I'll be at the Michigan State show Thursday-Sunday this week, training ANA judges. Then I'll be at the ANA exhibit opening Friday-Saturday of next week. If any gramster visiting either venue wants me to bring something special for examination, let me know.

Editorial

Joe mentions our exhibition of WWII material at the 1995 ANA convention. Yes, 60 cases crammed with stuff. It was quite a thing. Angus Bruce put in a few selected cases. It seems like someone else might have had a few. Possibly it was Kevin Maloy (Kevin was it you?).

There are a lot of interesting stories about the exhibit itself. I had a newspaper with the Pearl Harbor headline. Enroute to California (I drove) Japan apologized for starting the whole thing and there was a headline to that effect in USA Today. I put the two papers side by side in at case (along with lotsa notes and stuff).

We had a 48 star American flag, a Japanese flag and an Nazi flag hung to draw attention to the exhibit. There were complaints from someone (who did not bother to even see that the flag was part of an educational exhibit) and we were asked to take down the German flag. In a rare display of accommodation by me, I took it down. An ANA official thanked me/us for not making a stink. For that we got a thank you. I cannot remember getting even that about the exhibit except from Tom Fitzgerald who was a coconspirator with us. As usual, I was the last one taking down an exhibit, but this was different. First, there were 60 cases. Next, they were SERIOUS about the deadline. At the exact minute listed wrecking crews invaded the place to tear it down (and presumably reconfigure the hall) for the next event. Judy had to play security guard while I shovled materials into envelopes. Now for the best part of the story. Some of my material is still in those envelopes waiting to be unpacked. (I also have some envelopes of notes received from Joe waiting to be integrated into my collection. Those envelopes are from the 1970s!

Dear Editor:

The announcement in today's Gram about the DAWN meeting on December 6th is indeed good news. However a decent (?) editor would have included the rest of Kipling's 6 wise men - to wit, when and where. I will be in C Springs and will gladly accept the invitation if only I know where to go!! Rephrase: where the meeting will be held and when.

Warner

Dear Warner,

Sometimes it pays to be good, but most of the time it pays to be lucky.

Editor

Dear Gram,

DAWN meets at 7 PM at the Bear Valley American Legion Hall on Mississippi just west of Federal in SW Denver. Hope you can make it. Despite the name we do not meet in the morning, although some uninformed have been there at 7 AM.

Open Letter from ANA President

Dear GRAMsters:

I appreciate any and all comments regarding ANA. I want to respond to all who receive the great MPC Gram that the ANA recently placed a hot link at the bottom of the front page regarding the new "RENDEZVOUS WITH DESTINY: THE MONEY OF WWII" exhibit, which will be premiering on December 7, 2002.

On November 12, 2002 a press release from ANA went out regarding this new exhibit. This information could have been accessed through The Newsroom or Virtual Museum site located of course at, www.money.org.

Whenever you are looking for something on the ANA site please use the ANA Site Search on the front page. I use it to find old (and new) information that is stored on the ANA site.

On behalf of the ANA Board, Headquarters Staff and membership, I want to sincerely thank the MPC Gram and its dedicated numismatists for all they are doing to promote the ANA. I think it is absolutely wonderful that the MPC Gram has a scholarship fund to send some GRAMsters to the ANA Summer Seminar 03. The Gram also provides the instructors for the course.

Besides these, the Gram is a must site for anyone who collects military money. The stories in the Gram in the area of military money are very educational. The personal experiences by GRAMsters regarding their tours of duty are interesting and fascinating. They bring back memories of my tour in Vietnam as a U. S. Marine in 1964 and 1965. Unfortunately, I have no great experiences with MPC during my tour to relate to the MPCGram.

I will be at the Michigan State show this weekend and also at the FUN show. I am always available for conversation regarding the ANA or our hobby. Please E-mail me with your thoughts and concerns - both positive and negative - regarding ANA. I can be reached at johnnancyw@aol.com If the Gram wants to list the President of the ANA as a contact they are welcome to. Thank you.

Once again, thank you MPC Gram and all the GRAMsters for your many contributions to the numismatic hobby. On behalf of Nancy and myself (both attending the MPC Fest in 03) we want to wish all the GRAMsters a healthy, happy, safe and fulfilling Thanksgiving Day and Holiday Season which will be soon upon us.

Yours in Numismatics,

John Wilson, ANA President

Editorial

=====

This is one of those pleasant (rare) days at Gram HQ.
We feel warm from receiving news from the ANA Museum and ANA president (Ken Berger (below) makes sure that it does not go to our head). I must correct a few points in President Wilson's letter and comment on a few others.

The scholarship fund for the ANA summer seminar is not only for Gramsters. At least one nongramster received a scholarship in 2002 and it is likely that more will in the future.

The Gram does not provide instructors for the seminar. True, the instructors are Gram activists, but the Gram, as mentioned before, has no assets for anything. Indeed, the editor is expected to publish the Gram from the seminar. The good news there is that the seminar tends to create news to report! All of this could be just a cute little semantic game, except that the ANA does have a system allowing interested parties to sponsor an instructor thereby saving the association money. Frankly, we do not encourage such support over the Gram-Seminar scholarships, because we feel that the scholarships contribute more directly to putting butts in the seats, but there is at least one case where we think that instructor sponsorships are attractive. Instructor sponsorships can be charitable donations netting a tax benefit that the internal scholarships do not.

Regarding the promotion of the forthcoming exhibition I feel that John missed the point. Because a newsrelease could be found on the website does not mean that the event was given the prominent attention that it deserves. However, I visited the site a few minutes ago and found the link on the welcome page satisfactory—not great—but satisfactory. It is a satisfactory second step. We can and will assume that this step was planned long ago.

At the top of the welcome page is an ancient gold coin. This is a reasonable item, but it has not time value. It can be there on ANY day when there is not timely information to convey. Something interesting from the exhibition should be there linked to the current page which should be modified some.

Obviously we support this exhibition and many/most of the ANAs activities promoting the wonderful world of numismatics. We look forward to further expansion by mutual effort.

Fred

Dear Editor:

Shame on you for taking down the Nazi flag in your WWII exhibit. You let PC (political correctness) overrule education. History is history whether some people like it or not. You can not rewrite or change history just to be politically correct. This is why academic freedom is so important. We must allow all views to be heard. The sad thing is that you were not espousing Nazism but rather using the flag as part of an overall exhibit. That is what makes its removable even more wrong. As the saying goes, "Those who do not know history, are condemned to repeat it." You may say that presenting the exhibit without the flag was more important than not presenting it at all. But a biased presentation, based on the likes or dislikes of a minority group of individuals, does not do the exhibit justice. I hope you will never cave in again.

Ken Berger

Dear Sir,

I certainly cannot disagree with you. Am I the only one who ever deserves your criticism? (By the way, I LOVE the criticism. Please send more (seriously)).

Shamefaced editor

Dear Editor

Interesting about the lack of mention about the WWII exhibit on the ANA's website. I'm not accomplished enough to navigate through the whole website myself. However yesterday I received copies of Coin World and Bank Note Reporter and both had stories about the exhibit. I spoke with Larry Lee yesterday and he's excited. I'm excited. Hope to see you there.

Bill

Series 004 - Number 790 Thanksgiving Day November

27, 2002

Turkey thurski

By Larry "Ski" Smulczenski

This year the last Thurski of November happens to fall on Thanksgiving. In the past I have tried to associate the holiday with a banknote or something to do with the collection of military currency. This gets to be pretty difficult as there are very few vignettes of Thanksgiving meals or anything that you can even vaguely associate with Thanksgiving on a World War II note. I remember comparing the rising Phoenix vignette from the French Colonies series to a turkey being roasted over an open fire, but that was as close as I could come in the last couple of years. I have gone into World War II Remembered and looked for some ideas under the country name of "Turkey" to try and bring in that connection. There is a cute little story about Operation Cicero under Turkey, but I remember using that tale in a previous Thurski column. If you don't remember it, go to page 475 and refresh your memory. The military notes from Turkey are kind of lackluster, and I couldn't remember any stories about them, so I was left scratching my head. I decided to look at my chit collection and there under the seasonal title of Turkey, I found a set of three chits that I knew nothing about, but since we are talking turkey, maybe with a little research I could come up with some facts about where they were from. The chits themselves are denominated 5c, 10c and 25c and colored pink, white and green respectively. They bear the identification of N.C.O. OPEN MESS/ MANZARALI STATION/ A.P.O. 254, N.Y. The natural first place to start would be with the A.P.O. location. A great book for this is Geographic Locations of U.S.

AP0's. I have a very old copy and the organization that published this book has changed its name. I believe it is now called the Military Postal History Society, but don't quote me on that. Anyway, AP0 254 is listed as Ankara, Turkey and was assigned there in January of 1957 and redesignated as 09254 in January of 1965. That gives us an eight year time frame into which these chits can be placed.

I then went to Google on the Internet and after some hunting came across a history of Site 23 from the Manzarali Mauler. I suppose this was a base newspaper and it sounded interesting. TUSLOG (Turkey-United States Logistics) Det 27 was organized in Ankara on 1 October 1957 to monitor the construction of site 23. Site 23 was so named because it was 23 miles south southwest of Ankara and sits on 340 acres of treeless low hills. On 27 April of 1960, the post was redesignated as Manzarali Station by a General Order #18 and became operational at that time. Manzarali, by the way, means "view from the hill". This further limits the time frame of usage of these three chits to May 1960 thru Dec 1964. Reading the history a little closer finds that in December 1962, the post got its own AP0 number of AP0 663 and no longer did their mail have to traverse through Ankara. A check with the AP0 Guide confirmed this fact and now confines are usage to a period of two and a half years. That is not bad for pinpointing a usage time frame.

The mission of Manzarali Station was classified but its main function would appear to be that of a relay station, part of a chain of such stations including many outside of major cities, that formed the western military defense ring around the Soviet Union during the cold war. Although I could not find an exact date, I did find a New York Times News Service article that reported the transfer of this $15 million site to the Turkish Military as a NATO facility. I would guess that this occurred in the late 1960's or early 1970's.

So how is that for a Turkey column? I know it's a stretch but it's the best I could do. Hope all you

Gramsters have a very Happy Thanksgiving and get your fill of Turkey, ah-- make that turkey.

Editorial

Happy Thanksgiving. It might be trite to say, but I wish all of you a joyous Thanksgiving. In my experience, Thanksgiving day is a BIG deal in the military services.

Untold millions of turkey dinners have been served to men (yes, and a few women) in combat zones and within minutes of exchanging gunfire. Nonetheless, I, as Larry, cannot think of a military numismatic item with a Thanksgiving theme. Mementoes are often created for these days. The most common of these is a printed menu and I think one of those worked its way into WWII Remembered as a supplemental illustration.
These are certainly not numismatic items, but they ARE historical items.

I laughed when I first read Ski's article. I thought that he said that since Thanksgiving fell on a Thursday this year.... Of course I read it wrong.

Dear Editor,

I missed the early part of the controversy over the Nazi flag in your WW2 exhibit. I trust it is not too late to weigh in with an opinion. To evaluate the educational benefit of keeping the flag in the exhibit one would have to know how it was used. Was it part of the exhibit along with other items showing how the Nazis used symbolism to further their cause? Perhaps it was part of the exhibit along with other items showing how the Nazis used propaganda to manipulate public opinion? You get the idea.

What if the Nazi flag was just hanging there? What educational purpose did it serve then? Alone and out of context, what knowledge would we gain from seeing the flag about the awful phenomenon known as Nazi Germany?

To just having the flag hanging there without any specific educational purpose would be offensive, to me and to countless others. It is not being "politically correct" to remove the flag, it is being sensitive to the feelings of your audience. If that is why you removed the flag, I commend you for doing so.

By the way, we seemed to have entered the "post politically correct" period. Where being "politically correct" or doing the "politically correct" thing is definitely a "no no." Calling someone or an action "politically correct" is almost as bad as calling them or it "liberal."

Dear Gram,

Thank you,

Webmaster

Dear Gram,

I agree with Ken Berger, history overrules political correctness.

I assume it is not "p.c." for a person to collect such things as German issue Concentration Camp Currency, Prisoner of War Camp notes from Germany, Winterhelfswerk Notes, I can go on and on.. (most notes had a swastika on them)

The only way to prevent history from repeating itself is not by ignoring or burying the facts and proof of atrocities, but by educating the younger generations. This is done by items of historical value, such as a flag, coins, currency, propaganda leaflets, photographs, etc.

Anyone who demands such history to be ignored, removed, hidden (or perhaps burned) , not only encourages such behavior to be repeated, but also lower themselves to the level of of which Fascist Leader presented themselves.

Ignoring problems won't make them go away, but ingoring and subsequently forgetting history makes it repeat itself.

Best Wishes,

Philip M. Goldstein

Series 004 - Number 792      Monday    December 2, 2002

Bought In Plain Sight

by Mark "Sparky" Watson

Do you have a set ritual when you get home from work? I sure do. I walk in the door, kiss the wife, hug the kids, and then head upstairs to the home office and fire up the computer. After connecting to the 'net, I click on over to the world's largest marketplace, Ebay.

Like probably a lot of MPCGram readers, my first stop on Ebay is to look at the new listings under Military Payment. After checking for notes needed for my collection, looking for unidentified replacements, and seeing if there are any new high numbers, I start going through my pre-defined searches looking for MPC, AMC, war bonds, etc. listed in other categories. One night while using one of these searches, I came across an AMC 50 Mark note. After noticing the circulated condition of the note, I start heading the cursor up to the back button, as I'm one of those "Unc" collectors. However, just before I hit the button and forever passing on the note, I see the serial number starts with a dash. For those of you that don't collect AMC, a Mark note with a dash in the serial number means one of two things, a replacement note or much more likely, a Russian printing of the note. Reading the description, I see the seller lists the note as K196d (that's SB196a for MPCGram readers). I grab my Standard Catalog of World Paper Money, look up the reference, and, sure enough, confirm that the seller has listed the Russian printing version. Oh well.

Once again, the cursor inches towards the back button. But wait. Something in the serial number doesn't look right to me. The serial number has two zeros after the dash. Even though I don't actively buy AMC Marks, the ones I usually see start with something like 8 or 9.

"Honey, dinner's ready." Drat. My conundrum must wait. I bookmark the listing and go downstairs for some family time for the rest of the evening.

The next day after getting home from work, I began anew my evening ritual. After completing all the searches, I head back to the 50 Mark note. After pulling up the listing, I opened up the BBB (Big Black Book, a.k.a. World War II Remembered). Flipping to the section on AMC Marks, I look at the table on serial number ranges. There, SB says the Russian printing for a 50 Marks note starts with -40,000,001. But if that's the case, then the note listed isn't a Russian printing but in fact a replacement note! Could the seller have missed seeing the script F signifying a Forbes printing? I double-check the information I have and enter a place holding bid of $5, the starting price.

Over the next few days, I continue checking the lot to see if I've been outbid. With four days left - it's a seven-day auction - I'm still the only bidder. Two days to go, no change. Less than a day, I'm still the only one bidding on the lot. As the hours tick down, I can only think of one thing, snipers. With three hours to go, I up my bid to my maximum. I figure that at this point, I might as well just bid because if anyone else is interested in the note, I'm assume they'll be sniping and not nibbling; nibbling is my term for those bidders that bid twenty times in a row raising the ante by only a $1 each time. With five minutes to go, I pull up the listing on my computer at work (ssshhh, don't tell the boss). As the time remaining clicks down, I continually hit the refresh button, dreading a last second snipe. With a minute to go, I'm still the only bidder. Thirty seconds, refresh, ten seconds, refresh, 3, 2, 1... No snipes. I won! After exchanging the typical post auction email with the seller, I write a check for $13 ($5 bid, $5 for registered shipping, and $3 for bank fees as the seller is foreign), and send it away. Now the wait begins.

Eight days pass since I mailed the check. Ah ha! The seller leaves positive feedback on Ebay, so I know my check made it. Now, if it took eight days for him to get my check, maybe I'll see the note in eight more days. Sixteen days pass, and no note. Twenty days since the auction closed; the seller must be waiting for my check to clear. Twenty-four days and success! I get a slip in my post office box for a registered package. I go to the counter, and after the postman returns from the back, I get a multi-stamped letter from the seller. I jump in the car and hurry home to see if my bid paid off.

I enter the house, and immediately head up to my office; the wife and kids can get their hugs and kisses later - this is important! I neatly slit open the top of the envelope, and pull out the note, wrapped in cellophane. Grabbing my loupe, I look at the scroll in the upper right corner of the note. An F! It's a replacement note and not a Russian printing; bought in plain sight off Ebay.

So, the next time you see an AMC Mark with a leading dash, check the serial number as well. For the ½ to 20 Mark notes, the serial numbers for the Russian printings start at 50,000,001. For the 50 Mark, it's -40,000,001, the 100 is -35,000,001, and for the 1000 Mark, it drops down to -25,000,001. So if you see a note with a lower number, it's a replacement note.

Happy hunting!

After intending to depart for the Michigan State show on Thursday night in order to be there for the opening, I departed for the show on Saturday afternoon! At least I did get a few projects finished by staying behind.

Joe Boling was attending the Michigan event in order to teach a class on exhibit judging. He teaches this class each year at the ANA summer convention and occasionally around the country at events where the organizers are trying to build a cadre of judges. If you are affiliated with a major numismatic organization that might be interested, talk to Joe.

By the item that I got there, he was heavily embroiled in exhibit judging and related activities. I was able to challenge John Wilson with my MPCFest coin and earn a drink before Joe put me to work. We finished the work at 4am!

Joe got up at 8am to attend the exhibit awards breakfast. As you can imagine, I opted to stay in bed, but I did get up by 10am to complete my major reason for going to Dearborn. Well, I did not finish it, but I worked on it. I entered on my computer corrections to WWII Remembered that Joe has been entering in his master book for these seven years. I hope to finish the transcription in conjunction with the Fest or even sooner if the opportunity strikes.

Dear Gram

I guess I should lend my 2 Pence to the Nazi Flag Furor if the editor allows it. Actually this is more of a response to the letter of Mike Cummings, since I was not a party to the Flag incident and do not know the details. My thoughts below are strictly numismatic.

I've been selling items related to W.W.II and the Holocaust for 30 years and it is much to simplistic to say that the answer to who buys this stuff is "the Jews." My customer base for this kind of material, which started out strictly with the notes and tokens, and later spread to all kinds of ephemera includes Catholic Priests, various Protestant ministers, Rabbis, churches, synagogues, schools, individuals of all religions, Germans and no doubt Nazi sympathizers. No doubt the majority of my customers for this material are Jewish but since I specialize in what I call Numismatics of the Holy Land and the Jewish People from Ancient to Modern Times (I know that's a mouthful) the majority of my customers are most likely Jewish. And there are a great many of my Jewish (and non-Jewish) customers not want to have anything to do with this field. That's all their choice.

Thirty years ago there was precious little written about concentration camp money. Since then, thanks to various authors and researchers of many religions, our knowledge of what was used, why it was used and who used it has expanded greatly. No doubt we will learn more in the future.

I could go on and on but I wanted to be brief. You cannot cubbyhole and categorize collectors, no more than you can say "you can only collect this" or "you can't collect that." And those of you who know me, know that the last thing I am is a liberal.

Bill Rosenblum

Dear Editor,

There is nothing wrong with collecting Nazi flags (Fred, perhaps my response will not be in violation of gram policies if I frame it in terms of collecting.) or confederate flags. In fact, collectors of such items serve an important and necessary function, as do all paper money collectors. We have a right and even an obligation to collect such items. We preserve history.

All the same, it is offensive to many African Americans to have the confederate flag flying from the Georgia state house. The distinction is not terribly subtle. I'm sure gram readers see it.

As I understand it the ANA WW2 exhibit is an educational exhibit. It is not just an exhibit of someone's collection. None of the supporters of flying the Nazi flag have bothered to explain the educational value in doing so.

I was sure someone would bite at the pc - liberal comment. Down with California!

Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics

Series 004 - Number 792 Monday December 2, 2002

Bought In Plain Sight

by Mark "Sparky" Watson

Do you have a set ritual when you get home from work?

I sure do. I walk in the door, kiss the wife, hug the kids, and then head upstairs to the home office and fire up the computer. After connecting to the 'net, I click on over to the world's largest marketplace, Ebay.

Like probably a lot of MPCGram readers, my first stop on Ebay is to look at the new listings under Military Payment. After checking for notes needed for my collection, looking for unidentified replacements, and seeing if there are any new high numbers, I start going through my pre-defined searches looking for MPC, AMC, war bonds, etc. listed in other categories. One night while using one of these searches, I came across an AMC 50 Mark note. After noticing the circulated condition of the note, I start heading the cursor up to the back button, as I'm one of those "Unc" collectors. However, just before I hit the button and forever passing on the note, I see the serial number starts with a dash. For those of you that don't collect AMC, a Mark note with a dash in the serial number means one of two things, a replacement note or much more likely, a Russian printing of the note. Reading the description, I see the seller lists the note as K196d (that's SB196a for MPCGram readers). I grab my Standard Catalog of World Paper Money, look up the reference, and, sure enough, confirm that the seller has listed the Russian printing version. Oh well.

Once again, the cursor inches towards the back button. But wait. Something in the serial number doesn't look right to me. The serial number has two zeros after the dash. Even though I don't actively buy AMC Marks, the ones I usually see start with something like 8 or 9.

"Honey, dinner's ready." Drat. My conundrum must wait. I bookmark the listing and go downstairs for some family time for the rest of the evening.

The next day after getting home from work, I began anew my evening ritual. After completing all the searches, I head back to the 50 Mark note. After pulling up the listing, I opened up the BBB (Big Black Book, a.k.a. World War II Remembered). Flipping to the section on AMC Marks, I look at the table on serial number ranges. There, SB says the Russian printing for a 50 Marks note starts with -40,000,001. But if that's the case, then the note listed isn't a Russian printing but in fact a replacement note! Could the seller have missed seeing the script F signifying a Forbes printing? I double-check the information I have and enter a place holding bid of $5, the starting price.

Over the next few days, I continue checking the lot to see if I've been outbid. With four days left - it's a seven-day auction - I'm still the only bidder. Two days to go, no change. Less than a day, I'm still the only one bidding on the lot. As the hours tick down, I can only think of one thing, snipers. With three hours to go, I up my bid to my maximum. I figure that at this point, I might as well just bid because if anyone else is interested in the note, I'm assume they'll be sniping and not nibbling; nibbling is my term for those bidders that bid twenty times in a row raising the ante by only a $1 each time. With five minutes to go, I pull up the listing on my computer at work (ssshhh, don't tell the boss). As the time remaining clicks down, I continually hit the refresh button, dreading a last second snipe. With a minute to go, I'm still the only bidder. Thirty seconds, refresh, ten seconds, refresh, 3, 2, 1... No snipes. I won! After exchanging the typical post auction email with the seller, I write a check for $13 ($5 bid, $5 for registered shipping, and $3 for bank fees as the seller is foreign), and send it away. Now the wait begins.

Eight days pass since I mailed the check. Ah ha!

The seller leaves positive feedback on Ebay, so I know my check made it. Now, if it took eight days for him to get my check, maybe I'll see the note in eight more days. Sixteen days pass, and no note. Twenty days since the auction closed; the seller must be waiting for my check to clear. Twenty-four days and success! I get a slip in my post office box for a registered package. I go to the counter, and after the postman returns from the back, I get a multi-stamped letter from the seller. I jump in the car and hurry home to see if my bid paid off.

I enter the house, and immediately head up to my office; the wife and kids can get their hugs and kisses later - this is important! I neatly slit open the top of the envelope, and pull out the note, wrapped in cellophane. Grabbing my loupe, I look at the scroll in the upper right corner of the note. An F! It's a replacement note and not a Russian printing; bought in plain sight off Ebay.

So, the next time you see an AMC Mark with a leading dash, check the serial number as well. For the ½ to 20 Mark notes, the serial numbers for the Russian printings start at 50,000,001. For the 50 Mark, it's -40,000,001, the 100 is -35,000,001, and for the 1000 Mark, it drops down to -25,000,001. So if you see a note with a lower number, it's a replacement note.

Happy hunting!

Dear Gram

I guess I should lend my 2 Pence to the Nazi Flag Furor if the editor allows it. Actually this is more of a response to the letter of Mike Cummings, since I was not a party to the Flag incident and do not know the details. My thoughts below are strictly numismatic.

I've been selling items related to W.W.II and the Holocaust for 30 years and it is much to simplistic to say that the answer to who buys this stuff is "the Jews." Bill Rosenblum

Dear Editor,

There is nothing wrong with collecting Nazi flags (Fred, perhaps my response will not be in violation of gram policies if I frame it in terms of collecting.) or confederate flags. In fact, collectors of such items serve an important and necessary function, as do all paper money collectors. We have a right and even an obligation to collect such items. We preserve history.

All the same, it is offensive to many African Americans to have the confederate flag flying from the Georgia state house. The distinction is not terribly subtle. I'm sure gram readers see it.

As I understand it the ANA WW2 exhibit is an educational exhibit. It is not just an exhibit of someone's collection. None of the supporters of flying the Nazi flag have bothered to explain the educational value in doing so.

I was sure someone would bite at the pc - liberal comment. Down with California!

Page 398, Series #541 $10 on "UNC." price is $2500,

on P.214 the UNC. price is $3500. Also the rest of the prices don't match all the way to "VG" on this issue.

They should be the same price.

The Money Trail: Burmese Currencies in Crisis,

1937-1947, by Marilyn Longmuir

Reviewed by Howard A. Daniel III

This book was published by Northern Illinois University, but the author is from Australia and used many more British than American sources. It has the Japanese introducing military yen into Burma first, then they quickly replaced it with JIM. Is this true? The author also has the "S" JIM for Singapore and the "Guilder" JIM for the Dutch East Indies. And she writes that some of the "M" JIM was used in Burma in the early days. I remember my sources having the "S" JIM for Sumatra in the Dutch East Indies (DEI). Is this true too? Someone will very likely email me that the above are errors, but I am hoping the "S" JIM was for Singapore. The Indian National Army, a Japanese ally, is mentioned and the Azad Hind Bank being created to handle the funds of the "Provisional Government" led by Subhas Chandra Bose. There are also two sections on bonds that "paid" when their numbers were drawn like in a lottery, and there were separate lotteries too. The same chapter also has some great information about British SOE (Special Operations Executive) operative Mr. J.A.T Galvin presenting the idea in March 1942 to counterfeit "B," "M" and Guilder JIM, Thai baht, and Nanking Chinese dollars. An interesting paragraph is that they did not know the Burmese liked crisp and clean notes, and they had

"aged" their fake "B" JIM by soaking them in weak tea, folding and crinkling them, and rubbing some dirt on them. Has anyone found them in this condition? And there were a total of twelve intelligence activities operating in S.E. Asia! Some of them and their operations are named too. Good stuff! There is also a brief mention of the Japanese counterfeiting Indian 10-Rupee notes with limp paper and without "crackle," but they caused the British to add a security thread to their postwar currency. When the British returned to Burma, they would issue British Military Administration (BMA) notes with " Military Administration of Burma" and "Legal tender in Burma only" on them. There is also a discussion about how to handle the JIM, and they requested documents about it from the allies. The allies planned to completely demonetize JIM, so the British decided to do the same, but there was a brief exception in Arakan. There were a great deal of problems with completing contracts in the postwar period of 1945 to 1947 that were started during the war, and the realization that a value did have to be given to contracts and loans made in JIM denominations. So the British created the Japanese Currency Evaluation Act of 1947 to give a high value to JIM at the beginning of the war and very little value to them at the end of the war. Many researchers will be ecstatic when they see the many sources of information in the notes and the Bibliography of this reference. I can see book want lists jumping in length thanks to the Australian author of this reference! I tried to purchase it online from Northern Illinois University but could never find the right place. I want to get this review out as soon as possible so numismatists can buy it before it is out of print, so I will tell you it can be purchased through The Bookbin - Pacifica (seasia@bookbin.com) at 228 S.W. 3rd Street, Corvallis, OR 97333-4630. The cost is $21.50 plus shipping. Good luck in acquiring your copy.

If you are interested discussing the financial instruments of Burma, or other countries of Southeast

Asia, you can email me at Howard@SEAsianTreasury.com for the fastest response. I am often traveling but am always checking my email on the road, but my regular mail to P.O. Box 989, Deltaville, VA 23043-0989, and voice messages on my answering machines at 804-776-9161, can sit there for awhile. I am looking forward to you contacting me.

Editorial

Can you believe that I do not have anything to say?
Can't be, and it is not, but darn I seem to have writer's block. I suppose that I have an excuse.
Harold Kroll just called to complain about the scarcity of Grams recently. That is on top of a difficult day--Judy's school was closed today for bad weather so it was difficult to work on the Gram--or anything! I sure look forward to better weather tomorrow!

More Turkey

By Joe Boling

Ah, but there IS a turkey connection

Sorry, folks; Monday slipped right by me; it was the day I was returning from the Michigan State show.

The Thanksgiving Thurski, dealing with US club chits for Manzarali Station, was a good one. Ski worked the available resources to narrow down the issue period nicely. How many of you realize that we have bases in Turkey that are farther east than Moscow? Intuitively, one does not believe that, but look at a map. Turkey goes east forever.

As for a turkey connection for military issues, for which Ski felt he was stretching, there is a more famous one--it just happens to be WWI instead of WWII.

Since the gram is dedicated to the study of all military money, it's appropriate to include it. Look at Turkey P110, the 10 livres AH1334 note. The "x" variety (P110x) is a widely-available counterfeit that is thought to be a British product of the period. This is when the British were fighting the Ottomans, and Lawrence of Arabia was cavorting around the mid-east. The original 10 livres note is quite scarce; I have had a Turkish collector looking for one for me for months without success. He reports that the fakes originally surfaced in Canada (but does not say when); I wonder if a retired soldier took them there sometime between 1920 and their discovery?

An interesting feature of the fakes is that the small numerals "10" in the borders on the back are oriented so that they read properly from the left edge of the note. On the originals, they are oriented differently (not having one at hand, I can't say how, but I think the ones on the left side of the note are turned so that the numerals on both ends have their bases toward the center--anyone have one who can check that?). It would be a subtle but easy way to separate the fakes from the originals if you were a member of the perpetrating forces and did not want to be taken advantage of by your own fakes. My source tells me that these fakes now sell in Turkey for $20 in high grade, although most examples seen have been wet to a greater or lesser extent sometime in their lives; most are stained. My stained AU piece cost me exactly that ($20) in 2001 at FUN, but I have recently seen people asking as much as $100 for one. Don't pay it. Middle grade originals, however, when they can be found, are priced in the several hundreds of dollars.

While Ski and Joe have been talking about Turkey (the country) as a substitute for turkey (the bird), Turkey has been making international news as the possible (likely) host of US military forces for war with Iraq. Ski talked about chits from Turkey. It is unlikely that something as overt as that is currently being used in Turkey, but I believe that there is a military banking facility or two there. I have never seen any (that I can remember), but am confident that they are there. I for one would like to add such a check to my collection.

Dear Gram,

Somebody mentioned a few Grams ago, that a Caution List of bad deals / dealers / eBay sellers of MPC might be a idea worth starting

I've been mulling over the possibly of exactly that. Putting in a section on my MPC website dedicated to this subject. I would like more input from those who would like to see it before I make a final decision.

The reason I want it on my website and not part of the gram is I am an independent collector, as opposed to the Gram which is a community service, and although it would be doing a service in the Gram, in all fairness the Gram cannot align itself to a particular side of an argument.

Therefore I'm thinking of putting it on my website.

I guess the basics needed to start a section of this subject are:

Name / Ebay seller ID, item(s) in discussion and reason for words of caution.

I will not get in the middle of an argument, or arbitrate a settlement and in all honesty, won't be party to a battle of bad mouthing and mudslinging and I'm probably going to get into some hot water on my own just be putting this list up.

So therefore I'm soliciting ideas for the creation of a Caution List. What do you think?

Best Wishes,
Philip M. Goldstein

Dear Gram,

If you check Numismatic News, you will read that the Long Beach dates are:

Feb. 27 - March 2, 2003, May 29 - June 1, 2003, Jan 29 - Feb. 1, 2004, June 3 - 6, 2004, and Sept. 9 -12, 2004. Unfortunately, it did not list the Sept. 2003 dates.

Ken Berger

Dear Ken,

Thanks, but it seems like cheating to simply look in NN! Besides, we really prefer that our friends at NN/KP have to look in the Gram for info instead of the other way!

Heavy Lifting for WWII Exhibit

With the ANA exhibition of WWII money opening in a few days, the work is still not done. See the link below for Mike Wilhite of Iola, Wis., "driving" a World War II-era Army Weasel on Tuesday up the front steps of the American Numismatic Association Museum, with a little push from his father Bob Wilhite, from left, Shawn Henson and Larry Lee. Museum volunteer Mark Hays watches from far left. The vehicle is part of a new exhibit called "Rendezvous With Destiny: The Money of WWII," which opens Saturday. The museum is free and open to the public. The Weasel was an all-terrain amphibious vehicle used to ferry troops and cargo.

Pearl!!

By Larry "Ski" Smulczynski

This Saturday marks the 61st anniversary of the bombing of Pearl Harbor by the Japanese and the establishment of martial law in the Territory of Hawaii. Many of the residents of Hawaii were, and are, of Asian descent, and the loyalty of these people was called into question. Enemy aliens and Americans of German, Italian, and Japanese ancestry were particularly regulated. These civilians were not allowed to travel without a military pass, buy or sell liquor, assemble in groups, or own firearms, cameras, radio receivers, and numerous other items. Overall, the army had a much greater control over day-to-day events in Hawaii than in any other U.S. territory or state since the Reconstruction. There were many restrictive orders, proclamations and rules which pitted wartime security against the constitutional rights of Hawaii's residents.

Some of the civil liberties taken from people of Hawaii after the bombing of Pearl Harbor include substitution of military courts for civil courts, a prohibition against the summoning of grand juries, trial by jury and criminal law administered entirely by the military. Censorship was imposed on mail, as well as inter-island and trans-Pacific telephone calls, radio scripts, and newspapers. Phone conversations not in English were banned as well as Japanese vernacular newspapers and foreign language radio programs. A ban was imposed on film development without a permit. All civilians over the age of six were registered and fingerprinted and required to carry identification cards on their persons at all times. Cash withdrawals from personal and business accounts were limited and in July of 1942 the special overprinted HAWAII currency was issued for exclusive use on the islands. Additionally, a curfew for all residents was initiated, and gasoline was rationed. Within ten days, after the attack on Pearl Harbor, gasoline ration coupons were printed and began to be distributed to the populace of Hawaii. Allocations were for 10 gallons of gasoline per month. The coupons were relatively small, measuring approximately 1 3/4 inches wide by 2 3/4 to 3 inches high. Those observed have been for quantities of one and five gallons. Printed on the coupon was the wording "Gasoline Coupon / Territory of Hawaii / Office of the Military Governor / Fort Shafter, T.H. / Good for / 1 / Gallon / By order of the / Military Governor" The coupon then had the printed signature of Thomas H. Green, followed by his rank and title. The coupons are known with Green's rank as Lt.Colonel thru Brig. General and his title changes from JAG (Judge Advocate General) to that of the Military Governor. Each coupon is serially numbered at the bottom. On most of the ration coupons a letter approximately and inch and a half high is stamped. Various letters from "C" through "O" have been observed. The one coupon in my collection that has Green's rank as Lt. Colonel does not have a letter stamped on it. It is believed that this is one of the first series of coupons issued, because of the rank and title where Green was a member of the JAG Department but listed as the "Executive", meaning that he was charged with enforcing military law. It seems logical to assume that the letters were then applied to invalidate older series of coupons or to activate a new series on a given date if multiple series were issued at the same time. Phil Goldstein owns a series "C" coupon on which Green's rank is promoted to colonel but his title remains as JAGD, Executive. I have a "G" coupon with the same rank and title but by the time series "J" was issued, Green had been promoted to the rank of brig general and appears to have assumed the role of military governor as no mention is made of JAG. General green eventually retired as a major general.

We currently have not found out when these different series of coupons were issued or their usage dates. We do know that martial law continued until 24 October 1944 or a little over 34 1/2 months. By assuming that each letter series was used, it is possible that they were each valid for about two months. But of course there could be additional letters out there through "Z" that we haven't seen and also gas rationing could have continued long after martial law was terminated. I am trying to find the dates on which General Green was promoted, this would give us some idea when the coupon with the rank change were issued. There are lots of questions that remain unanswered here, but again it is another interesting, lightly explored subject. You can see these coupons by clicking on the link

www.papermoneyworld.net/grams/thurskil20502.htm I notice that the large stamped letter on some of the coupons does not show well. The red coupon with serial number 6216 has an "L" on it while the orange 1 gallon (5395) and 5 gallon (43784) have "N's."

The anniversary of Pearl Harbor is one of those special days every year. This year it is made even more so by the historic opening of the ANA exhibition of WWII numismatics. We expect to have lots more to say about all of this in the days ahead, and even in the months ahead (regarding the exhibition). Of course many of the reports will come from you and we look forward to every one.

For a change we are thinking about these things at least a few days ahead. If you have special memories about Pearl, please send them for use on Saturday. You might remember where you were when you heard the news, or you may have stories from a family member. We would like to hear them. [The numismatic connection is that you are a Gramster!]

Series 004 - Number 796 Friday December 6, 2002

Secretary Paul O'Neil Out

Breaking news from Washington is that Secretary of the Treasury Paul O'Neil is resigning. At this time there are no details regarding effective date or replacement.

My thoughts on MPC VOID Notes

Philip M. Goldstein

Lately, there seems to be a great influx on the MPC Market of the "VOID" or "EVIDENCE" Overprint notes. These notes are known to exist, which in itself is not the problem, but the increasing occurrences of these notes being made for sale is becoming a concern.

There are to date, two distinct types of these stamps or overprints, and they are known only on the $1, $5, $10, and $20 denominations. The Type 1 (purple/magenta) overprint is much more common than the Type 2 (black), and with the Type 1, of the four denominations listed, the $1 and $20 examples are the most prolific, and the $5 and $10 being the scarcer:

Type 1

Ink Color:

Magenta

Style:

Text in a rectangular box, measuring 3 5/8" x 2 1/8"

Text:

NOT NEGOTIABLE

VOID

VALID AS EVIDENCE ONLY

Type 2

Ink Color:

Black

Style:

Simple two line statement

Text:

NOT NEGOTIABLE

CID EVIDENCE

In short, MPC that was used in illegal deeds (black marketeering, drugs, etc..) that was confiscated by Military Officials, was stamped with one of the two overprints, and thereby deemed the confiscated MPC worthless.

Now the exact amount of MPC that was confiscated and stamped is unknown, and in reality with the large amount of illegal activities in Vietnam, theoretically, there should be great quantities. Examples have surfaced since the US withdrawal from Vietnam in 1973, but they were far and few between, and did warrant a premium over the regular value of the note that was stamped.

Lately, however it seems that within the last year, there has been an explosion of availability and regularity of the notes, and for no confirmed or publicized reason. At the time of this writing, 12/03/02 (and in truth the inspiration) of this section of this webpage, a paper money dealer located in Vietnam offered both overprint types in several denominations on eBay.

An article by Bill McNease in both the MPCGram, and the book: Military Payment Certificates, 4th Edition by Fred Schwan, explains in detail on page 143, how these overprints came to be. He also states that "The notes were mostly five and ten dollar notes with very few twenty dollar notes. I do not recall and one dollar notes that were stamped but there must have been some. I think we just discarded the fractionals."

Yet, the most common of the VOID overprints are the $1 and $20 dollar notes. I know there must have been other bases involved with prosecuting offenders and confiscating MPC, but it seems true to form (for the military) that for the most part, the same guidelines and procedures would apply theater wide. Which leaves one to wonder why the $1 and $20 were not common there and now are, and the $5 and $10 which were prolific, but now aren't.

A perfectly legitimate reason for an influx of these VOID notes, could be a horde or cache of the confiscated notes was uncovered or located in Vietnam, and dispersal started when trade with Vietnam resumed, as a result of the lifting of the trade embargo in 1994, and the signing of the bi-lateral trade agreement in 2000, about when these notes started appearing prolifically. However, one would think, a discovery of this magnitude would warrant a story or article in a newspaper or numismatic journal. It could have been discovered and kept quiet to boost profits, but I doubt this as the notes are appearing from different sources, sellers, etc.. and as the $5 and $10 notes are still scarce.

Therefore, I have a very strong suspicion, and no proof to substantiate what I am about to say, and I'm sure some people will dispute it, but I firmly believe that the recent offerings of the VOID notes are modern counterfeits. Meaning someone replicated the overprint stamps, or even possibly found the original stamps, and is stamping regular circulated MPC notes to try and sell to command a higher price. I urge all MPC collectors to exercise the utmost vigilance in purchasing these notes. With as many notes as have come on the market in recent months, their availability has become much easier, with many MPC dealers having a selection of these notes in varying grades. I feel a substantial premium for these notes is no longer warranted, and maybe only a small price difference reflecting the availability differences of $5 and $10 and the $1 and $20 notes of Type 1.

I was surprised at the timing of Secretary O'Neil's resignation as Secretary of the Treasury. Certainly there have been rumors about changes in President Bush's financial team, but I did not expect to see a change this abruptly. Of course, the administration did not consult me and who really cares what I think? However, the change of this position is always of interest to paper money collectors because it means that ultimately there will be a new signature on our circulating paper money. That is not so terribly important for our specialty, except that O'Neil's (I love it, two apostrophe's in one word) signature also appears on the current Patriot Bonds. He was also the father so to speak of this issue so this change does have some significance for us.

"RENDEZVOUS WITH DESTINY EXHIBIT OPENS

Today - 61 years after the United States was thrust into the greatest global conflict in the history of mankind - the ANA Money Museum opened its latest exhibit, which fills the 5,000-square-foot main gallery of the Museum in Colorado Springs, Colorado.

Money is the engine that drives war. Whether minted from gold, silver or copper, or formed from stone, paper or cloth, money was a major player on all sides of World War II. Regardless of its form or denomination - dollars, francs, lire, marks, pounds, rubles or yen - money was raised to finance war machines, counterfeited to destroy economies and fashioned to sustain lives. Today, it is a reflection of the people and nations that made and used it during those dark years of conflict.

Numismatic publisher Chet Krause and New Jersey coin dealer Harry Garrison provided special support for the American Numismatic Association Money Museum's newest exhibit, "Rendezvous with Destiny: The Money of WWII."

Krause loaned the ANA an M-29 Cargo Carrier "Weasel" from his extensive, personal collection of World War II-era vehicles and weapons.

"The ANA is grateful to Chet (Krause) for the loan of the Weasel by Chet," says ANA Executive Director Edward C. Rochette. "These vehicles were used by the Allies on many fronts throughout the war and employed by the 10th Mountain Division, which trained here in Colorado. Adna Wilde, who serves as the Association's treasurer and is an ANA past president, was in the 10th Mountain and remembers these track vehicles pushing over rough terrain and snow in the Italian Alps."

Built by the Studebaker Car Company of South Bend,

Indiana, from 1942-45, the Weasel hauled soldiers and equipment over a variety of terrain where wheeled vehicles could not hack out a path. Krause's Weasel arrived at the ANA Museum in Colorado Springs on a trailer and was driven up the front steps of the building and through the front doors, where it was gingerly moved onto a platform specially built for the exhibit.

For the exhibit, Garrison provided 3,000 1943 Canadian "Victory" nickels to be given to museum visitors. During World War II, Canada, like the United States, diverted nickel from coins to the war effort. Canada struck 5-cent pieces in a brass alloy of copper and zinc known as tombac. The obverse featured King George VI and the reverse has a "V" for victory as well as the denomination. Around the edge of the reverse are dots and dashes of the international Morse Code, spelling the words "We win when we work willingly."

In addition to the Victory nickels, the ANA also distributed 1943 zinc-coated steel cents issued by the United States Mint. Copper normally used to produce Lincoln cents was diverted for strategic purposes during the war.

World War II involved more nations and a larger geographical area than any war, taking the lives of more than 70 million people around the globe. The ramifications and reverberations of that greatest of all conflicts continue to impact the lives of every person alive today.

Money is the engine that drives war. Whether minted from gold, silver or copper, or formed from stone, paper or cloth, money was a major player on all sides of World War II. Regardless of its form or denomination - dollars, francs, lire, marks, pounds, rubles or yen - money was raised to finance war machines, counterfeited to destroy economies and fashioned to sustain lives. Today, it is a reflection of the people and nations that made and used it during those dark years of conflict.

Throughout World War II, shortages in material and manpower forced both the Allied and Axis powers to radically alter their coinage. For example, copper used to produce the Lincoln cent was diverted in 1943 to manufacture weapons. The copper taken out of pocket change was put to use in making two naval cruisers and destroyers, 1,243 B-17 bombers, and 240 field guns and howitzers. The zinc-coated steel replacement Lincoln cents collected today remain a simple yet poignant reminder of the effects of war on money.

This comprehensive exhibit at the Museum - operated by the American Numismatic Association, a 30,000-member, nonprofit, educational organization chartered by Congress - will showcase the coins, currency and artifacts from that great, global conflict.

* From the European Theatre, the exhibit will include Allied and Axis coinage that changed as metal was channeled toward strategic uses; German-issued prisoner of war and concentration camp money; occupational and military money; and Axis and Allied counterfeit currency printed to shatter economies and morale.

* From the Pacific Theatre, the exhibit will include Hawaii overprint money produced by the United States as an economic defense measure soon after Japan's attack on Pearl Harbor; Japanese occupational currency printed in the local denominations, such as pesos, guildens and dollars; and recovered silver coins from the Treasure of Manila Bay that was dumped into the Philippine waters to prevent its capture.

* From the Home Front, the exhibit will include U.S. War Bonds and ration coupons; steel cents, silver nickels and coins made from cartridge cases; internment camp and prisoner-of-war money; military orders and decorations presented to airmen, sailors and soldiers engaged in battles; and memorabilia from the 10th Mountain Brigade, which trained at Camp Hale near Leadville, Colorado.

For more information about this exhibit, contact the ANA Museum at 818 N. Cascade Ave., Colorado Springs, CO 80903-3279; telephone 719/632-2646 ext. 354; fax

December 7th is one of those few days that we recognize every year, but do not celebrate. It is awkward because we do celebrate many things—the bravery of many sailors, soldiers, and airmen who fought that day and of the millions more who would serve in the years after the attack on Pearl Harbor.
We celebrate the many friendships, loves—and families—that were created by the new circumstances, but in the shadow of the incalculable and incomprehensible death, damage, and destruction that also occurred during this time the celebrations are seldom festive.

In our little specialized area of military money collecting, we can celebrate the opening of the ANA WWII money exhibit. In my opinion, this is an important and wonderful thing recognizing a fascinating field that all of us have appreciated for a long time.

Furthermore, the Gram is highlighted and honored by the two very personal reflections of December 7th provided by Gail Baker and Mel Steinberg below.

In keeping with traditional Gram practices, if these stories motivate you to send yours in late, we will be delighted to share them with other Gramsters.
If you are not motivated to do that, you have a year to think about it, because we will ask again next year.

Unfortunately, I cannot remember the moments when my parents learned of the attack. They both told me at one time or another, but I have not been able to recall their stories which of course saddens me. If I can remember or reconstruct those stories I will certainly share them.

Dear Gram,

Since I was barely a glimmer in my father's eye on December 7, 1941, I thought I'd share portions of my father's and mother's love letters. I hope you enjoy them.

My mother (Bunny) met my father (Horace) in August 1941 at a convention (no, not coins – shells!) The American Malacological Union held its annual meeting in Rockland, Maine. Horace, a zoology professor at the University of Pennsylvania lived in Philadelphia and Bunny, education director at the Boston Children's Museum, lived in Quincy, Massachusetts.

They got engaged on their first date in Maine and, two days later, returned to their respective homes and wrote wonderful love letters back and forth in preparation for their upcoming marriage on December 21, 1941. Horace was 52; Bunny was 35. Neither had ever been married before.

On December 8, 1941 Bunny wrote: "My terribly wished-for darling, I suppose you are worried about all your friends in Honolulu. I do hope they have all come through OK. I have been listening to the radio quite a lot today, but can't yet realize we are again at war. I suppose I can't because actually, we have been at war with Germany et all for some time. I suppose a formal declaration on that end will soon be forth coming."

"I love you fearfully and wonderfully, husband to be, and as always, I long for our separation to be ended. Longingly, lovingly and cheerfully your....
Bunny"

On December 9, 1941, Horace wrote: "Heart of my Heart and All My Happiness, Your Friday letter came this morning and your Saturday this afternoon; together they lift me out of the despondent loneliness of the week and into something approaching my delight when you are in my arms – warm and wonderful."

"The news about Hawaii sounds pretty bad. I hope Cooke and the Museum escaped. I wonder if we will have any trouble traveling (to Sanibel Island, Florida for their honeymoon); I expect not unless troops start moving in large numbers. As I think I told you, I was a reserve officer in the field artillery until a few years ago; I do not expect to be called, but it is an improbable possibility. However, at my age, that would only mean we would need to live at an Army camp for a while. School is going as usual, although the students are excited."

"Adoring you beyond words, your own warm bed-fellow for the future... Hodey"

Bunny answered: "You sort of frighten me when you talk about the Army. I can't believe they will want to take you."

Forever yours, wishing and waiting... Bunny"

On December 15, 1941, Horace explained why a promised "bill" was not enclosed: "The bill was omitted because the U. of P. had a bombing-defense meeting at 2 PM so that I was not able to get to the bank which closes at 3. Incidentally, your husband will be the warden for the zoology laboratory, which means attending other meetings. The last meeting, in my humble opinion, was for advertising purposes only; although it was the first time I ever saw such a large proportion of the students and faculty under one roof – about 10,000 got together."

"Coming to and for you, loveliness, just as quickly as I can. Your hungrily, hopeful Hubby... Hodey"

Bunny and Horace were married on Sunday, December 21, 1941. Their honeymoon on Sanibel Island, Florida was extended several days as the trains on the East coast were indeed transporting troops, and the University of Pennsylvania remained closed another week after the Christmas vacation. Many of the students and faculty never returned.

Gail Baker

Dear Editor,

I do not remember Dec. 7, 1941, but I do remember Dec. 8. It is one of my earliest and most vivid memories. I remember our family sitting around the kitchen table, where our only radio was, listening to President Roosevelt give his "Day of Infamy" address to the nation. I knew even at the age of six that the world as I had known it was over. My parents' faces told me that our country was in grave danger. The memory of those few minutes was burned into my consciousness.

Mel Steinberg

Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics

Museum Opening Spectacular

More than 550 people packed into the American Numismatic Association Museum for the opening of the World War II numismatics exhibition Rendezvous with Destiny. This smashed all records for a museum event at the ANA.

The exhibit features numismatics from all phases of the war. Paper money, coins, commemorative medals, awards from all sides and most countries are included.

The exhibit will be open through summer 2003 and admission is free.

Match Found in Database!

By Doug Bell

A collector hit the jackpot over the weekend while entering his notes in the online database. He entered a note and received a message that the serial number matched that of another in the database! Since the beginning of this service we have wondered how many notes it would take before a match was found. We also looked forward to it!

Collectors have known for a long time that such matches are rare and desirable. The fact that nearly 9000 notes were entered before a match was found seems to confirm this conclusion.

Identification of the notes and collectors will remain confidential allowing them time to work on a deal that might give one of them the pair. Hopefully, they will give more details in the future.

I seem to have really messed up Saturday in sending the Pearl Gram. True, we were making a small tech change, but it all boils down to an old fashion brain cramp. I apologize for any inconvenience. However, I strongly recommend that you read it if you did not. Specifically, it includes two great letters. I resent the Dec 7 Gram (797) this morning.

Mail Call

Dear Gram,

I just returned from the opening of "RENDEZVOUS WITH DESTINY EXHIBIT." It's too soon, and I'm too filled with emotions to render any kind of review of the exhibit, but everybody who has any chance of seeing it should try to do it. The gallery was packed which made viewing difficult but the ANA staff did a bangup job (working until 9:30 PM Friday night) in setting up this exhibit. I will write more later, but it was heartening to see so many children attend.

Bill Rosenblum

Dear Gram,

I thought I would comment on the recent blurb in the Gram concerning Phil Goldstein hosting a section on his website to rate MPC dealers and collectors. I think it is a very bad idea, for various reasons. First of all eBay already has just that, a feedback rating on all sellers or buyers. AND IT WORKS WELL! So what would this new one do? Let someone vent their frustration on a deal gone bad or one which they felt went bad? And who would decide or arbitrate it? This would be an immense responsibility in being objective, and who would have the final say on who gets what rating.

Over the years I have learned that the ones who do not treat others fairly get their just return regardless. And also, USUALLY the stories you hear about this or that dealer or collector ALWAYS have two sides. One soon learns who overgrades or overcharges (nearly the same thing), or who has a reputation for selling bogus notes, cleaned notes, repaired coins, and the like.

Also to put that rating on one's website might turn out to be slanderous and libelous resulting in a lawsuit. This is a great hobby and a great vocation! There is no need to rate anyone, they will do that all on their own. Sure someone may get by ripping you off once or even twice, (three times---I hope not!) but chances are they will pay for it over the long run by it hurting their sales. And the over-nit-picking or excessively price-conscious collector will lose out because he will not be offered the item (s) he wants. (It works both ways.)

I'll give you an example of a scenario that I have repeated numerous times over the years and am doing right now in fact with United States national banknotes. I have done this with MPC, world notes, European coins, et al. When I get into an area I do not know much about, say ancients for example, and decide I want to buy them for resale overseas or anywhere for that matter, I regularly do the following.

I go to a dealer, a couple or more dealers in fact, and tell them what I am interested in and that I want to buy such and such on a regular basis. I trust them COMPLETELY! That is until I find out they are not the one I want to deal with. How? This is the interesting part and has happened to me many times. If you buy wholesale 50 MPC notes say, from a dealer and a month later most or all are gone, that is a good indication that he is supplying you with what you need at fair market prices. However if you have 45 of those notes left after 30 days, 60 days, or even worse, 90 days, then you can figure that he is charging you too much, not being fair or whatever. Well, I do not buy from that dealer EVER again. But the one(s) that treats me right gets tons and tons of my business. For years and years.....

Mike Cummings

Dear Gram,

Remember a year ago I sent you info about a crooked dealer operating on ebay????? I can hear the steam.....You wouldn't print because of _____. Well the local Haddonfield Township, NJ Police got him. He plead guilty and is supposed to be paying about seven people back. If not, we'll go back to DA, court and go again....This was not an accident, it was grand theft. Ebay did remove him from their list of dealers!!

Regards, Bob Drake

Dear Bob,

Thank you for writing again. You will probably be upset again that we did not publish the name of the crook again, but we are delighted with the results that you have received.

Not too long ago, a Gramster wrote a blistering letter to the Gram about a dealer and an MPC transaction. He was outraged when we declined to publish his accusations. We invited him to change the tone of the letter, but he declined. Not too much later the writer was engaged in another transaction in which he committed the same abuse about which he had been so outraged. In that case one of the main reasons for not publishing the letter was that the target was not a Gramster and does not use email. Therefore, it was difficult for us to invite his comments before publication and still be timely.

Your case is less difficult. Assuming the facts as you say them (and we have no reason to doubt them), there would be little harm in publishing the name. However, in the final analysis, we decided that there was also little to gain. Mike Cummings is correct when he says that we do not want to get involved in resolving disputes among numismatists. Our legal staff has enough work as it is.

Editor

Dear Editor,

I want to thank you all for the work you do to get the MPCGram published. I was at a coin show in Flint, Mi. today and was doing my 2ndtime around the tables. I asked at one table if he had any MPCs he said yes and brought out a box from behind the table. The prices were marked $1 each or 6 for $5. I bought a 100 peso JIM, 5 pence BAF, tien frank, tien gulden JIM, and 2 1922 German notes, about 3 bills from the back found a 1000 won Korean bill with 24 signatures. after paying for them I explained what a short snort was to the seller. he had never heard of them. He looked find of sorry her had sold it. If not for the Gram I would not know what it was. Thanks again for the great work.

Steve Payne

Editor,

Well, I'm glad I did not delete today's gram 796 in favor of the one that came out with this subject line: MPCGram 797 (corrected, the only change is the number in subject line) because the content of the allegedly corrected gram WAS 796; the only place to read 797 was in the gram that was numbered 796. However, mail call in that one ended with a "Dear Gram," line an no further content (except the daily boilerplate); was there supposed to be a third letter in 797, following Mel's?

Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics

Series 004 - Number 799 Tuesday December 10, 2002

Report from Colorado Springs

By Joe Boling

ANA's museum exhibit, "Rendezvous with Destiny: The Money of World War II" opened to impressive crowds on Saturday 7 December. Slightly over 550 persons visited between 1000 and 1600, many with questions about items among their family treasures (some had brought the treasures with them--of the ones I saw, all were suitable family mementos, but nothing to excite collectors). Considering that there was a large, well-publicized annual municipal event also occurring that day, the number who elected to come to ANA was gratifying. Some were in vintage uniforms (including seminarian Adna Wilde, wearing his white winter overgarment with 10th Mountain Division patch and Silver Star). The last family to go through came from Monument, Colorado, and expressed much interest in having a group of school kids attend sometime in the coming semester.

Some of you may have seen the ANA press release; the opening ceremony, at 1055 (the time in Colorado when bombs began falling in Hawaii), was conducted by ANA executive director Ed Rochette, who said a few words and turned the podium over to Brigader General (ret) George Fagan, formerly AF Academy librarian, who is a WWII veteran. General Fagan described his months of training as a fighter pilot prior to shipping out to England. Particularly interesting was his description of an English countryside so covered with airstrips that one had difficulty picking out the correct one for landing. Following his talk Lieutenant Colonel (ret) Wilde described his introduction to the 10th Division, their preparation, and their eventual insertion into combat in Italy in 1945.

The exhibit was still in turmoil when I arrived Friday at lunchtime, with about half of the cases still open, curator Lee still printing description cards (and having fits with a font conflict), and workers still moving cases and hanging lights and wall-mounted placards. One of those placards consists of two columns of acknowledgments for loans to the exhibit, followed by a very prominent recognition of two persons well-known to gram readers--the editor and this columnist. That was a pleasant surprise. There are still some tweaks required to eliminate factual errors in the displays (and to remove a couple of non-WWII-related items that snuck in), but the overall impression is excellent, and most viewers seemed to be duly impressed. I learned the answer to a question I posed here in September; Ration Book #1 has the same format as the familiar #3 and #4, stamps bound into a stapled card cover. The single folded sheet with cut-away coupons that I described in September seems to be a very unusual form of RB#1.

The exhibit will not contain much new for most collectors of military money, but is worth seeing if you are traveling near ANA HQ. It will remain up until 15 August, so all summer seminar attendees will have a chance to see it. Remember, you can get a full-ride scholarship to seminar by winning the National Coin Week exhibit award at the Charlotte ANA convention, or you can apply through the gram for an award from the seminar scholarship committee (application details to be announced soon).

The MPCFest central finance office prepared a special issue of series 022 MFC in denominations of $1, $2, and $3. The notes differ from standard 022 notes in the following ways:

$1, commemorative text (printed, not stamped) at top face: "Rendezvous with Destiny:" in light blue; "the Money of WWII/December 7, 2002" in black in two lines; all over the large green ONE, with serial number omitted. Serial number, consisting of a letter, eight digits, and an airplane, at right side above where bar code is on standard notes; bar code omitted. Face check number/letter omitted at lower left. No change to back.

$2, commemorative text (first two lines green, date line black) printed where serial number appears on standard note. Serial number (same format as $1, in significantly larger font) replaces bar code at bottom face. Face check number/letter omitted at top right.
No change to back.

$3, commemorative text (first line in red, other two lines in black) replaces serial number at top face; face check number/letter omitted; serial number in same format and size as $2 replaces bar code at bottom face. No change to back.

No error or counterfeit notes were detected.

The three denominations were received in Colorado Springs numbered D00000000@ through D00000015@, where @ represents a silhouette of a four-engine swept-wing (presumably jet) aircraft (apparently no B-29 image was available for this block character).

The notes with zero serials (one of each denomination) were voided with a blue and red X VOID stamp over the "1" or the line DOLLARS on the back.

The voided notes were used for short snorters, all three signed by the following: Adna Wilde, Robert R.
Kutcher, Tiffanie Bueschel, Warner Talso, J E Boling, Gail Baker (all seminarians), Clifford Mishler, Geo W
Fagan, Ed Rochette, Bill Rosenblum, Ken Hallenbeck.

The short snorters were distributed as follows: $1 ANA museum; $2 Warner Talso; $3 J E Boling.

The following festers and seminarians who reported with pay books drew $6 of the commemorative MFC:

Warner Talso, SN1; Gail Baker, SN2; Robert Kutcher, SN3, Tiffanie Bueschel, SN4; J E Boling, SN8.

Seminarian Wilde, lacking his pay book, received a single note (denomination and SN not recorded) as part of the general distribution of commemorative notes as souvenirs for attendees of the opening. When he later returned with his pay book, all notes had been distributed, so his paybook was annotated to show receipt of a partial pay, and he was instructed to enter the amount himself when he returned home and ascertained the denomination of the note he had received. The class A agent regrets having exhausted his satchel before Colonel Wilde returned for pay.

In addition to the distribution of thirty (otherwise unmarked) souvenir examples of MFC series 022(RwD) to exhibit visitors, Fest 2002 challenge coins were awarded to the following individuals for appropriate services: Cliff Mishler, Chris Cipoletti (ANA's incoming executive director), Adna Wilde, and Larry Lee (ANA museum curator).

Tomorrow's Gram is an important milestone. In keeping with normal Gram editorial practices, I hope to be able to milk it for TWO editorials! Eight hundred Grams. Wow, it is hard to imagine. It is hard to imagine that we have reached that level. It is also hard to imagine life before the Gram. We welcome your comments on this milestone.

Dear Gram,

This may be not meaningful much to the rest of the 'gramsters, but it is my Pearl Harbor Story... My G'mom [dad's mom] was visiting relatives in Southern Mississippi when the base at Pearl Harbor was attacked. She was unaware of any other 'Pearl Harbor' but the Southern Mississippi mouth of the Pearl River {boundary of Miss and La} so, she was fearful of being able to return to North East Texas...[COULD SHE CROSS W/O JAPS ATTACKING???) She did make it back OK... Never heard what g'pa thought 'bout this, he died in '58 and dad died in July this year w/o me asking... So, moral of this story is,

ASK YER FOLKS WHAT HAPPENED!!!!!!!!!!

Jay in Garrison

Dear Jay,

The humor of your message is balanced with a seriousness that we should all note. There must be a numismatic message there somewhere!

#2 Souvenir Notes to Fest

Gail Baker, director of education for the American Numismatic Association received the serial number two set of souvenir Fest notes distributed at the Rendezvous with Destiny exhibition. In the 24 hours after this fact was announced in the Gram she reports receiving several inquiries about buying her set. In response to that interest she has decided to donate the number two set (matched numbers) to the Military Money Seminar Scholarship Fund to be auctioned at Fest IV in March.

More From Colorado Springs

Warner Talso

Let me add some personal impressions to Joe's excellent report on the ANA's museum exhibit, "Rendezvous with Destiny, The Money of World War II. Jane and I arrived about 1600 on Friday. We checked into our B&B and immediately started driving to Denver for the DAWN club meeting. The traffic on I-25 between C Springs and Denver has gotten out of hand. It was a slowly moving parking lot. It took 2 hours to drive 60 miles. We began to wonder if it was worth it! Well, it was worth it. The DAWN folks were very hospitable and welcomed us warmly. There were 25 people present. We met fellow Gramster Bill Rosenblum and his wife, Rita. We viewed some of Bill's very impressive collection of Nazi concentration camp scrip. There was lot's of currency for sale and general viewing. It is always fun to see new things and search for new and interesting items.

Joe Boling was the featured speaker. Joe gave a talk on counterfeiting complete with examples of real and counterfeit notes from his collection. As usual, he was outstanding. He kept the audience enthralled for an hour and a half. When we left at 2330, he was still answering questions His efforts were definitely appreciated.

More tomorrow on the exhibit opening.

Editorial

Well, here we are. Gram 800. Some time next year we will have Gram 1000. I should be able to tell you the exact date when that threshold will be met. That would require more calendar dexterity than I find agreeable at the moment, but, more to the point, unless I get much better at meeting that daily schedule, it is very unpredictable! Based upon the success of the souvenir Fest notes for the museum opening, we might have to issue another for that occasion.

Hm, perhaps we should have an openhouse for that event. We could have a gala event in down town Port Clinton for all Gramsters. The budget would probably tolerate that event!

In spite of saying that I did not want to calculate it, I just roughed it out. The first opportunity for Gram 1000 will probably be in early June.

Realistically, that might mean that we could make it happen at Memphis, but better (and easier) would be to reach it at the summer seminar. That sounds like a plan!

Fred

=====
Mail Call

Dear Editor,

It seems like only yesterday that the GRAM was first issued via electronic mail. Here we are looking at issue # 800 and it is growing everyday. The subscription rate has stayed at the same low cost since inception with no future increase indicated, *FREE* how much better can it get? We have had two editors during this period, Fred Schwan and Phil Goldstein, both have done a FANTASTIC job of keeping the gram published daily, (well almost daily), and bringing us articles filled with news and interesting information, a job well done. The depth of information is overwhelming, if you go back and reread past Grams it is amazing what has been published so far and it just keeps getting better.

Thanks and praise also has to be given to the folks who take time out of their day to write a weekly or monthly article on a regular basis, Larry, Joe, Mark, Howard and the ones like myself that are hit and miss.

It is the participation of all the Gramsters that keeps the Gram alive, so take a few minutes and submit an article of your choosing, military related of course. The editor is always looking, sometimes begging, for material to put the next Gram together.

In past conversations with Larry, he has mentioned that in a lot of cases, just submitting a question about a POW item will help generate an informative article and also serve as an addition to the POW chit book he is working on, getting two uses for the time of one. There have been articles that brought out many opinions, good and bad, which is a good thing to have as it keeps the interest peaked from time to time.

This whole MPC thing is an Addiction, whether it be notes, gas coupons, POW chits or whatever, but miss a Gram and its like losing your watch, withdrawal pains starts to set in. I would like to add this, Fred Schwan, chief editor of the Gram has devoted 30 years to this fascinating and wonderful area of collecting we are involved in. He never seems to run out of ideas to make this a more captivating hobby to be associated with, the Gram is just another one of those brainstorms which has benefited the entire field of MPC collecting and beyond.

Congratulations and many thanks to you for your devotion and time given to this hobby for all of us to enjoy.

The Critic

Harold"MPCKID"Kroll

8. 661 $20

Jerry Smith

Dear Gram,

Regarding putting up a caution list, he better be very careful there could be legal ramifications to deal with there.

Series 004 - Number 801 Thurski December 12, 2002

Financing the War-- Aeroplane Fund

By Larry "Ski" Smulczenski

I'm sitting here at my computer and trying to do some research to write my weekly Thurski article, but I must tell you my heart just isn't in it. My wife and I play in a Sunday golf group with about 17 other couples, and this week we have had to attend funerals for two women from our group. I have just returned from the services for one of those folks and the mind just is finding it hard to concentrate. The first one this week was expected as she had been suffering with cancer for some time. But the one today, was totally unexpected and has hit every one hard. This lady was the women's champ from our golf course and in the peak of health. It's really hard to believe she is gone.

I had planned to do some research today and write about a neat little item I fortunately acquired on eBay. You can see a scan of the item if you click on www.papermoneyworld.net/grams/thurski121202.htm I have not been able to do all the research that I wanted to do on this item, but will pass on some information that I have found and propose some questions. Maybe there is someone out there who is familiar with the item or can enlighten us about its use.

You can see that this item appears to be a receipt for a donation to an Aeroplane Fund. This is definitely a World War II item as you can see the date of 1941 is listed right under the title. The value of the receipt is for one rupee. Now one rupee is currently worth only about 2 cents. I know that back in 1941 it had to be worth a lot more. I haven't found the value yet, but even if it was a couple of bucks, isn't this a difficult way to raise money to buy aircraft? Just what was a rupee worth in 1941?

I have to admit I don't know a lot about India. When I saw the Hissar District, I could not place it in the north, south, east or west. I did find a web site that showed the Hissar District was in the state of Haryana just to the west of New Delhi. It is located in the Northern part of India and appears on the map to be only about a hundred kilometers from Pakistan on the west and the same approximate distance from the Peoples Republic of China on the east. Hissar District has an area of 4191 sq. kilometers.

My little receipt is signed by the Deputy Commissioner and Chairman of the Hissar Dist. War Committee. Who exactly were they fighting? If you go to your World War II Remembered and turn to page 768 you will find a nice little piece about the conflict between the British and the Indians. Seems like the British viceroy in India declared India a belligerent when war broke out in September 1939, without consulting or asking approval of the Indian congress. This resulted in much turmoil and a congressional resolution demanding Indian freedom from Britain as a condition of participation in the war. So was this fund to procure aeroplanes for a fight against the British or were the aircraft to be used in the Allied cause against the Japanese?

As a result of the unrest mentioned above and the desire by some politicians to expel the British from India along with the Japanese victories in Southeast Asia, Chandra Bose escaped from India and after trips to Germany and Japan, formed the Indian National Army (INA) comprised of Indian POW's held by the Japanese, deserters and Indian residents in overrun British territories.

Bose formed the Government of Azad Hind (Free India) in Singapore. The INA fighting with the Japanese reached the eastern border of India where they attacked British fortifications. They were defeated and driven back into Burma. These troops dispersed and melted away when the Japanese lost Burma. So I ask the question, could these receipts be for an underground fund raiser to support the Azad Hind rebellion?

So that's my neat little eBay find. You now know at least as much as I do about it. If there is any gramster who has any other info about the receipt, let us hear from you.

More Personal Impressions From Colorado Springs

Warner Talso

We arrived at the exhibit right after it opened at 1000 on Saturday. There was already a crowd. As Joe indicated, over 550 people attended. That means a steady, reasonably crowded exhibit area all day long. All kinds of people attended. There is a high emotional content to something like this. Notably there were older veterans who wanted to reconnect with what was probably the most significant experience of their lives. One gentleman wore a multicolor wool sweater with all his full size ribbons pinned across his chest in three rows. Another had his miniature ribbons on his coat lapel. Jean Reldy was passing out copies of a newspaper article detailing his experiences. He was a Frenchman living in Manila on December 8th and, as a result, was interned by the Japanese for the next three years.

Young and old. Many parents brought their children. Recall Seminarian Adna Wilde was dressed in his 10th Mountain Division white camouflage overgarment, ski boots, and forage cap. He had his Silver Star pinned to his chest. A gentleman with two boys, maybe 10 and 12, introduced himself to Adna and explained that both of the boys' grandfathers had fought in WWII and he - the father - wanted them to meet a real hero. Adna, very dignified and serious, leaned over and shook the boys' hands and said hello.

The displays did an excellent job of illustrating the breadth and depth of numismatics involvement in the war. The scope is too extensive to try to list here. You must go see for yourself. Every attendee received, as souvenir, a Tombac nickel (read the book!). Jane very astutely noted that the exhibit is straight forward and makes no attempt to be politically correct. Many museums today are showing a disturbing trend of revising history. Remember the furor over exhibiting the Enola Gay at the Smithsonian wherein the accompanying text described how the U.S. started the war with Japan. This exhibit lays out the facts. Period. Just as it should.

Joe noted the Seminararians and Gramsters who attended. Bob Kutcher came from Nebraska and brought a 25 pound smoked turkey that was lunch for the museum staff and Gramsters. Joe, looking fine in his dress blue uniform, was there from Seattle. The presence of the Gram/Fest/Seminar community was highly visible and highly supportive. What amazed me was that everyone had their pay books (as well as their challenge coins). Remember, there was no announcement of a pay call. Fred has trained us well.

The MPCFest Central Finance Office is to be commended for the special issue of Series 022 souvenir MFC prepared for this event. Not knowing what to expect, the CFO had prepared 15 sets of three notes (total of 45 notes) plus a specimen set for the event.

Joe was pay officer. Friday evening Joe and I had naively speculated on what to do with the leftovers. Ha! Upon opening of the exhibit it immediately became apparent that the supply of notes would quickly be exhausted. An on-the-spot decision was made that would Joe distribute them individually to people who he thought would most appreciate them. A point being that it will be a real challenge for collectors to winkle out those notes, if they choose to do so.

In summary, it was a very satisfying experience. Remember the exhibit is open until August 15, 2003.

It was great receiving the various congratulations letters about the 800 milestone. I warned you yesterday that I would spend two editorials on this subject, so this is number two! This weak attempt is balanced by two great features and of course the aforementioned letters. Those of you who did not write about the 800 (and even those who did) can now write about something else. One thing that comes to mind is the annual prediction Gram. That is the January 1 issue. We want to know your predictions for 2003.

Those of you who sent predictions last year can also recount those if you like.

Dear Gram,

I would like to thank you for completing 800 issues of the Gram. Since I got two of #800 I think number two at a time. In spite of that, please renew my

What Is it Worth?

By David Klinger

The age old numismatic question "what is it worth" has been around for a very long time. In a 1588 speech titled: "A Discourse upon Coins", given at the Academy in Florence by Bernardo Davanzati, I think he captured the crux of that question perfectly.

"A Mole is a vile and despicable Animal, but in the Siege of Cassilino the Famine was so great, that one was sold for 200 Gold Florins; and yet it was not dear, for he that parted with it died of Hunger, and he that bought it outlived the Siege."

You can read the entire 1588 speech at:

Marcus Turner (well known to Gramsters, Festers, AND Seminararians) is starting a weekly column for the Gram. His commentary will appear on Sundays. We are excited about this. He has lots of good ideas, but we will let him explain his plans-if he want to. Alternatively, he might just make us figure it out. We hope and anticipate that you will support his efforts with questions, comments, and those inevitable criticisms (unless you have run out from aiming them at the steamed editor).

Marcus might be 100 or more columns behind the other columnists, but based upon the excessive experience of the others, he has good chance of setting the all time Gram record for number of columns! If you ever want to hold that record, you should probably start a column next week too! Write or call, there are still four vacancies!

Old business. In the hoopla on Gram 800 I wanted to comment that one of the disappointments at this end is the use of the For Sale section. We know that it works. Lots of great material has been sold there, but overall, the number of items offered has been small. I plan on offering things myself in the weeks to come to help get it going, but we need your help. I mentioned this to Mike Cummings and he promptly sent some listings (thanks Mike). Please buy some things and send some listings of things for sale. Thanks. Fred

Dear Gram,

In response to the Thurski question about the value of the rupee in 1941. The official exchange was 3.5 rupee to a dollar. I believe the receipts are similar to the French Bons de Solidarite which were given for donations to refugee and orphan relief. In addition to the Hissar note featured in the Thurski column, I know of a few other rupee and even anna denominated receipts from WWII.

Jim Downey

Dear Esteemed (?) Editor,

I was recently at a stamp show near my wife's apartment in McLean, Virginia, where there was a table of donated philatelic material to be sold for the benefit of Wounded Veterans. I was very happy to see several dealers and collectors donate pieces while I was at the show.

I asked the elderly man manning the table if he was a veteran. He replied that he was a WWII Army combat engineer in Europe. He told me about building a couple of bridges important to the British military campaign in Northern Germany during the last combat of the war. After the war was over, he was in Bremerhaven and learned that soldiers could get an honorable discharge and be sworn in as a merchant marine for a one-way return voyage to the U.S. Since he had only 52 points and 55 were needed at that time to immediately return to the U.S., he applied for and received his honorable discharge and was in the U.S. Merchant Marine the next day on a hospital ship.

He said many WWII U.S. Merchant Marine ships sailed with European refugees as crewmen. The problem was that when the ships arrived in Europe after the war, many crewman jumped ship and headed home, and new crews were needed to sail the ships back to the U.S., where they could get a new crew. So they put out the word to U.S. servicemen who wanted to come home earlier than their rotation points would have allowed them to on regular troop ships. Interesting and maybe useful to someone's WWII research?

If anyone is interested in talking with this man, contact me at Howard@SEAsianTreasury.com, and I should be able to find him again.

Please go to eBay and look at item # 740266373, and also click on "this auction" in the first paragraph of the description. There is a ton of information with illustrations about the Azad Hind operating in Burma during WWII. The next lot is also from the Azad Hind. There should be tons of new information in there to update the next edition of "World War II Remembered." Howard A. Daniel III

Dear Gram,

Now you that you know where to look for the dates of LBCSs, since the MPCFests are smaller shows, they should give way to the larger show!!! Can the MS (master scheduler) do this?

Maybe we should have the Fests during the warm part of the year after winter but before the humid summers!!! It snowed in Detroit two times during pre-Fests. And thanks to Ken

Nick

Dear Gram:

Joe's comments in MPC Gram 799 regarding Ration Book #1, as having stamps bound in a stapled cover, is certainly wrong.

Ration Book #1 (OPA Form R-302) is indeed a flat sheet containing 28 coupons (stamps) and was folded twice to make a booklet. This is not an unusual form of Ration Book #1.

Ration books #2, #3, #4 and #5 (printed, but never issued) contain multiple pages of coupons stapled or glued into a card cover.

If the display contains a US ration Book #1 that was indeed stapled with a card cover, I would like to see a picture of it. Perhaps Ken Hallenbeck or someone else can verify or clarify what is there.

Ike's Financial Marching Orders

Located and submitted by David Klinger

Directive to Commander-in-Chief of United States Forces of Occupation

Regarding the Military Government of Germany; April 1945

[The following directive setting forth United States policy with reference to the military government of Germany, was issued by the State Department to General Eisenhower.]
[excerpt]

PART III

Financial

44. You will make full application in the financial field of the principles stated elsewhere in this directive and you will endeavor to have the Control Council adopt uniform financial policies necessary to carry out the purposes stated in paragraphs 4 and 5
of this directive. You will take no steps designed to maintain, strengthen or operate the German financial structure except in so far as may be necessary for the purposes specified in this directive.

45. The Control Council should regulate and control
to the extent required for the purposes set forth in paragraphs 4 and 5 the issue and volume of currency and the extension of credit in Germany and in accordance with the following principles:

a. United States forces and other Allied forces will use Allied Military marks and Reichsmark currency or coins in their possession. Allied Military marks and Reichsmark currency and coin now in circulation in Germany will be legal tender without distinction and will be interchangeable at the rate of one Allied Military mark for one Reichsmark.
Reichskreditkassenscheine and other German military currency will not be legal tender in Germany.

b. The Reichsbank, the Rentenbank or any other bank or agency may be permitted or required to issue bank notes and currency which will be legal tender; without such authorization no German governmental or private bank or agency will be permitted to issue bank notes or currency.

c. The German authorities may be required to make available Reichsmark currency or credits free of cost and in amounts sufficient to meet all the expenses
of the forces of occupation, including the cost of Allied
Military Government and including to the extent that compensation is made therefor, the cost of such private property as may be requisitioned, seized, or otherwise acquired, by Allied authorities for reparations or restitution purposes

Pending agreement in the Control Council you will follow these policies in your own zone.

You will receive separate instructions relative to the currency which you will use in the event that for any reason adequate supplies of Allied Military marks and Reichsmarks are not available, or if the use of such currency is found undesirable.

You will not announce or establish in your zone, until receipt of further instructions, any general rate of exchange between the Reichsmark on the one hand and the U. S. dollar and other currencies on the other.
However, a rate of exchange to be used exclusively for pay of troops and military accounting purposes in your zone will be communicated separately to you.

46. Subject to any agreed policies of the Control Council, you are authorized to take the following steps and to put into effect such further financial measures as you may deem necessary to accomplish the purposes of your occupation:

a. To prohibit, or to prescribe regulations regarding transfer or other dealings in private or public securities or real estate or other property.

b. To close banks, but only for a period long enough for you to introduce satisfactory control, to remove Nazi and other undesirable personnel, and to issue instructions for the determination of accounts to be blocked under subparagraph 48 e below.

c. To close stock exchanges, insurance companies,
and similar financial institutions for such periods as you deem appropriate.

d. To establish a general or limited moratorium or moratoria only to the extent clearly necessary to carry out the objectives stated in paragraphs 4 and of this directive.

47. Resumption of partial or complete service on the internal public debt at the earliest feasible date is deemed desirable. The Control Council should decide the time and manner of such resumption.

48. Subject to any agreed policies of the Control Council,

a. You will prohibit:

(1) the payment of all military pensions, or emoluments or benefits, except compensation for physical disability limiting the recipient's ability to work, at rates which are no higher than the lowest of those for comparable physical disability arising from non-military causes. (2) the payment of all public or private pensions or other emoluments or benefits granted or conferred:

(a) by reason of membership in or services to the former Nazi party, its formations, affiliated associations or supervised organizations, (b) to any person who has been removed from an office or position in accordance with paragraph 6, and (c) to any person arrested and detained in accordance with paragraph 8 during the term of his arrest, or permanently, in case of his subsequent conviction.

b. You will take such action as may be necessary to insure that all laws and practices relating to taxation or other fields of finance, which discriminate for or against any persons because of race, nationality, creed or political opinion, will be amended, suspended, or abrogated to the extent necessary to eliminate such discrimination.

c. You will hold the German authorities responsible for taking such measures in the field of taxation and other fields of public finance, including restoration of the tax system and maintenance of tax revenues, as will further the accomplishment of the objectives stated in paragraphs 4 and 5.

d. You will exercise general supervision over German public expenditures in order to ensure that they are consistent with the objectives stated in paragraphs 4 and 5.

e. You will impound or block all gold, silver, currencies, securities, accounts in financial institutions, credits, valuable papers, and all other assets falling within the following categories: (1) Property owned or controlled directly or indirectly, in whole or in part, by any of the following: (a) The German Reich, or any of the Lander, Gaue or provinces, any Kreis, Municipality or other similar local subdivision; or any agency or instrumentality of any of them including all utilities, undertakings, public corporations or monopolies under the control of any of the above; (b) Governments, nationals or residents of other nations, including those of territories occupied by them, at war with any of the United Nations at any time since 1 September 1939; (c) The Nazi Party, its formations, affiliated associations and supervised organizations, its officials, leading members and supporters; (d) All organizations, clubs or other associations prohibited or dissolved by military government; (e) Absentee owners, of non-German nationality including United Nations and neutral governments and Germans outside of Germany; (f) Any institution dedicated to public worship, charity, education or the arts and sciences which has been used by the Nazi Party to further its interests or to cloak its activities; (g) Persons subject to arrest under provisions of paragraph 8, and all other persons specified by military government by inclusion in lists or otherwise. (2) Property which has been the subject of transfer under duress or wrongful acts of confiscation, disposition or spoliation, whether pursuant to legislation or by procedure purporting to follow forms of law or otherwise. (3) Works of art or cultural material of value or importance, regardless of the ownership thereof.

You will take such action as will insure that any impounded or blocked assets will be dealt with only as permitted under licenses or other instructions which you may issue. In the case particularly of property blocked under (1) (a) above, you will proceed to adopt licensing measures which while maintaining such property under surveillance would permit its use in consonance with this directive. In the case of property blocked under (2) above, you will institute measures for prompt restitution, in conformity with the objectives stated in paragraphs 4 and 5 and subject to appropriate safeguards to prevent the cloaking of Nazi and militaristic influence.

49. All foreign exchange transactions, including those arising out of exports and imports, shall be controlled with the aim of preventing Germany from developing a war potential and of achieving the other objectives set forth in this directive. To effectuate these purposes the Control Council should

a. Seek out and reduce to the possession and control of a special agency all German (public and private) foreign exchange and external assets of every kind and description located within or outside Germany.

b. Prohibit, except as authorized by regulation or license, all dealings in gold, silver, foreign exchange, and all foreign exchange transactions of any kind. Make available any foreign exchange proceeds of exports for payment of imports directly necessary to the accomplishment of the objectives stated in paragraphs 4 and 5 of th is directive, and authorize no other outlay of foreign exchange assets except for purposes approved by the Control Council or other appropriate authority.

c. Establish effective controls with respect to all foreign exchange transactions, including: (1) Transactions as to property between persons inside Germany and persons outside Germany; (2) Transactions involving obligations owed by or to become due from any person in Germany to any person outside Germany; and (3) Transactions involving the importation into or exportation from Germany of any foreign exchange asset or other form of property.

Pending agreement in the Control Council, you will take in your zone the action indicated in subparagraphs a, b and c above. Accordingly, you will in your zone reduce to the possession and control of a special agency established by you, within your Command, all German foreign exchange and external assets as provided in subparagraph a. You will endeavor to have similar agencies for the same purpose established in the other zones of occupation and to have them merged as soon as practicable in one agency for the entire occupied territory. In addition you will provide full reports to your government with respect to all German foreign exchange and external assets.

50. No extension of credit to Germany or Germans by any foreign person or Government shall be permitted except that the Control Council may in special emergencies grant permission for such extensions of credit.

51. It is not anticipated that you will make credits available to the Reichsbank or any other bank or to any public or private institution. If, in your opinion, such action becomes essential, you may take such emergency actions as you may deem proper, but in any event, you will report the facts to the Control Council.

52. You will main such accounts and records as may be necessary to reflect the financial operations of the military government in your zone and you will provide the Control Council with such information as it may require, including information in connection with the use of currency by your forces, any governmental settlements, occupation costs, and other expenditures arising out of operations or activities involving participation of your forces.

Is the above document great or what? Of course thanks to David "Fast Fingers on the Keys" Klinger for finding and sending it. I have to admit that I have not yet studied it. I have read it, but I think that it requires some study. You are invited to do that and send us a report! We would love that!

Dear Gram,

Just retuned from a one-day show in Melbourne today.

Had a conversation with a dealer (Don Vosburgh) that might interest you. Possibly you being the all knowing-all seeing in the field of MPC perhaps you already know of this.

Anyway, he told me that in Vietnam he was in the Air Force and on C-Day he would fly out by chopper to men in the field and collect their MPC to be turned in and issue them a receipt. The next week he would go back and issue them that amount in new MPC.

Mike

Dear Esteemed (?) Editor,

A question was raised in a recent article about the value of an Indian Rupee in 1941. It was about 11 grams of silver and close to fifty cents in U.S. money. I can remember a man had to pay about Four Rupees for a marriage license in Burma just before that time, and most men had to borrow it from their family. So a Rupee was a significant amount of money to an Indian or other locals in the Empire of India and surrounding areas in 1941!

I would like to comment on Mr Goldstein's "My thoughts on MPC VOID Notes" item in a recent Gram because he was concerned about the recent increase in the number of them being offered for sale. As you know, I am a frequent visitor to Viet Nam and have brought back several of these pieces back for you and others when I find a new variety, or when they are on someone's want list. Since they first appeared a few years ago, I have seen only a few during each visit and sometimes none at all. I strongly believe that the current sources of them are several Vietnamese collectors (some who are also dealers) need some money and have offered those parts of their collections for sale that could generate some quick cash. Business is slow back in Viet Nam and they have to still pay the rent on their stores. If anyone

any more questions about them, please contact me at Howard@SEAsianTreasury.com.

WWII Gibraltar POW Notes

By Marcus Turner

Anyone who has spent a lot of time with their nose in the World War II Remembered book know that Fred and Joe spared no effort expense in providing us with something more than just a catalog. The history and background information is what makes the book so great. There are a few isolated instances where the information provided is a little lean. One such instance occurs on page 215.

The section on Gibraltar has an entire  $\frac{1}{2}$  page dedicated to it. What further peaked my curiosity was the "sketched" representation of the Gibraltar POW listed at the bottom. Now this must have been something very special if Fred and Joe had to resort to rendering a likeness for publication in their book. In fact it is something very special.

Gibraltar is the small British colony on the extreme southern coast of Spain. Only a 16 mile strait on which Gibraltar sits, separates Europe from Africa and the Mediterranean Sea from the Atlantic Ocean. The strategic importance of Gibraltar both in military and economic terms is obvious. The small territory is approximately 5 kilometers (3 miles) long and  $\frac{1}{2}$  kilometer ( $\frac{1}{3}$  mile) wide with a current population of approximately 27,000. The area was captured by the British from the Spanish in 1704. Since then the Spanish have tried many times to recapture the tiny area, but without success. Spain's claim to the territory is still in dispute today.

During World War II, the civilian population was evacuated and replaced by a very large and strong British air and naval presence. The territory became a strategic command center for activity in the Mediterranean as well as for landing operations in North Africa. Many allied POWs are known to have escaped via Gibraltar over the course of the war. The official government website confirms that there was a POW camp located in Gibraltar during World War II but offers few details. Lance Campbell refers to the location as the Laguna Camp. It was a temporary holding area for German and Italian POWs during WWII. From Gibraltar prisoners were sent to POW camps in the United Kingdom, Canada and even the United States.

The only known notes produced for this camp were in denominations of sixpence. Campbell further reports that a "single run of 2000 sixpence notes was ordered under a government contract." He further refers to the note 05001 (with a photo) as the only piece known to exist. This note has the word "Specimen" hand written across the face of the note. This was the same piece that Fred and Joe were trying to illustrate in WWII remembered.

Back in 2000, Harold Kroll provided me a photocopy of an article out the Bank Note Reporter. Unfortunately the date of the issue was not on the photocopy, but it was one of the earlier editions (Harold, do you know the date of that BNR?). The headline reads "Unknown POW Scrip Shown to IBNS." The article further states "A slide was shown of a previously unknown Prisoner of War camp scrip for a denomination of a 6 pence issued in Gibraltar, with the word "specimen" hand written across the note. The note in question caused a great deal of interest. It is presumed that the note was issued in a transit camp for German and Italian prisoners being shipped to England, possibly from the African front. The style indicated a World War II issue dated between 1941 and 1944." The note was presented at the meeting by Yasha Beresiner of London.

The second sighting of a Gibraltar Laguna POW note would not come until 2000. It came out of Australia! The note was serial number 0488 and was published in full color in the catalog of Australian dealer John Pettit. Not only was it identified but was available for sale!

I immediately contacted John and made arrangements to buy the note. It now resides in my collection.

The two existing notes were brought together at MPC Fest II in 2001. The above mentioned "specimen" #05001 was brought to the fest by Tom Warburton of the U.K. The side by side comparison revealed that the two notes were nothing alike. Tom's note was about twice the size of mine. It was printed on a thin, pink paper with printer's notations in the lower left margin. The back was completely blank. The background patterns of the two notes were also completely different. My issued piece was printed on a heavy green card stock and has a 4-digit serial number (as opposed to Tom's 5-digit). The back of my note has the stamp of the Women's Auxiliary. My theory is that the "specimen" piece is not a specimen at all, but a trial design. This would explain the differences in the notes and why the "specimen" was printed on thin paper. It also explains the high serial number of 5001.

I guess that I am going to have to cut Fred a little slack for providing so little on these pieces in WWII Remembered. There is not much information to go on, other than the identification of an issued piece. If any gramsters have any information, comments, observations, concerning these notes or the camp itself please write.

It is a rare and wonderful day when we get to welcome a new columnist! It is made even better by a great article. Marcus, you have set a high standard. No matter, if your articles are half as good in the future they will be great.

Of course, I have some commentary as well. Gibraltar is high on the too long a list of places that I want to visit. I like the Gibraltar POW notes. I want to visit the site of the camp at Gibraltar even if there is nothing to see. I want to look at the harbor where Italian sailor piloted torpedoes to the side of Allied ships (at least one "squad" of such sailors was caught by the Spanish shore patrol and interned! No numismatic relics of the internment are known (great are for research)).

Actually I tried to visit Gibraltar twice when I was traveling on Eurail pass. I could not even figure out the connections and I tried. I went to travel agencies in France and could not even find out if it was possible to cross the "frontier" from Spain to Gibraltar. When I make this trip happen, you can be sure that I will report it.

I had one other experience with the Gibraltar POW notes. It was one of those terrible missed opportunities. A dealer sold one of these notes to Mel Steinberg. The dealer then consulted with some other dealer about the possible value of the note. When the dealer mentioned a price to the seller, the seller was in shock because it was substantially more than the price at which he had offered it to Mel.

The seller came to me and asked if such a note could possible be worth the amount that he had been told. I too was surprised at the price. I thought that this price was way too low, but since it had been sold, I down played the mistake.

As you can imagine I rushed to Mel's table. In the few minutes the note had been sold! However, Mel still had the piece in his possession and I THINK that I was able to scan it, but have not found the scan in recent years. It is possible (likely?) that the note is the one sold by Pettit to Marcus. Possibly one of these two fellows can confirm (or refute) this.

I had better stop or my commentary on Marcus' article will be longer than the initial item.

Marcus, welcome and thanks.

Fred

JIM and VICTORY Notes in Liberation

by Ken Berger

Over a year ago, I sent in some information regarding the validity of JIM in the Philippines. I thought the Gramsters might enjoy reading the entire text of the article. I guess the guilt trip Fred laid on me for making him feel bad helps produce articles.

From the Express, Year I, Volume II, Manila, Thursday, October 18, 1945,
No. 14, pp. 1 & 4

The headline read:

VALIDITY OF JAP NOTES IN PANGASINAN UPHELD

For Taxes Paid One Week Before Yank Occupation

Payment in Japanese "Mickey Mouse" money of the real property taxes in some municipalities of Pangasinan from January 1, this year up to the occupation thereof by the liberating forces (Americans) are valid, the Department of Justice rules in a recent opinion requested by the Secretary of Finance.

Pangasinan tax payers, according to the basic communication, hearing that the Americans were about to land, or that they had actually landed, "took advantage of using their Japanese notes for the payment of their taxes for the current year." The Department held that the phrase cannot alter the law governing the payment of said taxes.

Citing section 21 of Commonwealth Act No. 470, the Japanese Military Administration enforcement of tax laws of the Commonwealth, Instruction 37 of the Director General of the JMA, and international law, the Justice secretary holds that the government established by the Japanese army of occupation had the power to collect the real property tax provided for in the Assessment Law. "The military government in occupied or conquered territory has authority to promulgate laws and regulations for the collection of revenue, and may collect taxes and duties, for the support of military operation and of the government," runs 67 Corpus Juris, 423.

Valid payment of taxes in "Mickey Mouse" is upheld by 61 C. J. 963, 26 R. C. L. Sec. 335, p. 376 which says that "the legislature has the power to prescribe the kind of funds in which taxes shall be payable. It may declare that only gold and silver coin shall be receivable for this purpose, and in such cases the United States treasury notes are not legal tender in payment of taxes, although there is contrary authority. But in the absence of such restriction, taxes may be paid in any lawful current money, although the collector has no authority to accept anything else unless specially allowed by law."

Executive Order No. 25 by the President of the Philippines dated November 18, 1944, decreed the New Victory Series of Philippine Treasury Certificates and the coins identical to pre-war issue then in circulation as legal tender, and prohibited transaction in Japanese currency. But then the same decree provides that it was only application to "all areas free from enemy occupation and control throughout the Philippines."

Hence the Department rules "The real property taxes in question having been paid in municipalities not free from enemy occupation, although in Japanese military notes, were, therefore, paid in lawful current money."

After sending yesterday's Gram, I spent some time looking for that scan that I made at the New York International Coin Fair. I could not find it. I did, however, find the scan that I made of Tom Warburton's note at Fest II. With a little luck, I can get Doug Bell to hang it at papermoneyworld.net so that everyone can see it. Of course I will publish a link when that happens. Hey Marcus, you could do the same with yours!

Then I thought of a topic that Marcus mentioned that I did not discuss. As Marcus described, in the current WWII Remembered, we have a computer "sketch" of the Gibraltar notes. Of course that was because we did not have an adequate illustration to use.

I actually enjoyed fussing with the computer to make the sketch (and a few others in the book) and was pleased with the results.

In keeping with the odd couple tag, Joe hated the sketches. To be fair, even though I like them, I would rather have had the real thing.

Dear Editor,

All is well now with the gram delivery, thanks. The last one, #804 was labeled at the top as 803. No big deal, just thought I'd pass it along.

Thanks again & best regards,

Aubrey

Dear Aubrey,

Thanks, but do not underestimate our ability to fix an unbroken widget. Indeed, I just noticed that 804 at first numbered 803 had the 803 date (Dec 14) so there is no Dec 15 Gram except that Dec 14 is listed as Sat AND Sun. See what I mean!

Dear Fred:

Read your "run down" of my home town, Margaretville, in the 8/10/2002 MPCGam.

I'll be posting your picture and the article at the library and elsewhere around town under the title "Open Season".

You may want to stick to dining down Ulster way or in Kingston.

Regards,

Burr H.

Dear Burr

Wow, I did poke a little fun at the restaurants and a few other thing in the Gram that you mention. Now I feel really bad about it. Now that I realize how bad things really are there, I will try to be more careful. Man, it never occurred to me that it could take three months for an email to arrive in Margaretville!

Your statement about the library was particularly funny because the library was specifically discussed in part I of my Margaretville travelogue. I wish that I could send it to you, but I do not even know when it was published. Possibly Phil Goldstein can send you a copy. Heck, both stories might be on his web site (IWANTMYMPC@aol.com).

Thanks for writing.

Editor

Dear Editor,

Just to fill out Marcus's article on the Gibraltar.

I have read or been told that the Gibraltar POW Camp was mainly used as a holding transit facility mainly for U boat and aircrew captured by the naval units.

Cambell has the more accurate image of the note (sorry Fred). The 'Specimen' note is as described by Marcus, the overall size is 99 x 88mm, the outlined area is 87 x 77mm. In the border created is ' G.C. 2m. 4/42 (10203).

You can just see traces of this bottom left of Cambell reproduction.

One can guess if there is any meaning to this. I would speculate G.C. means Gibraltar Command and 4/42 is a date April 1942 and one can further speculate there would be very little need for POW holding facility previous to this date. ( I'll try to find out from other sources when the camp was created.Cambell says April 1942.)

Marcus can I have the size of your note please?

Tom Warburton

Covering the entire World of Military Numismatics
Series 004 - Number 807 Thursdi December 19, 2002

You think the Gram is late? Review of 1977
BNR here!

By Larry "Ski" Smulczenski

This is being written early in the week as by the time you read this we will be on the road. making another trip to Austin, Texas to visit the kids for Christmas. It hardly seems possible that a full year has passed since I started a Thursdi with the same message. Time does fly when your retired and having fun.

I just finished reviewing the December, 1977 issue of the Bank Note Reporter. There are two great articles in it that would be of interest to Gramsters.

The cover story is written by Bill Doovas. If you don't know Bill, you have missed a very interesting person. We don't get to see much of him anymore as he has sold off his collectibles and now lives somewhere in South America if I remember correctly. We did see him at a show sometime within the last two years and had dinner with him. While we ordered, Bill asked for a plate and produced a bag of chicken that he had brought with him from home and made a meal of that. He kept telling us that he had to eat it before the salmonella bacteria became too pronounced. He was always a little unorthodox and the story in the Bank Note Reporter confirms that. Seems he found out shortly before the first Memphis show, that there would not be a souvenir card to commemorate that event. So he set out to make a souvenir card on his own except that he planned to use a vignette card produced and sold by the BEP portraying the Capitol as the basic card, then had the Memphis data overprinted on it by a west coast printer. He goes on to tell in detail how he bought slightly more than 300 cards from the BEP over the phone and proceeded with the set up. About ten days before the show, he got a call from the director of the BEP inquiring what he was doing with that many cards and after the director heard his story, Doovas was told that what he was doing was not within the uses for the vignettes that the BEP sold to the public. Furthermore, he was told if he continued, he was in violation of title 18, Section 709 of the U.S. Code and that he could be fined and imprisoned. Anyway, the story goes on as only Bill Doovas can tell a story, complete with the smallest of details evolving the Secret Service, the directors successor, two congressmen and several thousand words. In the long run, Doovas sold the cards with a disclaimer printed on the card stating that the BEP printed only the vignette while the rest of the card was the work of a private individual. All's well that ends well.

Fred Schwan's column of Military Vignettes spins another great tale, this one about the Norwegian notes arranged by the government-in-exile for the liberation of Norway. Norway had intended to remain neutral if war broke out in Europe. Norway resisted allied pressure to allow transient of allied troops to assist Finland. Then unexpectedly, the Germans invaded Norway on April 9, 1940. Norway was totally unprepared for the invasion. Although the German invasion advanced swiftly still some areas resisted stiffly. Many isolated communities had to issue emergency currency because of regular currency shortages. World War II Remembered has a comprehensive listing of these issues. They are very scarce, expensive and difficult to come by. Other than the Moster Kommune notes, you very seldom find them being offered. By June, the military situation was so bleak, that King Haukon VII and the government fled to London and hostilities ceased. The Germans set up the Norwegian traitor, Vidkun Quisling as the head of the puppet state.

The government-in-exile considered it a high priority for the allies to liberate Norway. They arranged for the printing of an issue of paper money to be used in the liberation. The notes printed by Waterlow and Sons were in denominations of 1, 2, 5, 10, 50, 100, 500 and 1000 Kroner. In anticipation of an early liberation, the notes were dated 1942. After the optimistic 1942 passed, a second printing of only the 5, 10, 50 and 100 Kroner denominations were produced with a 1944 date and the word Krigssedlar (War bank note) added. The 1944 issue as well as the 1 and 2 kroner from the 1942 printing were issued. However the notes saw only limited circulation and only until the currency reform of August/September 1945. Thus these notes, even the 1 and 2 kroner are rare. The 1942 series was never issued although a few complete sets with very low serial numbers do exist in private collections. I saw the number 5 set pictured in WWII Remembered several years ago at a Memphis show. They are truly spectacular notes. The are vividly colored and would be the hallmark of any collection.

Since this is the last Thurski before Christmas, I would like to wish each and every Gramster a Very Happy and Merry Holiday Season. I hope that Santa brings you all at least one note from your most wanted list.

Today will be the last day that we run the list of corrections to the MPC book. We will post them at papermoneyworld.net and will list additional ones as they come in, but the list has not changed in a long time now so we will move them from the Gram.

We (the first sergeant and I) have been working on the training schedule for the Fest. We expect to publish a draft thereof here in the Gram in the next few days.

The Gram is going out (very) early on Thursday because I am off on a research mission. I am going to visit a collector to see (and hopefully buy!) an unusual collection. I will not be available at all on Thursday and possibly Friday. Wish me luck!

Fred

Grand Esteemed Wizzard,

You could use a dartboard for numbering each gram. Just put the future 14 numbers on pieces of paper and tack them to a dart board. Better yet in your case it would be much more safer to tape them to a roulette wheel.

Happy holidaze to all,
Colin

Dear Gram,

I see that C. Tolek suggests the GRAM should be random numbered. Isn't that the way it is being done now? Why channge?
Bill Murray

Dear Gram,

I received 3 copies of Gram #306, one regular & 2 special delivery.

Wow, I start submitting articles & now I get three subscriptions to the Gram.

If only Coin World, BNR, NN, etc. would do the same.

Ken Berger

Dear Ken,
We aim to please!

The Discontinuance of Scrip

by David Klinger

Here is some fresh information regarding the use of MPC in Germany, France, and Italy.

I have been reading portions of the US Army Europe (USAREUR) command histories and I came across an interesting section in the Annual Historical Report for 1 July 57 - 30 June 58.

This particular report was downgraded from SECRET to Unclassified on 4 February 2001.

These files are scans rather than text files, so I had to transcribe the section (i.e. ignore any typos). I have a few comments after the following quoted article [footnotes deleted]:

"The Discontinuance of Scrip. In September 1955 the Department of Defense had formulated the policy of discontinuing the use of military payment certificates (MPC, or scrip) wherever possible and advantageous. While the Federal Republic of Germany had indicated no objections to the use of dollar currency as early as 1956, other European nations in the MPC area had not agreed to such a change. During FY 1957 detailed plans had been prepared for a conversion from MPC to the use of United States currency. However, the unfavorable situation that had arisen in Europe as a result of the Suez and Hungarian crises had delayed the implementation of existing plans. Even so, planning had advanced so far that relatively little notice would be required to take action.

Discussions concerning the advisability of a conversion to dollars were resumed in November 1957, when a USAREUR representative attended a conference in Washington at which Treasury Department officials and representatives of the Office of the Chief of Finance reached certain tentative conclusions. Since the Treasury Department no longer raised objections, U.S. coins could be introduced into the U.S. area of responsibility in Germany as soon after 1 January 1958 as the needed coins could be collected and transported to Europe. Because of the implications of such action with regard to the public debt ceiling, paper currency could not be introduced before 1 July 1958, however. While the Treasury Department intended to approach the French and Italian governments on the subject, it was doubted that permission to use dollar currency in those countries would be granted.

At the same time it was decided to use U.S. Treasury checks for all official dollar disbursements in Germany as soon as check forms could be made available.

In December 1957, after the decision had been made to introduce coin by 1 March 1958, the immediate shipment of $3 million worth of U.S. coin was requested. However, preferring uniform currency policies throughout the command, USAREUR recommended that the use of U.S. currency be delayed until France and Italy joined Germany in accepting the use of U.S. currency. While the Department of the Army conceded the reasonableness of this view, the introduction of U.S. currency into West Germany was to proceed in any case. In the meantime, negotiations with France and Italy were continuing, and it was felt that the execution of the changeover in West Germany might influence those countries to change their positions on the subject. Moreover, since the public debt situation in the United States had eased, the Treasury Department had advised that paper currency would be available after 31 March. On 12 February the Department of the Army directed that the currency conversion was to take place as soon as preparations could be completed. USAREUR was assigned administrative responsibility for the operation, and USCINCEUR was to decide whether coin would be introduced first or in conjunction with paper currency later.

The comptroller's staff prepared three plans for the conversion. An unclassified exchange with a maximum of advanced publicity could be made most easily and would permit prefunding of clubs, messes, post exchanges, and banks. One form of classified conversion would introduce coin on an unclassified basis with advanced publicity, giving a period of approximately one month to effect a gradual exchange of coins for fractional MPC; some two months later dollar notes would be introduced without announcement during a 1-day classified exchange. The third, and least desirable plan would introduce all currency on an unannounced 1-day-only, classified conversion as had been done in the past with MPC conversions. USAREUR recommended the first plan to USEUCOM since it would involve the least problems and there seemed to be no great need for secrecy. USEUCOM concurred and forwarded this recommendation to the Department of the Army.

Early in April the command was advised that France had agreed to the use of dollars in that country and that the conversion would also apply there. At approximately the same time, however, the Department of the Army indicated that the currency conversion in West Germany and France would be part of a worldwide MPC conversion. Since the MPC change in other areas would have to be protected, the conversion in France and Germany would have to remain on the same security classification level as the over-all change. Although the changeover would be on a 1-day, crash basis, an 11-day grace period for the gradual withdrawal of fractional MPC from circulation was authorized following the change day.

During the two weeks preceding the changeover--which took place on 27 May--the needed cash was distributed from the Karlsruhe finance office. Vans accompanied by convoys of armed guards were used to transport the money to the various disbursing offices. Four days before the conversion day Italy agreed to permit the use of dollar currency there, and aircraft had to be employed to ship the cash to USASETAF disbursing offices in time.

Since security restrictions prevented the announcement of the conversion before 0100 hours on conversion day, and the Stars and Stripes deadline for stories was before midnight of the day before publication, the news had to be released by different means. Members of the command were made aware of the conversion through spot announcements over the Armed Forces Network stations at 15 minute intervals, beginning at 0600 hours of conversion day. In the conversion, only dollar notes of MPC's were exchanged for United States currency; fractional MPC's were removed from circulation by being taken in at retail outlets, and coin was introduced to replace them through the same sources in the routine giving of change over the 11-day period following the conversion."

[and from the chronology section of the FY 1958 USAREUR History, a short entry] "May 27 [1958] - Dollar currency replaces military payment certificates in France, Germany, and Italy."

[This means that MPC series 521 was the last series used in Germany, France, and Italy, unless, of course, MPC was reintroduced after the conversion to U.S currency and coin. I found no evidence of this in USAREUR histories. However, in Schwan MPC4 and in WWII Remembered it indicates that series 541 was used in these countries until 26 May 1961. I always wondered why I never saw any MPC during a port visit I made to Bremerhaven Germany aboard the destroyer USS Cassin Young (DD-793) in July 1958 - - now I know.]

Editorial

Wow, even without the matter of the use of MPC Series 541 in Europe, the lead story by Davd Klinger is wonderful and important.

We have never seen such a discussion about the decision to discontinue MPC use in an area. It is VERY interesting.

I must say that I am surprised at the fairly clear proof that 541 was not issued in Germany (France, and Italy). However, I have some lingering doubts.

Of course it is easy to understand that an error could have been made years or decades ago and repeated many times. This would have been a very easy mistake to make since Series 541 continued in Asia. Army Regulation 37-103 [pg 311 in MPC4] lists a conversion date specifically for Series 591 in the European area. This is very confusing on several counts.

When complaints were forwarded to Tudor Press about the quality of printing of Series 541, representatives went with Department of Defense personnel to the field for an inspection. I seem to recall that it specifically mentioned going to Germany for this inspection. I certainly stated it that way in the book, but I will have to verify this during my next research visit to the BEP.

This is wonderful stuff. I have already included David's story in the draft of MPC5!

The museum MPC project list has been updated. Please see it below and consider filling in some holes in Colorado Springs.

Hi Fred:

Couple of items:

(1) Correction to a correction before you remove the MPC book correction updates from the gram.
page 214 for 541 50 cent replacement note, correct end number for 2nd printing should be F01112000 vice F1112000

(2) As per Joel Shafer notice, my JIM Specimen note collection will be auctioned by Lyn Knight on Thursday FEB 20th in Chicago at CPMX.

(3) My new Japanese Invasion Money price list (JIM-2) is now ready for mailing or sending via email to gramsters.

Edward B Hoffman, PO Box 6039-G, Elko, Nevada
89802-6039

E-mail: hoffman@rabbitbrush.com

(4) Happy Holidays to you, Judy and staff.

Many thanks,

ED

Dear Ed,

Yes, I have a couple items too. First, I am confused about your correction. I cannot find a 50 cent ending number of F1112000 on page 214! However, there are some other corrections here that may or may not be listed below. The ending number of the second printing $1 replacement (855/r2) should be F01120000. Possibly this is the error that you were correcting. For $10 replacements, first and second printing show one each reported. First printing should be none reported and second should be five reported.

If you will send me a copy of your JIM price list (electronic version), we will (probably) send it out with a Gram.

Your collection of JIM specimens in the Knight Chicago sale sounds most interesting on several counts. That sale has the Mericle MPC regular issue collection so the combination makes for a powerful military money presence!

Now for the big one! This makes for an ideal opportunity for you to come to the Fest! You can attend the Chicago show then come over to the Fest. Generally Harold Kroll, Larry Smulczenski, and Leo May at a minimum do this. It makes for extra opportunities for fun and notes. We can help with the necessary ground transportation.

I assure you that you will have a good time at the Fest and I am equally sure that everyone will be very excited to have you there (er, here)!

Editor

Dear Gram

I have some of these notes [that Howard wrote about] and knew the story about them. A local Viet translated them for me sometime ago and as I recall, they basically said "Do not send your sons and fathers and brothers to fight and die in the South!!"

Lots of them out there and many have had the tag removed. Per a Special Ops pilot a few years ago, all the Viets who went North were captured, tortured and then killed.

Knowing that the Crane "Paper" Co of Massachusetts makes ALL the material for the US "paper money," I suspect they had something to do with it. It would be interesting to know the connection.

Nick

A Pocket Guide to Burma
by Howard A. Daniel III

I recently acquired this booklet on eBay and it was prepared by the Special Service Division, Services of Supply, United States Army in Washington, DC. It was printed by the U.S. Government Printing Office in 1943 with 0-504717 identification. I believe it was prepared for our 1st Air Commandos and Merrill's Marauders, who were sent to India to fight with Wingate's Chindits behind the Japanese lines in Burma, and were eventually stationed inside Burma.

The only section of the booklet of real interest to me, and probably you, is on page 40 with the title of "Currency". The text is as follows;

"The currency used in Burma is the same as that in India: 1 rupee = 16 annas, and 1 anna = 12 pie or 4 pice.

The rupee is a silver coin worth about 30 cents in American money. The anna, pie and pice are all bronze coins having approximate values of 2 cents, 1/6 cent and 1/2 cent in American money.

The Japanese have probably introduced some of their own money, but the paper put out by the Axis occupation forces is likely to be worthless."

It is apparent that the booklet writers are way behind the curve about the fact that Japanese Government (JIM) was circulating in Burma, and that the British colonial currency was only used under the table by less and less people as the occupation continued.

I will bring the booklet to FUN in Orlando for anyone who wants to see it and will be there on January 10 & 11. If you cannot find me, find Larry and Fred, and they can tell you where I am on the bourse. Off the bourse, I have a room in the Comfort Inn at 7600 International Drive.

The American Alamo of World War II Corregidor by Eric Morris, original copyright is 1981.

Special numismatic review by Ray Czahor r
I read the First Cooper Square Press Edition 2000.528 pages, soft cover with a number of maps, photos and illustrations. Mr. Morris interviewed 40 survivors, mostly low ranking officers and enlisted plus two civilians to obtain their detailed experiences. He chronicled them by date, time, place and organization beginning April 10., 1941 through the defense and collapse of Bataan and Corregidor, the final surrender, the Death March, and experiences in the POW camps. I found very interesting how the common GI viewed Gen. MacArthur (not very well liked or respected) in contrast to Gen. Wainright (respected as the GI's General). This book is by far the most moving and detailed account of the War in the Philippines, heroics by many but also the physical toll taken of our soldiers as well as the Filipinos. Mr. Morris spares no detail in the harsh and inhuman treatment of our military people who survived the Fall in May 1942. The Japanese did not believe in or approve of the Geneva convention and the death toll in the POW camps was 27% compared for 4% in German or Italian held POWs.

I found several references to "money" in the book. The first was experienced by Private Frederick Howard, a Telegrapher at Fort Mills, Corregidor on April 24,

1942 just 14 days before the surrender:
"A gift of huge amounts of new dollars and Philippine pesos would seem like a welcome present. Some came the way of Frederick Howard that evening in the strangest of circumstances. He was standing in the food line and feeling, like so many others by now, depressed and weary beyond all measure. He knew that after midnight, once the bombardment eased, he would have to venture forth to repair the telephone ground lines that had been broken. It was a futile gesture, since the same lines would soon be knocked out when the guns opened up the next morning. He reached the head of the line and collected his rice stew and pineapple chunks before retreating to a niche in the rocks outside the main tunnel. A man came by whom he had never seen before, a supply sergeant with his mess can and a sack. It was obvious that the sergeant, bubbling over with excitement, was dying to tell his story to someone. He unburdened himself to Howard.
"He had been cutting up money all day, millions of dollars he claimed, and pesos by the bucketful. The sergeant opened his sack to show that it was full of brand-new crisp dollar bills in various denominations. He plucked out a handful, gave it to Howard and moved on his way, in search of a fresh audience. Howard counted his hoard; he had $6,000, more money than he had ever seen in his life. He quickly finished his frugal supper and hurried back to the solitude of his bunk deep inside the signal corps lateral (of the Malinta tunnel). There with a needle and thread he set about sewing most of his money into the waistbands of his two remaining pairs of trousers. He had a premonition that this might come in handy sometime in the future."

The other except of interest concerned the Bilabid prison in Manila, where many POWs stayed:
"In Bilabid the food situation at first was not so bad. Inmates could buy a few articles in the prison commissary, a banana, sugar, a little coconut, and occasionally eggs. In time both the food and the money became scarce, and this was really because under Japanese rule the Philippine economy was wrecked. Filipino farmers grew enough to eat, but any extra was commandeered by the Japanese. The sugar industry, a staple product of the islands and the main source of revenue was brought to a halt, and Japanese substituted cotton. The experiment was a dismal failure. The Filipinos refused to use the Japanese occupation currency, and so the economy simply fell apart. The Japanese were forced to bring in their own food by sea, and as the American submarine blockade became more effective, even the occupiers had to go without. However, the result that the American POW, the lowest man on the totem pole was soon starving. There were distributions of Red Cross packages, but the vast majority of the men saw only two issues during their time in the Philippines and by then the packages were old and had been pilfered."
One other interesting note. POWs that survived were given a dollar a day for every day they had been prisoners. The money came from Japanese reparations but was poor compensation for the POWs' sufferings

We (Judy and I) just finished a 1200 mile drive to get to Dallas to spend a few days with her sister. It was a long drive (obviously), but we avoided most of the bad weather (and killing each other) so here we are.
Doug Bell is trying to organizing a mini Fest for Saturday here in the north Dallas area. I have been out of touch for a few days, so even I do not know the details. I hope to have some details soon, but if it is possible that you can attend, start thinking about Saturday afternoon.

Rrecords Crushed--Again

by Doug Bell

Totals on the MPC data base have again surpassed important thresholds. Reports passed 10,000 notes AND two million dollars! David Seelye put the total over $2 million with a twist. Harold Kroll who put the data base over one million was entering notes and looked like he would also put us over $2,000,000 but he took a break and David Seelye by chance put in the note that put us over.

I Ate too Much in 2002

by Joe Boling

Well, Monday got by me, then I promised Fred a column Tuesday night, and that slipped away, too. Maybe Ski is on the road and I can fill his spot in the Thursday gram.

Update on my position 8 search--during the year 2002 I added twenty pieces to the collection. I have obtained the two keys, one of which I never owned back when I was a routine MPC collector (early 70s). I can't now remember which of the two keys I did not have, only that one was still missing when I had to sell my collection to Fred in order to pay a $1000 auction bill in November 1974. Here it is almost thirty years later and I am closing in on a complete collection again (well, not exactly closing in yet--I still lack 32 pieces of the basic 90-note set, but with the keys in hand, I don't expect it to be an insurmountable task.

I bought the 541 $5 in the most recent IBNS auction. It was overgraded, and priced high, but as a friend asked about a similarly situated piece that he had located for me (the 591 $5), "do you want this #8 or not?" It is not unlike the situation with my other collection, the worldwide counterfeits. Some of the original notes are so rare that one must simply grit the teeth and fork over in order to obtain them whenever they appear; a second appearance may not occur--ever.

The 471 $5 came to me from a gramster who read of my interest, and agreed to pass his to me if I could replace it with a suitable piece of another position number. I have acquired several pieces that way; I thank all who are helping me to fill my 8s that way. xxxxx This is just like bingo, as I try to fill the grid with denominations across the top and series down the side. With 58 pieces in hand, I still have not filled either a series or a denomination. Five series are each lacking one piece--461, 472, 481, 521, and 641. Three of those are series that I used myself. One series is still empty--I have no 651 notes. But even more surprising, one of the seven-note series only has two pieces in it--541, which is another series that I used personally. The most complete denomination is, unexpectedly, the $5--I lack two pieces to have them all. The toughest is proving to be not so unexpected--50 cents. I still need seven of them.

Total expended so far is $5298.08 (ugh!). Curses on that jolly elf who started me on this quest by giving me a few position 8 pieces free.

Here is my want list of position eight notes:

461 $10
471 5, 25, 50c

472 50c
481 50c
521 $5
541 5, 10, 50c, $1, $10
591 10, 50c, $1
611 10, 25c
641 25c
651 all
661 25, 50c, $10, $20
681 5, 25c, $20
692 5, 25, 50c, $10

Joe's column was late, but then it came in very handy when it arrived rather unexpected a few minutes ago. I had about given up on this Christmas Gram, but since he made it easy, I thought that I should get it out.

In some ways I feel like a 12 year old. I have heard from several Gramsters about gifts received. I suspect that Ski will tell you about his.

Mail Call

Hello Gramsters! I want to wish all of you ((Gramsters!)) a happy and safe Holiday seasons greetings!

I had an idea for "News Years Gram!" We should "recap" the "top ten MPC" related events of 2002!! I vote for the #1 story, the WILD rarity of the 4th printing series #481 $5 note! And perhaps the Leo May Sale! etc.!! Maybe the best featured article of the year! Guy Araby!:)

Dear Guy,

This is a great idea. Indeed, compiling a list of the top stories each year is an important research took in itself! If someone feels up to it, we would be delighted to receive a list of candidates from 2002 Grams.

Burmese General Ne Win Passed Away
by Howard A. Daniel III

Here I go again with information from the Obituaries section of The Washington Post!

As many of you know who collect World War II financial instruments, General Ne Win (Bright Son) was one of the thirty Burmese nationalists sent to Japan in 1940 for military training. When he returned to Burma, he became a high-ranking officer in the Burma (-Japanese) National Army. So he was there during the entire time JIM and other financial instruments were issued during the war. When the Japanese were in full retreat, he switched to the side of the Allies!
By 1948, he was the second highest officer in Burma, and fourteen years later, led a coup to become number one. It became quickly apparent that the general did not have all of his nuts and bolts tightened down and he made some very irrational decisions that started Burma on a downward economic spiral.

One of his most famous decisions was creating the odd banknote denominations of 15, 35, 45, 75 and 90 Kyat. This decision was partly based on his lucky number of 9, and that his astrologer had told him they would be good numbers for the economy.

I know it is morbid to think about researching the Obituaries sections of your newspapers, but if you read it everyday, you will eventually find someone who might have had information and pieces of interest to you (and us). After a respectful time, please contact the family about his military (or civilian) work. You might be able to save some files and pieces from being trashed, and purchasing them might even provide his or her survivors with needed funds.

Editorial
=====

Well it seems that I got confused again with Gram 812.
It went out with subject line 811. If you need it resent, please tell me. I have the feeling that most of you are compensating for the editor's mistakes by checking these duplicates that come in. Then Joe Boling reported not receiving 810. I received mine, so once again, report if you need it sent. I can sense my own Gram new year's resolution developing here!

No news from Ski who may be stuck in a computer desert or he might be playing with new loot. If his column comes in later, we will run it immediately (Ski, that means that we want it!).

Mail Call

Hi again! If the "idea" of a "Top ten stories", etc. is accepted! I "think" we should call it the "Gramies" ((or similar spelling)) !!! with ten(?) different categories. I.E. Best find / discovery of the year! (#481 $5 4th printing?). Best story! Birth of the Data Base! The ANA scholarship program. Highest record price. And what about the Fest??, MPC 4th ed.
etc. Enough! It's up to you to pick'em! Guy!

Dear Guy,

Why is it up to me to pick em? I cannot remember what I had for breakfast!

Editor

Dear Esteemed (?) Editor,
I was searching through the junk box of John Sullivan, a Vienna, Virginia, numismatic and jewelry dealer, and found a Philippines 10 Pesos Pick-111a in VERY Poor condition. The condition was not a problem because it had written in ink; "Comp. of censor" and "JGB" below it. I tried to purchase it but John gave it to me after looking at its condition. I believe the "Comp." is for "Compliments". I am wondering if anyone disagrees with "Compliments"; has a similar piece; and/or if they know who the JGB censor is? I also found a more modern Japanese note rubberstamped with what appears to be an advertisement with a large British crown and "KEENE" below it for Joe Boling.

Howard A. Daniel III

Dear Gram,

Howard Daniel mentioned our propaganda parodies (really forgeries) of the North Vietnamese dong notes. It is worth mentioning that we prepared the one dong note in six different varieties (minor size and translation difficulties).

Howard said that there were complaints by North Vietnam. There were more than that. The "fellow travellers" (sometimes known as "useful idiots") waged quite a campaign in the international press and even in the left-wing magazines of the United States. There were numerous articles attacking our policy and claiming that we were destroying the economy of the poor hapless agrarian reformers of the north. When they squeal real good you know you hurt them!

At the same time, publications that were more friendly to the war published stories that saw the banknotes as business as usual.

For instance, Coin World 11 Oct 72 said "U.S. Dropping Copy Piasters on Viet Nam? and a companion story "Counterfeiting Tempts Nations During Wars."

Scholarships!!!!

by Marcus Turner

Once again it is time to start making preparations for the Military Money Seminar at the ANA Summer Seminar. Not only do these preparations include soliciting donations for the scholarship fund, but also recruiting applicants to attend the course. Given the excitement caused by the ANA exhibit "Rendezvous with Destiny, The Money of World War II," we are anticipating a larger than normal number of applicants this year. Information concerning the scholarship program, instructions for making an application and instructions for making a donation are included in the attached PDF file. Please note that the application deadline has been moved up significantly over last year to March 21, 2003. If you have any questions, comments or concerns please e-mail me at marcus@papermoneyworld.net.

Thus far the following Festers have been confirmed: Doug Bell, Sam Feedback, Russ Walsh, Fred Schwan, and Bill McNease.

The Barnes and Noble book store (in which the café is located) is located at the SW corner of Beltline and Preston Roads. The actual address is 14999 Preston Road. Phone at the store is 972-661(!)-8068.

I am excited about tomorrow's Texas mini Fest. I am sorry that the details are so late in coming, but I hope that there will be some unexpected Gramsters there! Please come if you can.

News continues to develop. While waiting on family events here, I have done some internet research with some good results.

Thurski's Christmas

By Larry "Ski" Smulczenski

Christmas 2002 has passed and since we are in Central Texas for the holidays, Leroy the Redneck Reindeer led Santa's team as the jolly old elf brought presents to all the good little kids. Leroy two-stepped across the chilly sky and you could hear his loud shouts of "Merry Christmas" as the team completed their planned delivery route. We didn't get any of the snow that you readers in Oklahoma, the Midwest and up through the Northeast got on Christmas Eve and Christmas day, but Santa still did a great job of filling up stockings and responding to want lists. There should not have been many kids that were disappointed from what I saw.

My wife gave me a great note in my Christmas stocking as her supplier didn't forget and came through this year. It is a great addition to my MPC collection, a Series 661 nickel with serial number B00000000B. Yes, a specimen note and one that is quite special to me in that it is the series that I used for nine of the twelve months that I was in Nam. So this one will be cherished and mean a little bit more to me, but in all honesty, I feel that way about most of my notes.

Less than a week remains of the year 2002 and as I sat back and reflected the other night on what has happened in the past year as far as our hobby goes, I have to say that it has been quite good. There definitely is a significant increase in the number of collectors that have joined us in the search for military collectibles and as a result the number of new and exciting discoveries that have been reported continues to grow. One of the things that pleases me the most is the number of collectors that are anxious to learn about the notes that they are collecting. We are not a hobby where one blindly sticks coins into holes in an album or pastes stamps onto outlines on a page, hoping to fill each series or year of issue. Our collectors seem a lot more interested in finding out why a note was issued, where it was used or how many of them were printed. Over the past year, I've had numerous emails asking questions about a recently acquired item or one that has been held for a long time, but that recently sparked some interest because of something that was just read or heard. These questions are appreciated in that some of them I can use to write a Thurski column for the rest of Gramland. One Gramster recently emailed me because of his interests in starting a collection of chits or tokens of all the battleships commissioned by the Navy. Battleships were named after states and he wondered how many I had in my collection. I had to admit that I only had a few, but I thought that with a dogged pursuit, he could come up with a significant collection and I encouraged him to "go for it" and hopefully in the foreseeable future write an article for the Gram on the new items he had found. I think that such a collection would also make a great display at one of the shows, with the various items laid out alongside a photograph of the ship it was used on.

The Internet and ebay have been instrumental in uncovering many new items of interest to a lot of us. In the past, it took a lot of letter writing and phone calls to chase down something of interest, or else you might stumble across it at one of the shows. Today, persistent collectors are practicing their hobby surfing the Internet and doing quite well at it I must say. I personally mentioned to you the receipt from India a couple of Thurskies ago which was a pretty interesting find. There are many more of them still waiting to be discovered.

That's enough of the past. As I drive back to Florida this weekend, I hope to come up with some Professor Thurski's Prognostications for the New Year. I will wear my magical St. Louis Cardinal baseball cap which has those mystical powers to foresee the future, and hopefully come up with some real revelations. Next week we will reveal them to you. May you and your family have a very Happy New Year and YOU a super successful year of collecting.

Editorial

TexFest is only a few hours away. Doug Bell has reported that there are about 10 reservations! That seems amazing to me for such an ad hoc thing only conceived a few days ago. Of course, we are an amazing group.

As Doug mentioned, I have a few additions to the WWII book that I expect to share with the MiniFesters and I look forward to seeing some surprises too. Look forward to some reports on Monday and/or Sunday if we get lucky.

Mail Call

Hello Fred,

Just a note to confirm that Joel and I will be at the FUN show- hope to see all the Gramsters etc. who will be on hand. Hobby New year!

Neil S.

Dear Gram,

One thing more, with regard to series 541 and series 591 in "Europe."

I think the last two countries in the European area to use MPC were Cyprus and Iceland (yes, Iceland is in European area.

I used to be Stationed at HQUSEUCOM).

So I would conclude that the sequence of discontinuation of MPC in the European area was as follows:

27 May 1958- Germany, France, and Italy (521 last series)

26 May 1961- England, Northern Ireland, Scotland (541 last series)

13 January 1964- Cyprus, Iceland (591 last series)

David

Dear David,

Yes, I must agree with your conclusions although I am still in shock.
